ELECTION NEWS.

Last Monday there was an election held in this and the various other counties in Oregon. In Linn county the Democrats scooped the Republicans—cleaned them to the bedrock, but with slightly decreased majorities. We have not the space to go into details this week. The returns received so far indicate majorities as follows: Bonham, District Judge, 259; Ramsey, Dist. Atty., 237; Haley, State Senator, 220; Stuard, Porter, Weatherford, Crooks, Sumner and Grimes, Representatives, by majorities ranging from 192 to 277; S. A. Johns, Co. Judge, 117; Charlton and Holt, Co. Commissioners, 279 and 238; Stites, Co. Clerk, 334; Herren, Sheriff, 110; Grigsby, Democratic candidate, and Dave Andrews, Republican candidate for Treasurer, 1311 votes each, but as the precinct not yet reported (Friday) gives a Democratic majority generally, Grigsby is doubtless elected; Smith for Assessor, 218; Bilyeu, School Commissioner, 189; Bryant, Surveyor, 188; Jacobs, Coroner, 165; Chas. E. Wolverton was elected Justice of the Peace for Albany Precinct, and O. W. Warren, Constable.

The vote throughout the State is unusually close. The probabilities are that the Legislature will stand: Senate—11 Republicans, 18 Democrats, Independents 1; House—Republicans 30, Democrats 27, Independents 3. Should these figures prove correct, on joint ballot, neither party would have a majority unless Independents voted with the Democrats. However fuller returns may give the majority to the Republicans.

The returns show a great gain for the Republicans in any event. In this county the Democratic vote is cut down very considerably, notwithstanding the almost superhuman exertions of the leaders and whippers-in of the party. Everything that could be thought of was done to secure votes, even to paying for votes in flour; and we give our Democratic friends credit for being workers, stopping at nothing to secure success. We doubt whether there is a county anywhere, that has been run by the Democracy so long, that contains within its organization so many workers as does the Democracy of Linn county.

On the 6th instant, Mr. Blaine took the House once more by storm. Single-handed and alone he "went for" the Democratic House, and captured it, bag and baggage. The effect of his great speech was truly magical, said never to have been equaled in that body. Those who were before simply friends are now filled with enthusiasm such as no other candidate for Presidential honors ever before aroused. We hardly see how it will be possible after this great success to beat Blaine at the coming Republican National Convention.

The Portland committee on the fire tournament have generously (?) offered to let our No. 4 compete with their No. 2's, provided we will play through 200 feet of hose to their 250, with 130 pounds of steam. The liberality of the committee is only exceeded by their generosity! They ain't afraid of our little Clapp & Jones—oh, no!

Chief Engineer of Albany Fire Department, Joe Webber, returned from Portland yesterday, where he went to attend the meeting of the judges of the fire tournament, of which he is whom. Joe isn't the best satisfied man in the world with the way matters were adjusted.

Good, healthy rainfall yesterday.

We are not alarmed or discouraged by the exposure of rascality in high and low places, which meet our eyes in almost every morning paper. These exposures are the natural product of healthy reaction, the preliminary steps toward cure. So long as fraud, speculation and defection exist, the faster these exposures come the better. Every exposure is a preacher of righteousness, an evangel of reform. The more dangerous all rascality and infidelity to trust can be made to appear, the better.

Our latest advices lead us to believe that we have elected Judge Boise by a small majority, and G. H. Burnett, Republican candidate for District Attorney, is elected by over 400.

The bonds of the city of New Orleans have in the past few years fallen from eighty-five to thirty-seven, while the bonds of the State of Louisiana have, in the same period, risen from thirty-five to nearly seventy. Democrats have ruled the city and Republicans have the State.

History of a False Diamond.

A curious object was sold a few days ago at the auction mart of the Hotel Drouot, Paris. It was a false diamond exactly like the famous Regent. So far, there was nothing extraordinary in the fact, many pastes having been made before in the same model. But the counterfeit just sold for 20 francs was twenty-seven years ago palmed off to an unsophisticated dupe as the real Regent for the trifling of 200,000 francs. The story is worth relating. One day in 1849, a Frenchman, calling himself the Count de Boissat, waited on Prince Torveni, at Naples. "I belong," said he, "to one of the richest families of France, so rich, in fact, that it recently bought some of the Crown jewels, and among them the celebrated Regent diamond, which I hold in my hand. Being rather pressed for money I thought I would apply to you to lend me 200,000 francs on it." The Prince believed the Frenchman, and lent him the money. Needless to say, the "Comte de Boissat" did not turn up again. The Prince subsequently made a present of his bad bargain to an actress, who died in Paris the other day, and the false diamond figured among her effects that came under the hammer.

A Middle Age Romance.

During the recent visit of the Queen to Coburg, Germany, her attention was called to a venerable tower, covered with ivy, a striking symbol of Time's changes and life's contradictions. Here, during forty years, Ulrich Von Lichtenstein, the lover of the unhappy Anna of Saxony, wife of Duke Johann Casimir, lingered in prison. Let me briefly outline this sad history, which is not alone of local interest. This lady was a daughter of Elector of Saxony, and was married to the Duke Casimir in 1590. Brought up amid the gayeties of her father's court, she developed a peculiarly lively temperament, and was ill-fitted for the quiet, lonely life which fell to her lot after marriage. The Duke, a passionate lover of the chase, appears to have neglected his young wife, and she presently fell into the snare laid for her by one Scotus, a brilliant and wily adventurer, who had wormed himself into the confidence of the Duke, and secured also the reputation of being a magician and alchemist. His machinations against the young Duchess were directed toward the result of getting possession of her jewels, and bringing her into a guilty relation with Von Lichtenstein, a gallant officer of the Duke's household. Scotus succeeded in his devilish intrigue all too well. The beautiful Princess became totally under his influence, falling a victim to his slight-of-hand arts, and following his injunctions even so far as to make overtures of love to Von Lichtenstein. Scotus fled with his booty, and the relations between the Duchess and the courtier did not long remain a secret. Both confessed their guilt, and they were both imprisoned. The matter was laid before the Consistory, and Duke Casimir obtained a divorce. After leading a life of penitence for nineteen years, during all which time the misguided Duchess was kept in close captivity, she closed her unfortunate life at the Coburg fortress in 1613. Even a sterner fate befell Von Lichtenstein. He was condemned to perpetual and solitary confinement. His sentence was fully carried out in the old tower before the city, and his dreadful punishment of forty years ended with his life in 1633. The place of his long incarceration is incorporated with an elegant dwelling-house, and the walls of the round tower now resound with the joyful music and noisy pastimes of happy youth, instead of the groans and sighs and complaints of a languishing captive.

A Milwaukee man made three unsuccessful attempts to blow his brains out, and then his wife told him: "Don't try it again, John: you haven't got any." He goes about saying he owes his life to that woman.

The other day a Black Hills stage-driver under-took to horsewhip his passengers into getting out and pushing up hill, but the gold-seekers held a coroner's inquest and found that he died of pneumonia.

THE UNDERSIGNED WOULD RESPECTFULLY thank the citizens of Albany and vicinity for the liberal patronage bestowed on him for the past seven years, and hopes for the future a continuation of their favors. For the accommodation of transient customers, and friends in the upper part of town, he has opened a neat little shop next door to Taylor Bros. Saloon, where a good workman will always be in attendance to wait upon patrons.
