QUESTIONS TO ANSWER.

Every citizen should ask himself the question: Why should there be a change of policy on the part of the Government? Is there anything in the past or present record of the Democratic party to assure the country that a better state of affairs will exist under it management than at present? Does any sane man believe that our credit will be improved, our currency increased in value, and our prosperity as a people assured by a Democratic victory? On the contrary, are there not good reasons to believe that a Democratic victory would lead to a national ealamity?

GOVERNMENT CREDIT.

James Buchavan was the last of the long series of Democratic Presidents. During his administration a loan of twenty millions was effected, on a considerable portion of which twelve per cent, interest per annum was paid. General Grant is the second Republican President, and, in the last few months, during the very time the Democrats were howling about the danger of bankruptcy to the Government, of the terrible depression in business owing to Republican rule or misrule, a loan has been effected by the Administration of a large sum, on which only four and a half per cent, interest is paid. So much for a Democratic financial administration and a Republican one.

 $\begin{array}{cccc} THLDEN & WORSE & THAN & AARON \\ BURR. \end{array}$

Some weeks since Demas Barnes, editor of the Brooklyn Argus, a Demopratic paper, wrote a letter to the Ohio State Journal denouncing Tilden as a Democratic candidate. Democrats pronounced the letter a fraud, and Lewis C. Mead, of Ovid, Michigan, wrote Mr. Barnes asking him if he wrote the letter in question, and if he knew positively that the charges against Tilden were true. Mr. Barnes replies that he wrote the letter, and that the charges are true. He regards Mr. Tilden's anticedents as worse than those of Aaron Burr, or those of any man who ever before sought such high office in this country. He prenounces Governor takes no interest in the melody of Tilden corrupt, ambitious, unscrupulous, "Home, Sweet Home." His name is and despotie.

BE CAREFUL HOW YOU VOTE.

Information of an apparently reliable character reaches us, says the Oregonian, that the Democratic managers have determined to get up a laage number of name of one of the Democratic candidates for elector substituted for one of that of Mr. Williams on others. These tickets are to be varied, so as to take away a few votes from each of the Republican electors, and a few from Wildates. Ot course the only votes they would thus get away from the Republicans would be such as might be secured through the carelessness of the voters in examining their tickets. The number would be comparatively small, but it might be sufficient to affect the result. Every Republican voter should be on his gnard on election day, and see to it that his ticket contains the names of J. W. Watts, J. C. Cartwright, and W. H. Odell for electors,

VOLE BEFORE BUSINESS.

Vote first, transact your business atterwards. It is all important that every Republican vote should be polled. The citizen ought not to consult personal convenience when such great issues are pressing er gagements until your vote is cast. Many business men will 'say, "Oh, I will vote when I return in the evening." It may be too late, the one vote needed may remain uncast, and the cause of freedom may suffer a great injury. Others may say, "One vote will not be missed; I will enjoy pleasure and let the pol's go." This is dangerous in the extreme; a landred or a thousand may be thinking the same, and the aggregate of votes lost over whelms the ticket. Vote first. Let nothing interfere with this sacred right, BIG THING FOR GRANT.

The quandary here still is as to whether the old gent meant that, as a Major General he would have played into the hands of the Confederaces so that they might have destroyed the Union; or whether he simply meant that he was so much the superior of Grant, as a military man, that he would have fi-led Grant's this great Nation !!! DENIES HIS RECORD.

Gen. Jo Lane made a harrangne at The Mississippi plan of electioneering | the Court House in this city on Saturday last. In that harrangue he denied that he was ever a secessionist or a sympathiser with secession. In his place on the floor of the U. S. Senate on the 2d day of March, 1861, Jo. The doctrines asserted in the series of been maintained, and as a consequence events have since transpired detrimental to the public peace and the welfare of the country and destructive of its unity. The Union has been in fact broken up. * * * I stated on a former occasion that the Democracy of old Connecticut would never join the Republican party in any attempt to corree the Southern States. * * * know long, well and intimately, the gallant men of Oregon—that they will not be found ready or inclined, at the Senator's and his master's beck, to imbrue their hands for a golless cause, in fraternal gore, * * * Mr. President, in my remarks which I made on the 19th of December last, in reply to the Senator from Tennessee, I took the ground that a State might rightfully secode from the Union. * * * Coercion is usurpation and tyranny. * * * As a Democrat I am bound to respect the declared will of the sovereign States, * * * They would at least refrain from ungenerous in-sinuations against the patriotism of those Northern Democrats who, like myself reprobate the policy of coercion. * * * And yet upon this floor there are men base enough to allude to him as a traitor.
