THE GROWTH OF OREGON.

Extracts from the biennial official reports recently submitted to the Oregon Legislature go to show a development of business interests in the State during the past two years, which, to say the least, indicate a spirit of enterprise that must, in time, bring the State forward to no mean degree of prominence in the commercial world, And a feature of special note is that the development has not been caused by artificial stimulus in any branch of trade, but in the gradual and steady growth, as only can be in an agricultural country. At the close of the fiscal year there was under cultivation 595,-629 acres of land, on which was probushels of wheat, 2,083,000 bushels of oats, 289,708 of barley, 117,363 of rye, 86,728 of corn, 28,187 lbs tobacco, 1,-175,254 bushels of apples, and 527,829 of potatoes. Comparing these figures with the bureau of statistics returns, we find an increase as compared with 1870, 2,910,360 bushels-over 100 per cent-in wheat, 93,177 do in oats, 70,-000 do in barley, 113,473 in rye, 24,000 in corn, 24,340 fbs in tobacco, and a proportionate increase in the minor farm products. Then of horses there is an increase of 24,264 and other live stock in proportion. Though the year was an unfavorable one to the marketing of wool, we find that the crop was greater than that of 1870 by nearly 785,000 pounds. Dairy products have been slow, as the market for them is limited at present. However, there was 137,-000 pounds more butter made than in 1870, and 117,561 pounds more of cheese. The Columbia river fisheries yielded 4,818 barrels and 80,000 cases of salmon during the year, the value of exports of which is placed at $2,000,000 at least. The assessed value of all property is placed at $41,436,086, as against $22,352,989 in 1870. The population in 1875 was 104,620 whites and about 16,000 Indians and Chinese. This shows an increase of white population during the past five years of

In his interview with Gov. Tilden, Gov. Hendricks said public sentiment in the Western States in regard to the election was so strong he was impelled to come East to ascertain the condition of public feeling here. He expressed his admiration of the conduct of Southern Democrats, who, without manifestations of turbulence, had applied everywhere to the courts, and was glad, both in the West and on his journey hitherward, to notice the disposition of all parties to have matters amicably and lawfully sottled. He felt that their cause was just and would ultimately triumph by the will of the American people. Gov. Tilden fully concurred with all of Gov. Hendricks' remarks, and there appeared to be a perfect accord of ideas in regard to the questions of the hour. Jes so.

THE GREAT AGONY. The one prevailing topic in the city now, is, "who is to be President?" the Republicans are smilingly confident and the Democracy are as ugly and waspish as they can be. THE VALUE OF AN OATH,

BY JUDGE CLARK.

It was an unpopular case to defend, The crime charged against my client was one of shocking atrocity, the mur-der of his own child. The popular verdict had already condemned him, and there was little doubt but that of the jury would go the same way.

Arthur Berkley, the prisoner, had married Edith Granger, a wealthy beiress whose father had died, leaving her his whole fortune, to the exclusion of a profligate son whom he had disinherited and driven from his home.

Mrs. Berkley died within a year after marriage, leaving an infant a few weeks old, a feeble little creature, requiring constant and assiduous care. Indeed, Dr. Baldwin almost took up his quarters in the house, often passing the night there, that he might be at hand in case of need.

One of these nights, the doctor, as he afterwards stated in his evidence, atter retiring to bed, feeling solicitons about his nittle charge, got up and stole sultly to the nursery to see that everything was right.

He found the door ajar and a dim light burning within. As he advanced, he distinctly saw Arthur Berkley standing by the tab'e, holding to the child's month the bottle from which it was accustomed to receive its food. At the sound of the doctor's footsteps, he quickly put down the bottle, and stealthily left the apartment by a side en-

Not a little surprised at these movements, the doctor approached and laid his hand upon the child's face, which he found in violent convulsions, which stillness et death.

A post mortem examination, and analysis of the contents of the stomach, placed it beyond doubt that prussic acid had been administered. And an examination of the bottle, found where Among the betting men, and their Berkley had left it, proved that the milk in it contained a large quantity of the same deadly poison,

On this evidence Berkley was arrested and indicted for murder; and there was not a dissenting voice as to his guilt. An incentive to the crime was found in the fact that, as here to his which had descended to the latter through the death of its mother. No wonder a deed so monstrous, actuated by motives so mercenary, should excite the deepest in figuration.

Berkley's previous character had been good. He had always appeared gentle and kind; had been a devoted of its life, had shown the tenderest attachment to his child.

In my conference with him, he seemed overwhelmed with grief, but strenuously denied all imputations of guilt, asserting that he had not gone to the nursery after retiring that night, till called by the alarm of the child's death. Of course, his sentiments, in the face of proofs so damaging, weighed but lit-tle. I had no confidence in them myself, Still, it was my professional duty to see that a man on trial for his life, who had entrusted me with his cause, had every right the law accorded him. This duty performed, my conscience would be clear whatever the result.

It would be tedious to dwell on the steps preceding the trial. I interposed no obstacles in its coming on speedily My aim was not to thwart the ends of justice, but to see it fairly meted out.

Dr. Baldwin was the first and chief witness. He told his story clearly and methodically; and it was easy to see it carried conviction to the jury. My rigid cross-examination only served to bring out his evidence with much more distinctness of detail. I elicited the fact, for instance, that the child's nurse lay in the same room; that she was asleep when the doctor entered, and that it was to her he first announced That the reckless impiety of the talent. vorite. My client's life hung on the answer to the next question! The silence of the court-room was death-like. I dreaded to break it. The sound of my voice startled me when I spoke. "Who was it ?" I asked.

A Zenious Bible Student.

About three weeks ago a San Antoio father promised his ten-year old boy a dollar if he would learn by heart a chapter in the Bible. This morning the boy asked for the dollar, as he had carned the chapter, and the old gentlehusband; and, during the brief period man gave it to him, not without a suspicion, however, that the coming circus and something to do with his sudden industry in learning the chapter. So he inquired:

"I hope, Johnny, you don't intend to spend that dollar in going to that wicked circus. You are going to put it in the plate on Sunday for mi sionary purposes, ain't you, sonny ?" The boy burst into tears, and said huskily: "Why, Pa, you didn't think I'd spend money to go to a circus?" Whereupon there was a tableau like little George Washington and his hatchet. The old man cried out, "My noble boy," and wrappeed his arms several times around Johnny, who blubbered like he had not a friend left.

About ten minutes afterward, while on his way to see a dog fight, in the company of another boy, Johnny mentioned the occurrence, and said: "You can just bet your boots I'm not the hairpin to pay a dollar to get into the circus when I can crawl under the canvass, nor will the heathen ever get that dollar I learned psalms for, unless he can beat me playing euchre for it." That boy will be sent to the legislature yet unless his parents are careful. -San Antonio Herald.
