

Albany Register.

PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY, BY
COLL VAN CLEVE,
THE REGISTER BUILDING,
Corner Ferry and First Streets.

TERMS IN ADVANCE.
One copy, one year, $1.50
One copy, six months, .90
To clubs of twenty, each copy, .30
Single copies, .10 cents.
Subscriptions outside of this county will be charged 25 cents extra—$2.75 for the year—as this is the amount of postage per annum which we are required to pay on each paper mailed by us.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1875.

Home Matters.

A merry Christmas greeting to all our readers.

Remaining in the Albany Post Office on Dec. 23, 1875. Persons calling for these letters must give the date on which they were advertised.

Barry, Letty
Bell, John
Casey, Martin
Cowan, J. E.
Cowan, C. W.
Cannon, Bernard
Cox, Miss Jennie
Crawford, Miss M.
Davis, John

Elia, S. E.
Fenn, J. S.
Gibson, Rick
Gibson, William
Loar, Chas.
Maxey, Boss
Purvis, Wm. B.
Sheets, Mrs. H.
Watson, Henry

P. H. RAYMOND, P. M.

PROGRAMME.—Following is the programme of exercises at Dixie District School Prof. J. F. Rogers, this afternoon at 2 1/2 o'clock. All are invited:

Song—By the school.
Declaration—Burr Sloan.
Recitation—Frankie Hopkins.
Declaration—Wm. Farley.
Recitation—Annie Van Vactor.
Declaration—Lee Hughes.
Recitation—Jane Anderson.
Declaration—J. H. Anderson.
Recitation—Lora Hunsaker.
Dialogue—Two girls.
Recitation—Dora Cowan.
Declaration—Frank Mattoon.
Recitation—Rowena Parker.
Declaration—Chester Skel.
Recitation—Minnie Liggett.
Dialogue—Three girls.
Recitation—Clara Parker.
Recitation—Rosa Van Vactor.
Song—School.

PROBABLE POSTPONEMENT.—It is highly probable that Twoster's will postpone their entertainment until the 23d of February, as there are so many things during the holidays to attract the attention and draw upon the loose change of our people. It is possible that our steamer will have been received by that time, and our people will feel more disposed to aid the Company, as there will then be something in sight. This we believe is the feeling of the Executive Committee, who will meet in a day or two and take action.

THE GRANGE UNION STORE.—On the corner of First and Washington streets, is now open, with a large, well selected and attractive stock of goods, to which the attention of the public is invited. The Directors are also empowered, by their articles of incorporation, to do a general commission business, buying and selling all kinds of produce, etc. The Grange Union Store opens with a capital of $20,000. S. A. Dawson is President, and A. J. Johnson Superintendent. Messrs. A. S. Looney, J. Blevins, S. Cannon, M. Miller, J. G. Reed, A. Blevins and S. A. Dawson constitute the Board of Directors. With so able and energetic a board, the Grange Union Store must be a success. Read their card elsewhere in this issue, and then call and "presamine" the goods they offer for sale.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT.—On Friday last Mr. David Seltzer, of this city, while visiting his nephew near Tangent, fell and broke two ribs on the left side. Mr. Henry Seltzer, his nephew, lives about half a mile from Tangent. The old gentleman started to go to Tangent along the railroad track, and in crossing a piece of trestlework slipped and fell, resulting as above. Mr. Seltzer suffers a great deal, the slightest movement causing pain.

VERY ILL.—Miss Lizzie Smith is very ill, has almost lost her voice entirely at this writing (Tuesday), not being able to swallow any thing. Her condition is very critical. Her sister, Mrs. Annie Harper, at last accounts had been very low, but was then slightly better. She is still at Healdsburg, California. [Yesterday Miss Smith had greatly improved, we are glad to be able to state.]

JAMES M. PIERCE.—A California paper, speaking of the personnel of the members composing the Legislative Assembly of that State, says: "Mr. James M. Pierce; Assembly; San Diego; age 34; residence, San Diego; nativity, Massachusetts; Republican; single; farmers' religion; Baptist; resided California, September 15, 1849; coming from Massachusetts; served in Oregon Legislature in 1833, during extra session."

GOOD PRICE.—The real estate belonging to the Backus heirs, amounting to 320 acres, lying in Albany prairie, about nine miles from this city, was sold at auction on Monday last. It was sold in three lots, of 100 1/2 acres each. Messrs. R. A. Irvine, David Smith and W. B. Hardman were the purchasers, and the price paid was $12,800, which was at the rate of $40 per acre.

DEATH FROM DYPHTHERIA.—The youngest child of Prof. Gilbert, aged about three years, died on the 21st inst. The doctors pronounce it the most aggravated case of diphtheria ever throat they have been called upon to attend this season. Prof. Gilbert took the corpse to Oakland, his former residence, for burial.

B. H. Allen, State Deputy, organized a lodge of Good Templars at Crawfordville, Linn county, with 23 charter members. P. V. Crawford is W. C. T. Mary Fuller, W. V. T., and Robert Glass, L. D.

The Week of Prayer, 1876.

The Evangelical Alliance suggests the following topics for meditation and prayer on the successive days of the week:

SUNDAY, JAN. 21.
SERMONS.—The love of God perfected in him who "keeps His word."—1 John II. 3.

MONDAY, JAN. 22.
THANKSGIVING AND CONFESSION.—A retrospect of the past year.

TUESDAY, JAN. 23.
PRAYER FOR THE CHURCH OF CHRIST.—For the members recently added to the Church; for the union of true believers in fraternal fellowship and active co-operation for the removal of error, the increase of godliness, and a clearer testimony among believers to the doctrine and power of the Gospel of the grace of God.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 24.
PRAYER FOR FAMILIES.—For godless parents; for prodigal sons; for children at school; for those entering upon professional and commercial life; for widows and orphans; for sons and daughters in foreign lands; and for all who are mentally or otherwise afflicted.

THURSDAY, JAN. 25.
PRAYER FOR RULERS, MAGISTRATES, AND STATESMEN.—For soldiers and sailors; for national institutions; for philanthropic and charitable societies; for prisoners and captives; and for the persecuted and oppressed.

FRIDAY, JAN. 26.
PRAYER FOR CHRISTIAN MISSIONS.—And for the conversion of the world to Christ.

SATURDAY, JAN. 27.
PRAYER FOR ALL NATIONS.—For the maintenance of peace; for the cessation of tumults, wars, and civil strife; and for the removal of intemperance, and infidelity from the land.

SUNDAY, JAN. 28.
SERMONS.—The ultimate Triumph. Psalm lxxii. 17.

AN OLD PIONEER GONE.—Mr. Wm. McHargue, of Brownsville, an old resident of Oregon, died in that place on Monday last. Deceased built the fine flouring mills at Brownsville, and was identified with the interests and prosperity of the town, and his loss will be greatly felt by her citizens.

FIRST CHRISTMAS PRESENT.—Mr. James Thompson presented us with two nice rolls of sweet, fresh yellow butter, yesterday, for a Christmas present—a most acceptable present indeed, for which we return him and his excellent lady our sincere thanks.

RELIGIOUS.—Divine service at St. Paul's M. E. Church on Sabbath, 25th inst., morning and evening. Subject of the morning's discourse: "Parallels; or, Picture taking and Religion." Come to the house of God, not for novelty, but for religion's sake.

SUNDAY SCHOOL MASS-MEETING.—At St. Paul's, at 9 o'clock A. M., Sunday, Rev. Dr. Irvine and J. K. Weatherford, Esq., will deliver short addresses. The public are invited, as it will not conflict with other services.

CHRISTMAS TREE AT SHELD.—The good citizens of Shedd are about to have a good time Christmas eve. A tree is to be erected in the M. E. Church of that place, on which presents will be hung, and distributed during the evening. Everybody is invited. A way up time is expected.

Mrs. S. A. Johns is ready for the holidays, with a full supply of goods selected especially for the occasion. Everything and anything a lady may want in the way of wearing apparel, can be obtained at her establishment.

REWARD.—Mr. F. S. Powell has lost a fine bay mare, which strayed from his farm sometime in August last. He proposes to pay a liberal reward to any one returning her. See ad. in this issue.

Remember the big sale of valuable land at the Court House door on the 15th day of January next. The land will be sold in small parcels, and the man of moderate means can secure a home.

A Wheeler & Co., the leading business house at Shedd, have enlarged their quarters, added more goods, and can accommodate all who call. They do a square business, and are therefore the men to trade with.

THE EVANGELICAL FAIR.—At the Opera House Wednesday night was not so fairly attended as it should have been, yet it proved a very pleasant occasion, and we are informed resulted in the reception of about $30.

We were mistaken in regard to the time at which the China wedding would come off, but not as to the affair. It came off on Thursday evening, instead of Tuesday, and was a most pleasant occasion.

MARRIED.—At the St. Charles Hotel, Dec. 21st, 1875, by Rev. S. G. Irvine, D. D. Dr. J. W. McClure, of Buena Vista, and Miss Susan C. Grounds, of Benton county.

Revel meetings were inaugurated at the M. E. Church Monday evening. It is the intention we believe, to keep these meetings up regularly, for some weeks after the holidays.

THE M. E. SUNDAY SCHOOL.—Under the new Superintendency, bids fair to grow and prosper, the attendance being larger last Sunday than ever. The School meets now at 2:30 P. M. All are invited.

GOOD TEMPLARS' LODGE.—Rev. I. Wilson organized a Lodge of good Templars at Eugene on Wednesday last week, with about eighty-five members—the largest ever organized in the State.

CANCER.—Mrs. Demas Bench is very low with cancer in the face. She has been suffering for a long, long time, and seems to be gradually sinking. It is a most terrible disease.

INSTITUTE.—Linn County Teacher's Institute meets in this city on the 28th—next Tuesday. Those wishing to attend will be favored with half-fare tickets over the O. & C. Railroad.

Mud deep enough and prevalent enough everywhere.

THE FUNERAL CEREMONIES—Of Demas Bench on Wednesday last, were largely attended. The corpse was taken charge of by Albany Lodge No. 4, I. O. O. F., of which deceased was a worthy member, and deposited, with the usual ceremonies, in the silent tomb. A funeral sermon was preached, at the house of the family, by Rev. C. W. Shaw, of Salem. Deceased was born in the State of Vermont, on the 21st of November, 1812, and died December 21st, 1875, aged 63 years and one month. He had been a resident of Oregon since 1852—twenty-three years. He was an honest, capable, upright man, and the family have the sympathy of the entire community in their great loss. Peace to his ashes.

LARGE ROBBERY.—On Monday night Mr. Rohander Parrish, who lives eight miles southeast of this city, was robbed of between $1,000 and $1,200 in coin. About two weeks ago Mr. Parrish sold his wheat, and came in on Saturday and got the money for it. Some one posted in the matter, doubtless, due the deed. Mr. Parrish found tracks leading from and to the house, and hope by this clue to catch the thief.

Later statements in regard to the robbery of Mr. Parrish are to the effect that, when himself and wife retired, he placed the coin under his pillow. He woke up at eleven o'clock, and the money was all right; they both awoke at one o'clock, found the money gone, but were so overpowered with sleep that they made no attempt to get up and look for the money until morning. The thief's tracks were plainly abroad in the soil, leading to and from the house, and this is the only clue yet obtained to lead to the detection of the robber.

The body of the young man, John Henry Machin, drowned in the Lucklanette last week, while driving saw logs down that stream, had not been recovered at last accounts. Taylor Hill, the owner of the logs, also had a narrow escape from drowning. It is a dangerous business.

CAVALRY CHURCH.—At Cavalry Church on Sabbath at 11 A. M., a Christmas discourse will (D. O.) be preached by the pastor. At 7 P. M. the Sabbath School gives a concert exercise, under the direction of Supt. Sox.

Buena Vista is rushing right along. New improvements are constantly being inaugurated, and the citizens have great faith in her future.

THE WOOLEN MILLS.—At Brownsville, are in full blast, turning out as fine goods as any on the coast. The mills give employment to between thirty and forty persons, and seem to be prospering finely.

MORE FUN.—Prof. Herman, the world renowned prestidigitator, will be here next week, when our folks can look out for wonders.

S. S. CONCERT.—At the Cavalry Church next Sunday evening. Everybody is invited. It will doubtless prove an interesting occasion.

The Astorian says Capt. N. B. Humphrey, our new Mayor, is one of the best lawyers in the State, and we don't propose to go back on the Astorian.

A BRIDGE.—Across the North Fork of the Santiam river, near Stayton, uniting Linn and Marion counties, is talked of. It should be built.

The new bonnets, hats, trimmings, millinery goods, at Mrs. C. C. English's establishment, catches the eyes of the ladies at once.

If you want a dress neatly fitted, ladies, and made in the very latest "agency," call on Mrs. L. Stevens, in Froman's brick.

Wheat is quoted at $2 1/2c at Shedd; oats 50¢ 55; eggs 37 1/2c; butter 25¢ 37 1/2c; potatoes 75¢ @ $1.

THE FLAET.—Published at Shedd, by A. Wheeler & Co., for December, is lively and entertaining. Success to the prop's.

SICKNESS.—A good deal of sickness reported through the county, the principal diseases being fevers, diphtheria, scarlet fever, etc.

The question of organizing a Y. M. Christian Association is being talked up. Let us have it.

GUARDIAN'S SALE.—See guardian's sale of desirable realty in this number of the REGISTER. Mr. R. S. Roberts, guardian.

FAIR TO GOOD.—"Young America" received $30 at their entertainment the other evening.

Last week Mr. Wm. Deming, of Lake Creek, got his legs somewhat torn and bruised in a grubbing machine.

Good Templars have a Christmas tree at their hall on Saturday evening, for Good Templars only.

Jobwork has been crowding us some during the week. We like to be crowded in this way, however. Bring on the work.

THE EVANGELICAL SOCIABLE was way up, and those attending enjoyed the occasion splendidly.

The U. P. Sunday School will erect a Christmas tree in that church on Christmas eve.

The Baptist Sunday School will be on hand with a tree on Christmas.

Miss Middaugh has gone to Salem, to remain during the holidays.

Rev. Mr. Shaw, of Salem, was in the city Wednesday.

Dr. Plummer's prescription desk is way up.

Mrs. Vandervol goes to Salem to be with her parents during the holidays.

We are pleased to see Capt. P. C. Harper out again, after his recent severe illness.

Go to Medames Bolds & Enos, on Broadway street, for holiday goods.

Christmas gift!
Wheat 84c per bushel.
Hang up the stockings to-night.
The Willamette is coming up again.
See the fine toilet goods at Bell & Parker's.

There is talk of a select school opening in the lower part of town soon.

Tribute of Respect.
HALL ALBANY LODGE NO. 4, I. O. O. F.
ALBANY, Dec. 22d, 1875.

Death has given the Entersinger, and has again entered our portals and claimed its reward. Brother DEMAS BENCH, after a lingering and painful illness, has been called from our midst and summoned to the presence of the Supreme Lodge above.

His membership in this Lodge is contemporaneous with the existence of the Lodge itself, he having united with it as a charter member, and continued his affiliation until death struck the cruel blow. He was a consistent christian, an affectionate husband and father, a kind neighbor, a good citizen, and a true and steadfast Old Fellow, than which a more noble tribute can be conceived. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from among us to receive the reward of a well spent life, believing that whatever He doth by death he will be able to do by resurrection. The living of to-day become the dead of the morrow, and that in the providence of God none may escape the penalty of sin. With the tears of the bereaved wife and family of our deceased Brother, we mingle our sincere sorrow in this severe affliction; but we have usual confidence in the will of divine providence in removing our Brother from