JUDGE JOHNS AS A BOLTER.

"Facts are stubborn things," and the following will serve to enlighten the public with reference to the style of an Individual who is now before the people demanding their suffrages. Not farther back than the year 1870, Judge S. A. Johns, the present Democratic nominee for County Judge, sought the nomination for the same office at the hands of the Democratic party of Linn county in Convention assembled. He was then the acting incumbent of said office, to which he had been elected to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Judge Morris, Judge Johns was fairly lefeated in said Convention, and J. J. Whitney was duly nominated for said office, and so declared from the Chair. On the day of election following, it is known that the said Johns, holding a truly partisan spirit towards the party's choice, and now claiming to be a firm adherent of the Democratic party, and also claiming the undivided party vote, very deliberately but without malice prepense, of course, erased Mr. Whitney's name from his ticket, and then and there emphatically declared that he was not bound by the acts of the Democratic Convention or the Democratic party. Mr. Whitney received a handsome majority at the polls, and a certificate of election was duly issued to him, and he, in due time, qualified as by law required, and demanded the office of Johns, who refused to surrender it up, notwithstanding his repudiation by the party in Convention, by the people at the polls, and the hearty endorsement of Mr. Whitney. Mr. Whitney nstituted suit for the office, and was unnecessful, for the technical reasons given in the decison of said case in Third Oregon. Immediately on the instance of the mandate being sent down from the Supreme Court, Johns jumped at the delightful opportunity of further satiating his ravenous appetite for revenge, at once ordered an execution to be issued. The Clerk then acting expostulated with the Judge for his violent course, stating that Whitney was a young man of limited means, just entering the profession, who had entrusted to his care and support his aged and widowed mother, and requested that he should allow him (Whitney) an opportunity of paying the costs without the further expense of an execution, observing at the same time, that the Democracy of Linn would not endorse his (John's) course in prosecuting Whitney out of malice and making him unnecessary costs. The reply of Judge Johns was very significant and full of meaning, in this, that he asked no further favors at the hands of the Democracy of Linn but demanded execution forthwith. Will partisans support a man who will not support the party nominees, and declares that he courts not the favors of the party? Will the independent voter countenance the spirit of revenge and greedinoss of gain which is so characteristic of the present Democratic nominee for the office of County Judge?

Citizens, consider well your position on the County Judgeship, and be careful how yon cast your ballot.

A Widely Applicable Remedy. Few remedies are applicable to such a wide range of disorders as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and this not because it has special properties adapted to the cure of each—such a pretense would be manifestly absurd—but on account of its wonderfully improving effect upon the general tone of the system, and its alterative action upon the organs of untrition, secretion and discharge. Besides its well-known properties as a remedy for intermittent and remittent tevers, dyspepsia, constipation, torpidity of the liver, general debility, urinary and uterine difficulties, it invariably proves to be highly serviceable in overcoming anemia, hypochondria, rheumatism, insomnia, and many other disorders and dischilities originating in poverty or impurity of the blood, nervous weakness or over-excitement, or an imperfect performance of the physical functions.

Her face was livid, her eyes fixed and her feeling entirely gone. Congestion of the brain and sure death would have hurried her out of the world. The cause is said to be domestic trouble.

The Hillsboro Independent says: "The prospect for a bountiful fruit crop in Washington county is better than it has been for several years. Last year the severe winter and late frosts killed the fruit to a considerable extent, and there was not an average crop, but this year the weather thus far has been quite favoarble and the trees are just crowded with bloom and young fruit. Many farmers have replanted their orchards and pruned the old trees and put them in a healthy condition, and in a few years Washington county will export many bushels of fruit. We need a fruit dryer in the county now to manufacture dryer in the county now to manufacture our surplus product and also to stimulate a larger production."

There is this difference, however, relative to the packing: Last year but a portion of the established factories on the river were operating so early, this season all are actively employed, with the addition of four new large establishments, and the remainder with increased facilities, aggregating a capacity much in excess of former demands, which does not lessen the catch by any means, but, on the lessen the catch by any means, but, on the other hand, greatly increases it.

J. D. Laman returned to Walla Walla

J. D. Laman returned to Walla Walla on Wednesday from Colville valley. He reports all things very quiet in that region. The only excitement being the departure of the steamer "49" loaded with Chinamen and whites for the upper Columbia mines. A party of men who came into Colville last fall from prospecting tour on the Pen d'Oreille, had returned to their claims prepared to work them during the spring and summer. He says that the season is backward in the valley, and that it is all affoat with melted snow and rain water—the mud being almost unfathomable. He came down in four days and a half.
