

BUSINESS CARDS.

SAMUEL E. YOUNG,
Wholesale and Retail Dealer in
DRY GOODS,
CLOTHING,
GROCERIES,
BOOTS & SHOES,
THRESHERS,
REAPERS & MOWERS,
WAGONS, PLOWS,
SEED DRILLS,
BROADCAST SEED
GOWERS, ETC.
First street, Albany, Oregon.
Terms: Cash.

American Exchange Hotel.
Cor. Front and Washington sts.
ALBANY, OREGON.
THE AMERICAN EXCHANGE HOTEL,
so popular under the former management,
will be transferred on the 1st of October, to Mr.
S. W. EDDY, Mr. Eddy, in addition to being a first class caterer, is thorough in hotel business.

St. Charles Hotel,
Corner Washington and First Sts.,
ALBANY, OREGON,
Matthews & Morrison,
PROPRIETORS.

P. C. HARPER & CO.,
-Dealers in-
DRY GOODS,
Clothing, Boots and Shoes, Hats, Groceries,
Fancy Goods, Notions, Stricings
and Pistols, Knives, Ropes, Mirrors, Wallpaper, Wood and Willow
Ware, Trunk and Valises,
Pocket Cutlery, &c., &c.
Sold very low for cash, or to prompt paying customers on time.

Building and Moving Buildings.
WE THE UNDERSIGNED BEG LEAVE TO announce to the citizens of Albany and surrounding country that, having supplied ourselves with the necessary machinery for raising and removing buildings, we are ready at all times to receive orders for such work, which we will do in short or at lowest rates. We guarantee entire satisfaction in all work under taken by us.
Orders left at the REGISTER office promptly attended to. Apply to ALBANY, OREGON, EDDY, ALLEN & CO.
Or., April 25, 1875.

O. S. S. CO.
NOTICE.
FROM AND AFTER DATE, UNTIL FURther notice, freight from
PORTLAND TO ALBANY
WILL BE
ONE DOLLAR PER TON
All down freight will be delivered at PORT-LAND or ASTORIA.
Free of Drayage and Wharfage,
At Reduced Rates.
Boats will leave ALBANY for CORVALLIS or
PORTLAND
Every Day.
For further particulars, apply to
BEACH & MONTAGUE,
Albany, Nov. 24, 75-12
CHAS. B. MONTAGUE. ROBT. M'CALLEY.

MONTAGUE & McALLEY,
ARE NOW OPENING A MAGNIFICENT stock of
FALL AND WINTER GOODS
selected with care, and bought for coin at scandalously low figures!
and as we bought low we can and will sell them at prices that will
Astonish Everybody.
Come and see our selections of Dress Goods,
Shawls,
Figures,
Hosiery,
Lingerie,
Ribbons, Collars, Collarctics,
Laces, &c., &c.,
for the ladies, and our complete lines of Readymade Clothing,
Hosiery,
Cottons,
Cloths,
Caps,
Boots,
of all descriptions for men and boys. Also, full assortment of Groceries, Crockery and Glassware, or anybody.

FOUR-ACRE LOTS FOR SALE.
Within ONE MILE of Albany
Parties in want of Homestead Lots would do well to call on W. H. DODD & CO., before purchasing elsewhere. Land rich and would make fine farms.
The whole can be irrigated with very little expense.
W. H. DODD & CO.

Home Interests.

Educational.

In this epoch parents are looking anxiously about for suitable institutions of learning for their children. It is true that stuffed drawers, every variety of taste can be satisfied. One institution makes a specialty of teaching grammar, another one thing, another something else, and so it goes. With so many schools to select from the dutiful parent knows not where to choose, and often in perplexity takes the first that offers. It is a matter of paramount importance, however, one should not be decided without careful investigation. There are the big mouthed professors who, having failed in business, have become teachers. Some of these men have a certain gift of managing children, a very necessary thing in a teacher, not enough, however, to make one a good instructor. From such pedlars the parent should keep away. But to select one from the honest teachers is not an easy matter. This one is not a member of the right church, or that one is too strict, another not strict enough. The best way is for the parent to decide just what is wanted. Their children must be educated, and a place selected for them which will most amply supply their wants. Parents who have studied character, know that some children must be led with gentleness, others governed by authority, while others need only a little help here and there to teach them to walk alone. The moral wants of children must not be lost sight of. Such features as these must be regarded as the most impressive year of life. We must always keep in view that our children are to be made honest, upright men and women, healthy in body, mind and soul. We begin to see, now, why it is so difficult to select a suitable school. But after the school is chosen, the parent's work is not done. There is more for the mother to do than to get the children off to school in time, and more for the father to do than simply to pay the bills. Teaching is not to be left to the teacher entirely—parents must help. They can do this at home, by taking an interest in the lessons to be learned; and they can accomplish more good by visiting the school. The teacher is but the assistant of the parent, and it must be known that both are working in the same direction. The father may not find time to do much, but the mother can. She may not have been highly educated, but she can tell if her children are surrounded by good influences; if they are taught conscientiously or superficially. The teacher is pleased to know that he or she has the parent's hearty co-operation, and the pupils are proud to show the progress made since the last visit. Parents, there is still the work of advising, assisting and supervising to be done.

MR. DAYTON'S HOUSEKEEPER.

WANTED—A housekeeper—no one but an elderly lady, competent, and of the highest respectability need apply. Call between the hours of 3 and 4, Thursday, April 6, at No. 1, in the paper which lay on the counter in the little grocery while waiting to have an ounce or two of tea done up and a roll of baker's bread. She repeats the number of the house to herself as she received the change from the grocer.

She stepped, breathless, her cheeks bright. Perhaps Kate thought she would permit her to refer to her, because glad to have her descend to mental employment. Kate was competent for the situation, for during her mother's long illness and her father's absence, she had entire charge of their large family and splendid house. But an elderly woman? Now Kate was not an elderly woman, being only twenty; but she remembered, with a sort of pleasure, that in private theatricals, she had imitated the voice and assumed the character of an old woman with great success. She knew how to stain the skin to give an old appearance, and she had in the bottom of a box some false gray hair and a muslin cap worn on one of those occasions. She did not need to look so very old—only to present a mature and matronly appearance.

Edward Dayton waited at home after dinner to see the respondents to his advertisement. He was a handsome man, not yet thirty, with a grave, frank, good-natured countenance, and a length of hair that he leaned back in a nonchalant way, in fact on another chair.

CATE OF GOOD HOPE.

MORE IMPROVEMENT—WOOLLEN MILLS TO BE ERRECTED—FOR OUR SIDE.—Time and again, for years past, the REGISTER has showed the advantages that would accrue to city and county by the building up of manufacturing industries in our midst. A year or two since, when a gentleman of large experience in the business, a practical woolen manufacturer, came to the city, and after careful examination and enquiry, became satisfied that Albany was one of the best, if not the very best, points in the State for the successful prosecution of such an industry, and proposed to put up half the capital necessary to build and outfit a first class woolen mill if our citizens would furnish the other half. We urged upon our citizens the acceptance of the offer. But times were hard, money tight, and our citizens generally had not fully awakened to the grand destiny that awaited our city in the near future, to be realized by the liberality, energy and push of a few of our fellow-citizens. Various propositions were made, by different parties, and a good deal of breath was spent, canvassing the matter of the erection of a woolen mill, from time to time, but nothing definite was effected. Last Saturday five of our most practical, thorough-paced business men, realizing the necessity of immediate action, drew up and signed the necessary articles incorporating a company who propose erecting and carrying on the business of a woolen factory. The incorporators are: Messrs. J. F. Backenstoe, S. E. Young, D. M. Thompson, C. P. Burklart and Thos. Montague. The capital stock of the Company is $12,000, divided into shares of $100 each. We have little doubt that the stock in this enterprise will all be taken by our citizens at once, so that the Company may be organized and proceed at once to business. The enterprise should enlist the hearty support of every citizen of the city and county, as it is an industry which, if prosecuted energetically, will add more than any other single enterprise the growth and prosperity of the city and county.

FREIGHTS LOWERED.—As will be seen by an advertisement elsewhere in this issue, the Oregon & California Railroad Company have lowered their rates of freight on general merchandise from Portland to this city to twenty-five cents per hundred pounds, or $5 per ton. This is quite a fall from old rates, and will be appreciated by our merchants and shippers. The old rates were: First class, per 100 lbs., 55c; second class, 48c; third class, 35c. Judging from the advertisement, there will hereafter be but one rate.

That was a disastrous fire at Iquique in Peru. And what a curious name, neither

SCHOOL SUSPENSION.

The school at Knox Butte has been suspended the past two weeks, on account of the severe illness of Mr Skeels' family. Mr. S. is the teacher of the school, and we believe has been giving general satisfaction. We are glad to learn that the health of his wife and child is improving, and school will soon be reopened.

The "lightning" express train telescoped a porker the other day, and threw the squeal a mile distant.

Bismarck's daughter is thirty-eight, and yet he has succeeded in getting her married. Bismarck has thus proved himself the greatest man of the age.

Circuit Court has been running during the week.

MR. DAYTON'S HOUSEKEEPER.

WANTED—A housekeeper—no one but an elderly lady, competent, and of the highest respectability need apply. Call between the hours of 3 and 4, Thursday, April 6, at No. 1, in the paper which lay on the counter in the little grocery while waiting to have an ounce or two of tea done up and a roll of baker's bread. She repeats the number of the house to herself as she received the change from the grocer.

She stepped, breathless, her cheeks bright. Perhaps Kate thought she would permit her to refer to her, because glad to have her descend to mental employment. Kate was competent for the situation, for during her mother's long illness and her father's absence, she had entire charge of their large family and splendid house. But an elderly woman? Now Kate was not an elderly woman, being only twenty; but she remembered, with a sort of pleasure, that in private theatricals, she had imitated the voice and assumed the character of an old woman with great success. She knew how to stain the skin to give an old appearance, and she had in the bottom of a box some false gray hair and a muslin cap worn on one of those occasions. She did not need to look so very old—only to present a mature and matronly appearance.

Edward Dayton waited at home after dinner to see the respondents to his advertisement. He was a handsome man, not yet thirty, with a grave, frank, good-natured countenance, and a length of hair that he leaned back in a nonchalant way, in fact on another chair.

CATE OF GOOD HOPE.

MORE IMPROVEMENT—WOOLLEN MILLS TO BE ERRECTED—FOR OUR SIDE.—Time and again, for years past, the REGISTER has showed the advantages that would accrue to city and county by the building up of manufacturing industries in our midst. A year or two since, when a gentleman of large experience in the business, a practical woolen manufacturer, came to the city, and after careful examination and enquiry, became satisfied that Albany was one of the best, if not the very best, points in the State for the successful prosecution of such an industry, and proposed to put up half the capital necessary to build and outfit a first class woolen mill if our citizens would furnish the other half. We urged upon our citizens the acceptance of the offer. But times were hard, money tight, and our citizens generally had not fully awakened to the grand destiny that awaited our city in the near future, to be realized by the liberality, energy and push of a few of our fellow-citizens. Various propositions were made, by different parties, and a good deal of breath was spent, canvassing the matter of the erection of a woolen mill, from time to time, but nothing definite was effected. Last Saturday five of our most practical, thorough-paced business men, realizing the necessity of immediate action, drew up and signed the necessary articles incorporating a company who propose erecting and carrying on the business of a woolen factory. The incorporators are: Messrs. J. F. Backenstoe, S. E. Young, D. M. Thompson, C. P. Burklart and Thos. Montague. The capital stock of the Company is $12,000, divided into shares of $100 each. We have little doubt that the stock in this enterprise will all be taken by our citizens at once, so that the Company may be organized and proceed at once to business. The enterprise should enlist the hearty support of every citizen of the city and county, as it is an industry which, if prosecuted energetically, will add more than any other single enterprise the growth and prosperity of the city and county.

FREIGHTS LOWERED.—As will be seen by an advertisement elsewhere in this issue, the Oregon & California Railroad Company have lowered their rates of freight on general merchandise from Portland to this city to twenty-five cents per hundred pounds, or $5 per ton. This is quite a fall from old rates, and will be appreciated by our merchants and shippers. The old rates were: First class, per 100 lbs., 55c; second class, 48c; third class, 35c. Judging from the advertisement, there will hereafter be but one rate.

That was a disastrous fire at Iquique in Peru. And what a curious name, neither relepto have the day to herself. She locked the doors carefully after the last servant. She had almost forgotten her real character in that which she had assumed; but to-day she could be herself, without fear of intrusion or discovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Dayton's cap and gray dresses—washed the stain from her skin—arranged her luxuriant hair in becoming curls and bunched a pretty, fresh muslin, which she wore with a slight graceful figure. This done, she entered the parlor and stood before the mirror—as an attractive figure as one would often see.

"Why, I have forgotten my own looks! I am Kate Franklin, after all," she said. Removed from her long restraint, her spirits rebounded. She felt, as if light-hearted, and like committing any foolishness.

"Miss Franklin," she said, in the mingling, affected tones of an exquisite, "it would be an inexpressible pleasure to hear the music of your lovely voice."

"It would be a great pity to deprive you of it, then," she answered in her natural voice, "and myself also," she added; and, going to the piano, she struck a few chords, and sang a song after a song, in a sweet, cultivated, clear voice. She chose, at first, the brilliant and triumphant, then the sad and plaintive. Mrs. Dayton was so charmed by her eyes when she rose; but to-day her moods were capricious.

"Mrs. Franklin, is it you who is playing on the piano?" she asked, in excellent imitation of Mr. Dayton's voice.

"It is only I, sir, dusting the keys. They need dusting so often," she replied, in Mrs. Franklin's manager tones; but she dusted them rigorously with her pocket-handkerchief.

"Ah me," she said, "now what other foolish thing shall I do to prove to myself that I am not an elderly housekeeper, but a young girl, who, by virtue of her age, should be gay, by right of birth wealthy and of considerable fortune, visited and visited by the rich and handsome, as she said with a sigh. "She will be happy. How graciously she said that, but at evening, when the old housekeeper was permitted to look on. She looks good and amiable, too. Mr. Dayton danced with her through the night, and she hummed a song to show to dance," and humming an air, she floated gracefully about the room.

She stopped, breathless, her cheeks bright. Perhaps Kate thought she would permit her to refer to her, because glad to have her descend to mental employment. Kate was competent for the situation, for during her mother's long illness and her father's absence, she had entire charge of their large family and splendid house. But an elderly woman? Now Kate was not an elderly woman, being only twenty; but she remembered, with a sort of pleasure, that in private theatricals, she had imitated the voice and assumed the character of an old woman with great success. She knew how to stain the skin to give an old appearance, and she had in the bottom of a box some false gray hair and a muslin cap worn on one of those occasions. She did not need to look so very old—only to present a mature and matronly appearance.

Edward Dayton waited at home after dinner to see the respondents to his advertisement. He was a handsome man, not yet thirty, with a grave, frank, good-natured countenance, and a length of hair that he leaned back in a nonchalant way, in fact on another chair.

CATE OF GOOD HOPE.

MORE IMPROVEMENT—WOOLLEN MILLS TO BE ERRECTED—FOR OUR SIDE.—Time and again, for years past, the REGISTER has showed the advantages that would accrue to city and county by the building up of manufacturing industries in our midst. A year or two since, when a gentleman of large experience in the business, a practical woolen manufacturer, came to the city, and after careful examination and enquiry, became satisfied that Albany was one of the best, if not the very best, points in the State for the successful prosecution of such an industry, and proposed to put up half the capital necessary to build and outfit a first class woolen mill if our citizens would furnish the other half. We urged upon our citizens the acceptance of the offer. But times were hard, money tight, and our citizens generally had not fully awakened to the grand destiny that awaited our city in the near future, to be realized by the liberality, energy and push of a few of our fellow-citizens. Various propositions were made, by different parties, and a good deal of breath was spent, canvassing the matter of the erection of a woolen mill, from time to time, but nothing definite was effected. Last Saturday five of our most practical, thorough-paced business men, realizing the necessity of immediate action, drew up and signed the necessary articles incorporating a company who propose erecting and carrying on the business of a woolen factory. The incorporators are: Messrs. J. F. Backenstoe, S. E. Young, D. M. Thompson, C. P. Burklart and Thos. Montague. The capital stock of the Company is $12,000, divided into shares of $100 each. We have little doubt that the stock in this enterprise will all be taken by our citizens at once, so that the Company may be organized and proceed at once to business. The enterprise should enlist the hearty support of every citizen of the city and county, as it is an industry which, if prosecuted energetically, will add more than any other single enterprise the growth and prosperity of the city and county.

FREIGHTS LOWERED.—As will be seen by an advertisement elsewhere in this issue, the Oregon & California Railroad Company have lowered their rates of freight on general merchandise from Portland to this city to twenty-five cents per hundred pounds, or $5 per ton. This is quite a fall from old rates, and will be appreciated by our merchants and shippers. The old rates were: First class, per 100 lbs., 55c; second class, 48c; third class, 35c. Judging from the advertisement, there will hereafter be but one rate.

That was a disastrous fire at Iquique in Peru. And what a curious name, neither relepto have the day to herself. She locked the doors carefully after the last servant. She had almost forgotten her real character in that which she had assumed; but to-day she could be herself, without fear of intrusion or discovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Dayton's cap and gray dresses—washed the stain from her skin—arranged her luxuriant hair in becoming curls and bunched a pretty, fresh muslin, which she wore with a slight graceful figure. This done, she entered the parlor and stood before the mirror—as an attractive figure as one would often see.

"Why, I have forgotten my own looks! I am Kate Franklin, after all," she said. Removed from her long restraint, her spirits rebounded. She felt, as if light-hearted, and like committing any foolishness.

"Miss Franklin," she said, in the mingling, affected tones of an exquisite, "it would be an inexpressible pleasure to hear the music of your lovely voice."

"It would be a great pity to deprive you of it, then," she answered in her natural voice, "and myself also," she added; and, going to the piano, she struck a few chords, and sang a song after a song, in a sweet, cultivated, clear voice. She chose, at first, the brilliant and triumphant, then the sad and plaintive. Mrs. Dayton was so charmed by her eyes when she rose; but to-day her moods were capricious.

"Mrs. Franklin, is it you who is playing on the piano?" she asked, in excellent imitation of Mr. Dayton's voice.

"It is only I, sir, dusting the keys. They need dusting so often," she replied, in Mrs. Franklin's manager tones; but she dusted them rigorously with her pocket-handkerchief.

"Ah me," she said, "now what other foolish thing shall I do to prove to myself that I am not an elderly housekeeper, but a young girl, who, by virtue of her age, should be gay, by right of birth wealthy and of considerable fortune, visited and visited by the rich and handsome, as she said with a sigh. "She will be happy. How graciously she said that, but at evening, when the old housekeeper was permitted to look on. She looks good and amiable, too. Mr. Dayton danced with her through the night, and she hummed a song to show to dance," and humming an air, she floated gracefully about the room.

She stopped, breathless, her cheeks bright. Perhaps Kate thought she would permit her to refer to her, because glad to have her descend to mental employment. Kate was competent for the situation, for during her mother's long illness and her father's absence, she had entire charge of their large family and splendid house. But an elderly woman? Now Kate was not an elderly woman, being only twenty; but she remembered, with a sort of pleasure, that in private theatricals, she had imitated the voice and assumed the character of an old woman with great success. She knew how to stain the skin to give an old appearance, and she had in the bottom of a box some false gray hair and a muslin cap worn on one of those occasions. She did not need to look so very old—only to present a mature and matronly appearance.

Edward Dayton waited at home after dinner to see the respondents to his advertisement. He was a handsome man, not yet thirty, with a grave, frank, good-natured countenance, and a length of hair that he leaned back in a nonchalant way, in fact on another chair.

CATE OF GOOD HOPE.

MORE IMPROVEMENT—WOOLLEN MILLS TO BE ERRECTED—FOR OUR SIDE.—Time and again, for years past, the REGISTER has showed the advantages that would accrue to city and county by the building up of manufacturing industries in our midst. A year or two since, when a gentleman of large experience in the business, a practical woolen manufacturer, came to the city, and after careful examination and enquiry, became satisfied that Albany was one of the best, if not the very best, points in the State for the successful prosecution of such an industry, and proposed to put up half the capital necessary to build and outfit a first class woolen mill if our citizens would furnish the other half. We urged upon our citizens the acceptance of the offer. But times were hard, money tight, and our citizens generally had not fully awakened to the grand destiny that awaited our city in the near future, to be realized by the liberality, energy and push of a few of our fellow-citizens. Various propositions were made, by different parties, and a good deal of breath was spent, canvassing the matter of the erection of a woolen mill, from time to time, but nothing definite was effected. Last Saturday five of our most practical, thorough-paced business men, realizing the necessity of immediate action, drew up and signed the necessary articles incorporating a company who propose erecting and carrying on the business of a woolen factory. The incorporators are: Messrs. J. F. Backenstoe, S. E. Young, D. M. Thompson, C. P. Burklart and Thos. Montague. The capital stock of the Company is $12,000, divided into shares of $100 each. We have little doubt that the stock in this enterprise will all be taken by our citizens at once, so that the Company may be organized and proceed at once to business. The enterprise should enlist the hearty support of every citizen of the city and county, as it is an industry which, if prosecuted energetically, will add more than any other single enterprise the growth and prosperity of the city and county.

FREIGHTS LOWERED.—As will be seen by an advertisement elsewhere in this issue, the Oregon & California Railroad Company have lowered their rates of freight on general merchandise from Portland to this city to twenty-five cents per hundred pounds, or $5 per ton. This is quite a fall from old rates, and will be appreciated by our merchants and shippers. The old rates were: First class, per 100 lbs., 55c; second class, 48c; third class, 35c. Judging from the advertisement, there will hereafter be but one rate.

That was a disastrous fire at Iquique in Peru. And what a curious name, neither relepto have the day to herself. She locked the doors carefully after the last servant. She had almost forgotten her real character in that which she had assumed; but to-day she could be herself, without fear of intrusion or discovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Dayton's cap and gray dresses—washed the stain from her skin—arranged her luxuriant hair in becoming curls and bunched a pretty, fresh muslin, which she wore with a slight graceful figure. This done, she entered the parlor and stood before the mirror—as an attractive figure as one would often see.

"Why, I have forgotten my own looks! I am Kate Franklin, after all," she said. Removed from her long restraint, her spirits rebounded. She felt, as if light-hearted, and like committing any foolishness.

"Miss Franklin," she said, in the mingling, affected tones of an exquisite, "it would be an inexpressible pleasure to hear the music of your lovely voice."

"It would be a great pity to deprive you of it, then," she answered in her natural voice, "and myself also," she added; and, going to the piano, she struck a few chords, and sang a song after a song, in a sweet, cultivated, clear voice. She chose, at first, the brilliant and triumphant, then the sad and plaintive. Mrs. Dayton was so charmed by her eyes when she rose; but to-day her moods were capricious.

"Mrs. Franklin, is it you who is playing on the piano?" she asked, in excellent imitation of Mr. Dayton's voice.

"It is only I, sir, dusting the keys. They need dusting so often," she replied, in Mrs. Franklin's manager tones; but she dusted them rigorously with her pocket-handkerchief.

"Ah me," she said, "now what other foolish thing shall I do to prove to myself that I am not an elderly housekeeper, but a young girl, who, by virtue of her age, should be gay, by right of birth wealthy and of considerable fortune, visited and visited by the rich and handsome, as she said with a sigh. "She will be happy. How graciously she said that, but at evening, when the old housekeeper was permitted to look on. She looks good and amiable, too. Mr. Dayton danced with her through the night, and she hummed a song to show to dance," and humming an air, she floated gracefully about the room.

She stopped, breathless, her cheeks bright. Perhaps Kate thought she would permit her to refer to her, because glad to have her descend to mental employment. Kate was competent for the situation, for during her mother's long illness and her father's absence, she had entire charge of their large family and splendid house. But an elderly woman? Now Kate was not an elderly woman, being only twenty; but she remembered, with a sort of pleasure, that in private theatricals, she had imitated the voice and assumed the character of an old woman with great success. She knew how to stain the skin to give an old appearance, and she had in the bottom of a box some false gray hair and a muslin cap worn on one of those occasions. She did not need to look so very old—only to present a mature and matronly appearance.

Edward Dayton waited at home after dinner to see the respondents to his advertisement. He was a handsome man, not yet thirty, with a grave, frank, good-natured countenance, and a length of hair that he leaned back in a nonchalant way, in fact on another chair.

CATE OF GOOD HOPE.

MORE IMPROVEMENT—WOOLLEN MILLS TO BE ERRECTED—FOR OUR SIDE.—Time and again, for years past, the REGISTER has showed the advantages that would accrue to city and county by the building up of manufacturing industries in our midst. A year or two since, when a gentleman of large experience in the business, a practical woolen manufacturer, came to the city, and after careful examination and enquiry, became satisfied that Albany was one of the best, if not the very best, points in the State for the successful prosecution of such an industry, and proposed to put up half the capital necessary to build and outfit a first class woolen mill if our citizens would furnish the other half. We urged upon our citizens the acceptance of the offer. But times were hard, money tight, and our citizens generally had not fully awakened to the grand destiny that awaited our city in the near future, to be realized by the liberality, energy and push of a few of our fellow-citizens. Various propositions were made, by different parties, and a good deal of breath was spent, canvassing the matter of the erection of a woolen mill, from time to time, but nothing definite was effected. Last Saturday five of our most practical, thorough-paced business men, realizing the necessity of immediate action, drew up and signed the necessary articles incorporating a company who propose erecting and carrying on the business of a woolen factory. The incorporators are: Messrs. J. F. Backenstoe, S. E. Young, D. M. Thompson, C. P. Burklart and Thos. Montague. The capital stock of the Company is $12,000, divided into shares of $100 each. We have little doubt that the stock in this enterprise will all be taken by our citizens at once, so that the Company may be organized and proceed at once to business. The enterprise should enlist the hearty support of every citizen of the city and county, as it is an industry which, if prosecuted energetically, will add more than any other single enterprise the growth and prosperity of the city and county.

FREIGHTS LOWERED.—As will be seen by an advertisement elsewhere in this issue, the Oregon & California Railroad Company have lowered their rates of freight on general merchandise from Portland to this city to twenty-five cents per hundred pounds, or $5 per ton. This is quite a fall from old rates, and will be appreciated by our merchants and shippers. The old rates were: First class, per 100 lbs., 55c; second class, 48c; third class, 35c. Judging from the advertisement, there will hereafter be but one rate.

That was a disastrous fire at Iquique in Peru. And what a curious name, neither relepto have the day to herself. She locked the doors carefully after the last servant. She had almost forgotten her real character in that which she had assumed; but to-day she could be herself, without fear of intrusion or discovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Dayton's cap and gray dresses—washed the stain from her skin—arranged her luxuriant hair in becoming curls and bunched a pretty, fresh muslin, which she wore with a slight graceful figure. This done, she entered the parlor and stood before the mirror—as an attractive figure as one would often see.

"Why, I have forgotten my own looks! I am Kate Franklin, after all," she said. Removed from her long restraint, her spirits rebounded. She felt, as if light-hearted, and like committing any foolishness.

"Miss Franklin," she said, in the mingling, affected tones of an exquisite, "it would be an inexpressible pleasure to hear the music of your lovely voice."

"It would be a great pity to deprive you of it, then," she answered in her natural voice, "and myself also," she added; and, going to the piano, she struck a few chords, and sang a song after a song, in a sweet, cultivated, clear voice. She chose, at first, the brilliant and triumphant, then the sad and plaintive. Mrs. Dayton was so charmed by her eyes when she rose; but to-day her moods were capricious.

"Mrs. Franklin, is it you who is playing on the piano?" she asked, in excellent imitation of Mr. Dayton's voice.

"It is only I, sir, dusting the keys. They need dusting so often," she replied, in Mrs. Franklin's manager tones; but she dusted them rigorously with her pocket-handkerchief.

"Ah me," she said, "now what other foolish thing shall I do to prove to myself that I am not an elderly housekeeper, but a young girl, who, by virtue of her age, should be gay, by right of birth wealthy and of considerable fortune, visited and visited by the rich and handsome, as she said with a sigh. "She will be happy. How graciously she said that, but at evening, when the old housekeeper was permitted to look on. She looks good and amiable, too. Mr. Dayton danced with her through the night, and she hummed a song to show to dance," and humming an air, she floated gracefully about the room.

She stopped, breathless, her cheeks bright. Perhaps Kate thought she would permit her to refer to her, because glad to have her descend to mental employment. Kate was competent for the situation, for during her mother's long illness and her father's absence, she had entire charge of their large family and splendid house. But an elderly woman? Now Kate was not an elderly woman, being only twenty; but she remembered, with a sort of pleasure, that in private theatricals, she had imitated the voice and assumed the character of an old woman with great success. She knew how to stain the skin to give an old appearance, and she had in the bottom of a box some false gray hair and a muslin cap worn on one of those occasions. She did not need to look so very old—only to present a mature and matronly appearance.

Edward Dayton waited at home after dinner to see the respondents to his advertisement. He was a handsome man, not yet thirty, with a grave, frank, good-natured countenance, and a length of hair that he leaned back in a nonchalant way, in fact on another chair.

CATE OF GOOD HOPE.

MORE IMPROVEMENT—WOOLLEN MILLS TO BE ERRECTED—FOR OUR SIDE.—Time and again, for years past, the REGISTER has showed the advantages that would accrue to city and county by the building up of manufacturing industries in our midst. A year or two since, when a gentleman of large experience in the business, a practical woolen manufacturer, came to the city, and after careful examination and enquiry, became satisfied that Albany was one of the best, if not the very best, points in the State for the successful prosecution of such an industry, and proposed to put up half the capital necessary to build and outfit a first class woolen mill if our citizens would furnish the other half. We urged upon our citizens the acceptance of the offer. But times were hard, money tight, and our citizens generally had not fully awakened to the grand destiny that awaited our city in the near future, to be realized by the liberality, energy and push of a few of our fellow-citizens. Various propositions were made, by different parties, and a good deal of breath was spent, canvassing the matter of the erection of a woolen mill, from time to time, but nothing definite was effected. Last Saturday five of our most practical, thorough-paced business men, realizing the necessity of immediate action, drew up and signed the necessary articles incorporating a company who propose erecting and carrying on the business of a woolen factory. The incorporators are: Messrs. J. F. Backenstoe, S. E. Young, D. M. Thompson, C. P. Burklart and Thos. Montague. The capital stock of the Company is $12,000, divided into shares of $100 each. We have little doubt that the stock in this enterprise will all be taken by our citizens at once, so that the Company may be organized and proceed at once to business. The enterprise should enlist the hearty support of every citizen of the city and county, as it is an industry which, if prosecuted energetically, will add more than any other single enterprise the growth and prosperity of the city and county.

FREIGHTS LOWERED.—As will be seen by an advertisement elsewhere in this issue, the Oregon & California Railroad Company have lowered their rates of freight on general merchandise from Portland to this city to twenty-five cents per hundred pounds, or $5 per ton. This is quite a fall from old rates, and will be appreciated by our merchants and shippers. The old rates were: First class, per 100 lbs., 55c; second class, 48c; third class, 35c. Judging from the advertisement, there will hereafter be but one rate.

That was a disastrous fire at Iquique in Peru. And what a curious name, neither relepto have the day to herself. She locked the doors carefully after the last servant. She had almost forgotten her real character in that which she had assumed; but to-day she could be herself, without fear of intrusion or discovery.