JOB PRINTING.
SILVER SPRINGS.—The discovery of some singular springs in the Crooked River country, some of the substance from which has been assayed, and is reported rich in silver, is making some considerable talk among the adventurous and speculative portion of community. We examined some of this material the other day, at the store of P. C. Harper & Co., who had it on exhibition, and must say it was the last substance in the world in which we should look for mineral wealth. It has much the appearance of ordinary soft soap, though as taken from the springs is about of the consistency of butter-milk. We understand that on Monday last a letter was received from Mr. Cowan, who is now in the vicinity of the springs, which reports a recent assay as yielding $450 per ton. The first assay, which was made at Portland some weeks ago, is represented to have yielded $800 to the ton. From the Oregonian of the 11th inst we clip the following:
"Mr. W. S. Pummer, of East Portland, returned last evening from the newly discovered mineral springs in Eastern Oregon. In company with other parties, Mr.
Pummer left Portland on Monday of last week, and traveling day and night, reached the springs on the Thursday evening following. He informs us that the alleged original discoverers are now in possession of the claim, and that all it is quiet there.
The claim taken by them embraces 57 of the wells or springs, and some of these are 100 feet across. The metal or liquid substance which they furnish is, as Plummer describes it, like thick butter-milk, with a slight bluish tinge, and of a little less destity than water. When an animal falls into one it never rises to the surface. The substance is abundant, and it is as rich as that was reported to have been which was assayed. There is enough of silver there to pay the national and rebel war claim, to the cotton claims and make all the Oregon millionaires. Mr. Pummer says there is millions of tons of it. He brought some with him, and it will be thoroughly tested by competent assayers and its value perhaps settled."

THE PRESIDENT ON THE SITUATION.
The New York Herald on the 12th, has the following interview with President Grant at Washington: Upon being asked what his solution was of the present situation, he said:
"Everything now depends upon a fair count." The charges of corruption and fraud, made against the Republicans by their political opponents was then discussed, and he said politicians in the South may investigate all sorts of atrocities, and even be parties to them, to the extent of committing murder, and notwithstanding such is said or thought about it.
But when fairness in elections, according to the law of the land is insisted upon, a charge of unfairness is made and there is a great deal of unfairness. He went on to say that in order to be satisfied, as well as to have a similar conviction carried to the minds of the American people, that there would be a fair count of the vote for electors in Louisiana, he had made up his mind some days since to invite to go to Louisiana public men of responsible character and respectability, whose opinions and judgment would carry conviction to the whole American people. Incidentally he remarked that the sending of troops into South Carolina and the Southern States had produced a good effect and had maintained peace. When the present trouble and condition of the public mind was referred to, he said he did not anticipate any trouble if proper precautions were taken in time. All that a rupture of the peace needed for its prevention was firmness, promptness, and decision, as well as having force enough at command to nip it in the bud. Here the President for a moment reviewed an important epoch in our national history, in the case of Buchanan in 1861. He said, if a temporary, vacillating and undecided policy had not been followed there would not have been the civil war and its disasters. At one time, had he acted with decision, he might have stopped the whole thing with a brigade of troops, but he waited until the magnitude of the disturbance had got past his control.

"Do you anticipate trouble in the South, Mr. President?" I asked.
"Oh no," he replied with a smile, "I have made it a rule throughout never to anticipate trouble. I never look for it until it comes; but I believe in being prepared for it and having the means at command to check it."
It is evident the ebullience of the South has a different man from old Buchanan to deal with now.

MANUFACTURING DEMOCRATIC MAJORITY.
A dispatch of the 14th says: It has been an anxious day in Washington.
Members of the Cabinet have been in session or individual conference during much of the day. They had dispatched from leading civil and military officers an important item of news is that in South Carolina, comes along the Georgia border and in what is called the up-hill country there have been several desperate attempts to seize the ballot-boxes and destroy them. There is information that several ballot-boxes have been broken up in Florida, and that couriers have been interfered with, but it is thought a great majority of returns are in safe hands and carefully guarded.
There are intimations of a purpose to use money with the canvassing board in the interest of the Democrats both in Florida and Louisiana.

Another telegram to the New York Times, of the same date from Petersburg, Va., says, 7,700 Republican votes were thrown out in the Fourth Congressional district. This was done in open and gross violation of State law by election officers appointed by Democratic judges. Unusual care was taken to draw their attention to special law providing for such cases; but in defiance of it, particularly in Nolawa.
Advices have been received of torrible efforts in several quarters to prevent returns reaching central stations and in South Carolina of a movement to take possession and prevent the count in case the Republicans do succeed in getting the returns all in.

Several important orders have been issued by the President, all looking to the protection of ballot-boxes and those having them in charge, until a full and fair count shall have been completed. These orders are as explicit as it is possible to make them, to the end that a fair count of all legal votes may be had without regard to party result. Sherman will at once proceed to the South and make his headquarters at New Orleans. The information from Florida is that enough of the returns are safe in the hands of the proper counting officers to place the result in that State beyond all contingencies of interference of Ku Klux. In South Carolina, certain returns which White Lifers had planned to capture were saved by strategy, and are now in the hands of the returning board of canvassers. There is a suspicious delay in some of the returns from some of the remote Republican districts. Prominent Democrats in South Carolina are conceding that the electoral vote is for Hayes. The main object of the intention to tamper with the returns is evidently to secure the election of Hampton.

Pacific Slopers.
Lafayette boasts of its pretty girls.
The smallpox has disappeared from Eugene.
Cooks county raised lots of potatoes this season.
They have a skating rink well patronized at Corvallis.
Deer Creek has been made almost navigable by the late rains.
Mr. A. D. Alderman, of Dayton, has erected a fruit dryer on his farm.
A little child of F. T. Keys, of Lafayette, was badly burned last week.
A grand excursion from McMinnville is contemplated on the completion of the new boat.
Advices from Yamhill county say there will be more grain sown there this Fall than ever before.
Mr. Thoma of North Yamhill raised 98 bushel of wheat from one acre of land this harvest.
A young lady of Forest Grove took a dose of strychnine one day last week.
She didn't shuffle off.
Rev. Norton, an Adventist, preached at Lafayette last Sunday, that the Judgment Day is near at hand.
Mr. A. Mixer, of Marshfield, cut his foot with an ax.
The farmers of Grand Ronde valley are seeding heavily.
Ross & Wortman, of Oregon City, have dissolved partnership.
Not a single disturbance reported at Oregon City on election day.
The Henryville and Uter City school districts have been closed.
The new schooner launched at Gardiner, Coos Bay, is named R. B. Hayes.
Mr. J. T. Hunt, of Marshfield, got too close to a saw one day last week.
He has one arm now.
The steamer active went ashore at Light House Point and is very likely to prove a total loss.
W. P. Canaway, of Polk county, is clerk for the Canal Commissioners at a salary of $1,500 per annum.
Major Brown has been appointed agent of the Phoenix Fire Insurance Company in Coos county.
Anxiety is felt for the safety of the brig Sheet Anchor, which sailed with the unfortunate Perpetua.
John Brown, a petit larceny thief, broke into the Western Hotel at Marshfield, and stole a $150 check.
The State warrant, stolen from the county Treasurer at Coos, has been found, materially lessening the loss.
Another department has been added to the summary at Oregon City to accommodate the increased attendance.
The machinery and boiler have been taken from the Bonanza and the bullied to the bank below Freet Island.
James A. Hones, who took a drove of cattle to Nevada last spring, has returned to his home in Union county.
There are one hundred men and firms in Clackamas county, who pay taxes over $150 and as high as $1,515 60 into the county treasury.
Hugh McCauley, of Lane county, was bound over to appear before the next grand jury for obtaining money under false pretences.
Mr. Joe Keeny, Division Agent of the N. W. Stage Co. is recovering from the effects of a broken leg. He has been removed to Pendleton.

The Norwich Bulletin says cider is so cheap this year that the farmers are paying people fifty cents a barrel to drink it, and able bodied men are making from $1 to $2 a day at this rate.
A poor boy, seeking for employment in a Chicago telegraph office, finally asked to be hired as a telegraph pole.
It was no use—every post was full.

Flour sells at $2 30 in Lake county.

What a Bull's-eye Shot Means.
There are plenty of incidental disturances. If the wind is blowing down the range the bullet is lifted along, and with a flatter trajectory or greater speed, would slip over the top of the target. Down comes the elevation ten, twenty, or thirty inches, and bull's eyes are made. If the wind is varying, each shot must be fired from the lesson of the last and the changes in the meantime. If the wind is blowing up the range the bullets are retarded and drop to the ground before the target. In the case of a left side wind, the sight is moved right or left to throw the muzzle of the rifle against the wind. The grooving of the rifle may give the swift revolving leaden bolts a natural "drift" to the right. This is a permanent variation and may be corrected; but the wind rises and falls, and to gauge it is a vernier similar to that on the near upright sight permits a lateral motion.
One one hundredth here corresponds to a change of twenty inches on the target, and it is no frequent thing to have a marksman using fifteen "points of wind," or, in other words, actually pointing the muzzle of the gun twenty-five or more feet away from the bull's eye. Given a "fish tail," wind partly up or down the range and partly across, and variable in strength as well, and some idea may be gotten of the perplexity which surrounds a good judge of the wind. Some days the pressure of the air is greater than on others, and this must be allowed for. A hot sun pouring down upon a damp range rises a shimmer of mist which gives the whole target a dancing look, precisely as one would see an object across the room when looking over a hot stove.
This is perplexing. The variation of light and shade seem to lift or depress the target center. Heat and cold affects the gun metal and depress or elevates the flying bullet. But before these matters are attended to the rifle man must be sure of his weapon, confident of its accuracy; his powder must possess the same strength each a d every day, and from charge to charge the bullets must be without air holes, without dent or scratch, of the same hardness of metal and accurately shaped.
The rifle must be uniformly clean from shot to shot. And then, when the man has mastered all these items, and can hold his rifle true to the little bul-bule of the spirit gauge that rests across the barrel between the front and rear sights; can hold it with a vice like grasp, can depress for a moment all motion and hold his head as steady as a rock, and pull off three pounds of resistance of the trigger and care not at all for the 200 pound kick which the rifle gives, then, if he has not mis-judged in any particular, may be hope to see the rising of the white disk over the black bull's face.—N. Y.
World.

DANGER OF RUSHING THINGS.
The officer at the hearing was about to add the charge of vagrancy, said the Reading (Pennsylvania) Eagle, when the prisoner said:
"Hold on, hold on, don't you go that far. I've been a citizen of Reading twenty-five years, and am no vagrant."
The officer then testified that for the past five years he had picked the prisoner out of the gutter-time and again, and that he believed the prisoner was out of work and had no regular home.
"Hold on, hold on; that'll do; don't go any further," said the man.
"Well if you're a vagrant," said the mayor, "we might send you up for thirty days. Has he got any money to pay his fine, chief?"
"Eighty cents," said the chief.
"That is not enough," continued the mayor, "and I guess we'll have to—"
"Hold on, hold on, your honor," said the prisoner, "don't be in too much of a hurry. Don't be too sudden about this thing. We'll see about the eighty cents."
The man then stuck his left hand under his vest and drew out a roll of greenbacks as thick as his wrist.
"What do you call this?" said he,
"does that look tramp or vagrant like?
Guess not! how much is my fine?" and he unrolled the bills, took out a dollar and a quarter, paid it over and put the rest in his pocket. He was then discharged. In going out he said:
"Always remember to hold on a bit.
Don't rush things." He smiled good, naturally and departed.
