PROSTENOUSOn Monday last the second term of the collegiate year of Alba- ny Collegiate Institute commenced. Pre- fessor Powell and his assistants were most agreeably surprised to find upwards of thirty new scholars on hand for the winter term. This is the most flattering testimo- nial the Professors of the Institute could wish for. The prosperity which is now enjoyed by the school, should stimulate those having a supervision over it to secure the necessary endowments which will as- sume its permanency and progress, and uake it a power for good in the land. Our notice, on the first page, of the death of Mr. Douthitt is an error as to the date of his death. It should be October 23th. We relied on the Bibalous Adventiser for that matter, but we should have known better than to rely upon it even for two figures. It is always wrong.
