glances on the back of the book, and whirled face about in his chair.
 "Now, Mr. Maydock," said he, "we will talk business. I have consulted with my co-owners in the mining property I spoke of to you some days ago, and we have had an interview and an agreement with representative parties from the other side—the other side you will understand me to mean those owners who hold views of mine management with which we have not concurred. We are about equally divided as to sides, but the other side has what may be called possession. Our agreement is that while the other side shall continue their man in charge of the actual workings of the mine, our man shall keep the books, and act as auditor of all accounts. We, on our part, agree that the books shall be correctly kept, and be at all reasonable times open to investigation by the other side or their representative—and they agree that the working of and for the mine shall be done in a workmanlike, honest, and economical manner, and that the work and workings shall be at all reasonable times open to investigation by us or our representative. Do you understand the situation?"
 "I think I do."
 "Well, then, my co-owners have left it with me to choose a man for the place. Do you know anything about mining?"
 "Practically, nothing—by observation, somewhat."
 "Do you know anything about the disposition of—peculiarities, and temper of miners?"
 "Yes, sir."
 "From reading Pacific Slope mining stories?" asked Colonel Holten, throwing up his brows in interrogative wrinkles.
 "No, I have been down into the mines and associated with miners."
 "Very good—very good. That is better than reading the book and bathos of our long-tail literature. I only ask you these questions for the purpose of getting a foundation on which to say to you that your most difficult task will be in at once doing your duty to the mine which I have no doubt and avoiding, as far as possible, difficulties in contending with the prejudices of the resident people, who will withhold from you that I consider it a delicate and responsible position—one which will draw upon your original resources in grasping the situation. But I am, without more words, going to place you there; feeling satisfied," he added, good-humoredly, "upon Miss Alice Winans's theory, that your ancestors will hover about you, and see you through."
 "Have you any suggestions to make as to my action in the premises?"
 "No, sir. Go ahead—do right—succeed or fail on the federation of your own faculties, and," he added, "the blood of your ancestors."
 "Thank you."
 "There is the agreement on which your conduct is to be based; make a copy of it, which I will endorse as to its correctness; take the copy with you when you go here also is a letter directed to the incumbent, who, upon its presentation, will pass all books, papers, or accounts whatever into your hands. Here is an agreement with yourself which you are to sign, and sign, if the consideration for your services as therein written is satisfactory to you."
 Handing the papers to Norman, Colonel Holten wheeled about to his desk and went to work.
 Norman first read the agreement he was to sign, flushed with delight at the amount of salary named therein, and signed the paper. Then he went to work to study carefully the other agreement and copy the same. When he had finished he made some rustling noise, in gathering together and folding up his papers, which attracted the Colonel's attention. He placed his hand on the desk, and said to his desk, "is everything satisfactory?"
 "Perfectly."
 "I have no wish to hurry you, and there is no imperative call on you for a few days, but when do you desire to start?"
 "As soon as may be," answered Norman; "to-morrow, or the next day; but if you please, there is a matter I would like to talk a little with you about."
 "When?"
 "If you can spare the time."
 Holten immediately wheeled about from his desk, took off his glasses, whirled them around behind his thumb and finger, and said:
 "Well, sir, proceed."
 Then Norman told him of his row and his arrest. In the beginning of which he had, he stated, whirled his glasses around steadily at Norman, and rather frowned; but as Norman proceeded his face cleared up, then he smiled, and finally laughed outright, and asked:
 "Where is that damned stage driver?"
 "Now as Colonel Holten seldom used profanity, his expression may be taken and excused as a tribute of respect to Mr. Talman Reese."
 "He is in the city enjoying himself, and expects to appear before the Police Court to-day at 9 A. M.," said Norman.
 "That must not be," said Colonel Holten; "I'll fix that."
 "Thank you," said Norman.
 "I'll fix that," Colonel Holten repeated, emphatically. "I can not say that I do not admire your conduct in this case, Mr. Maydock. In fact, if I had a son I should feel proud to have him do exactly as you have done. I have been much as you will see, in all conflicts with lawless and respectable persons where the conflict is liable to involve any member of the honorable ladies in our Police Court. Nothing but unavoidable necessity should lead to such a state of things—that is to say, unless our better people will join with me in a strike to close the streets, by following your example."
 "I think it could be done," said Norman finally.
 "No doubt. But San Francisco is an indulgent mother to her erring children."
 "Well, then," said Norman, "your assurance as to the matter in the Police Court to-day leaves me nothing more to attend to, except," and here he drew twenty-five dollars from his pocket, "that when you go to the Police Court, you would have this given to the proper officer, to be by him handed to Mr. Reese, in lieu of what that gentleman has left on deposit as bail money. I desire this done, let the will of the court be what it may, because Mr. Reese is a gallant fellow—or, as he expresses it, he has the word—and is in no way at fault for my indiscretion."
 "I'll attend to him," said Colonel Holten, "put your money in your pocket."
 "Thank you, but pardon me when I suggest that he will not take any money unless he thinks there is a full acquittal."
 "There shall be no acquittal about it. There shall be a discharge of the Police Court. It is there is a magistrate in this State who will hold a man for pillaging bloodhounds who invent innocent women. I would like to see him, and the Colonel, with a touch of indignation in his tone. Colonel Holten then looked at his watch, rose to his feet, and added, "I must look after the dogs to-day in time to get to the breakfast hour. I will go to hurry things a little. If you think of anything you need to have, or to know, which I can assist you to, inform me of it," and he passed out into the hall.
 Among other things said at breakfast, Mrs. Holten remarked:
 "I am informed that you are going to be a miner, Mr. Maydock."
 "Do you think you will like it?"
 "I will try to like it."
 "You are not going down into the mine to work?" said J. Edith.
 "If I had be, Miss Holten."
 "Surely," said Alice, "a knight will go where duty calls."

Albany Register.
 ALBANY, OREGON, JULY 23, 1880.
LOCAL MATTERS.

Job Printing.
 We shall receive this week a fine lot of new job printing material, and will hereafter pay particular attention to executing fine work in the way of bill and letter heads, cards, circulars, handbills, etc. In the course of a few weeks at farthest we expect to receive a new power press, which will enable us to enlarge the REGISTER two or three columns on each page. With the new volume (thirteen), commencing in September, we expect to do a new dress. The REGISTER office will soon be as complete as any in the State, and the paper will continue to be the boss paper in the valley.

Donation Party.
 On Tuesday night, the friends of Rev. Mr. Harris, in large numbers, called at his residence, where, of course, they were duly entertained, and a pleasant evening spent. They presented quite a number of useful articles in the shape of apparel, etc., to the Rev. gentleman and family, together with about $180 in cash. It was deserved.

The Premium Thresher.
 Among threshing machines the "Minnesota Chief" is boss. For finish, durability, power, and above all for good, rapid, clean work it has no superior, as the many premiums awarded it at the fairs wherever exhibited conclusively proves, as well as testimonials from thousands of farmers who have used it all over the world further attest. It took the sweepstakes premium at the late Oregon State Fair over the field. For sale by Messrs. Rook & Simpson, Albany, Oregon.

Four Vacancies to Fill.
 There are four vacancies in the scholarships for Linn county at the State University at Eugene City. Any one desirous of obtaining a scholarship in this county must apply in writing to Prof. Gilbert, County School Superintendent. The fall term commences, we believe, in September; therefore application should be made at once.
 Prof. E. F. Sox, of this city, is authorized to examine applicants for Teachers Certificates.

Nine Cows for Sale—A Bargain.
 Mr. J. M. Beach offers for sale at his ranch six miles east of Harrisburg, nine good milk cows, six of them having calved last spring. They have been carefully handled by Mr. Marian Huston, and are in good condition. He will sell the whole lot for the small sum of $150, payable to Smith & Brasfield, at Harrisburg. The cattle can be seen at Mr. Beach's ranch, upon which Mr. Huston now resides. This is a bargain for some one.

An Accident.
 On Monday Capt. N. B. Humphrey met with an accident that came pretty near causing a vacancy in the State Senate from Benton county, and just before reaching this city, the front axle of the vehicle in which he was riding broke, and let the vehicle down suddenly. This frightened the team and they proceeded to drag Capt. H., who held on to the lines and eventually succeeded in stopping them. The Captain's arm was bruised considerably, and he was otherwise shook up.

Cistern Contract Awarded.
 On Tuesday evening, Mr. Scott, Chief of the A. F. D., at the Council chamber, met the committee of the Council on Fire and Water, when they proceeded to open the bids received in accordance with the advertisement of the City Recorder, for arching the cistern at the intersection of Second and Broadbald streets. The following bids were received:
 B. W. Cunniff $109.00
 Clark & Davis 76.00
 The bid of Clark & Davis being the lowest by $33, the contract was given to them. They are to complete the cistern in a workmanlike manner, enclosing it with an iron top similar to the other cisterns belonging to the city, the work to be completed by the 7th of August next.

Ochoco Dates.
 Curt Price arrived at his home in this city the first of the week. He came through from Ochoco with his team, and reports twelve miles of somewhat soft snow in the mountains, exceedingly difficult of passage. One party whom he passed on the road was four days making the twelve miles with a sled. Owing to the cold, backward spring, the crops in Ochoco will be light. To make recompense for the failure in cereals, however, the grass crop will be abundant and heavy. Cattle are in fine condition, and the country generally prosperous. Ed. Freeland is better acquainted with the valley than is visiting the valley this fall. Johnny Schmeier has built a brewery in Prineville and is making it pay. Abe Hackleman and family are in good health—they will return this fall. Also, James Elkins has had good luck with his stock, is in good spirits, and proposes to return to his family and friends in this city late this fall. The people generally out there are healthy and prosperous, and the country is gradually filling up with a desirable population, who are developing its varied resources, and making comfortable homes.

Religion Services.
 Rev. J. R. Wellwood, will hold divine services in St. Peter's Episcopal Church next Sunday, July 25th, morning and evening.
 The fourth quarterly meeting for the M. E. Church of this city will be held next Saturday and Sunday week—31st inst. and August 1st.
 Y. P. C. A.
 At the meeting of the Y. P. C. A. on Wednesday evening next, the subject will be from the last three verses in the twelfth chapter of Romans.

Wool Steals.
 Last week some wool, 602 pounds, the property of Mr. George F. Simpson, was stolen from the Monteith wharf. When the absence of the wool sacks became known, it was believed that the boat had loaded them on through a mistake, and word was telegraphed to the agent at Portland to look out for the wool; but when the agent telegraphed back that no freight marked as described had been received. Immediate steps were taken to discover its whereabouts. It was learned that two skiffs had been taken from this vicinity on Wednesday night of last week, one of them, a red skiff, belonging to John Riley, the other a white skiff, belonging to Bob Taylor, and it is believed that on these boats the stolen wool was carried off. Parties were sent below on Thursday, but failed to secure the thieves. Saturday, Mr. Simpson himself secured a skiff and went down the river as far as Salem, hearing of the boats occasionally as having passed down the river on Wednesday. This is the most daring theft that has occurred hereabouts for a number of years. Old residents will remember the last daring robbery, which occurred some eighteen or twenty years ago, when a whole pen full of fat hogs, numbering probably twenty, were taken from the pen and driven off down the river, and neither the thieves or the hogs were ever discovered. We hope, however, that in the case of the wool steal, the thieves may be discovered and made to pay the penalty of their crime. The wool cost some $130.

Brownsville Dates.
 BROWNVILLE, OR., July 21, 1880.
 ED. REGISTER:—The weather here now is comfortable, but last week was a scorcher for Oregon, making one think of old times in California.
 Dr. Starr is improving, and has rented Wm. Cochran's house, and is going to have his sister from Salem keep house for him.
 The grain crop here promises heavy, and the farmers are having their headers and harvesters repaired ready to go to work harvesting. We hear of some intending to commence cutting next week.
 Thos. Crawford, Esq., of Portland, is in town, visiting his folks here.
 Wilbur Liggett, foreman of the Seattle Post, is here on a visit to his home. He reports everything flourishing in Seattle.
 Robt. Sanders is fitting in a fine bath room in connection with his barber shop. The new city scales are finished up in good shape, so come on with your large loads of hay, and your fine stock to be weighed.
 Stock of all kinds here is rolling fat, and our meat market can show as fine beef as any in the State.
 Large loads of wool are still coming to town from the railroad.
 The air looks blue and smoky all around us, making one think of Indian summer, though last night it was clear and cool, and the full moon shone brightly, making it nearly as light as day.
 Rebekah meeting last night, and quite a good turn out.
 A band of Gypsies were camped down by the river, not long since, but have folded their tents and silently moved away.
 Parties were here last week making arrangements for putting up warehouses on the line of the narrow gauge railroad, and from indications there will be several put up this fall. The Company will build them if parties here wish them to do so, and it is the intention to buy wheat here on a large scale this fall.
 NARROW GAUGE.

The Californian for August.
 The August issue of the Californian is a particularly strong one. Its contents are more than usually varied and interesting. Professor H. G. Hanks, the State Mineralogist, opens with an article on "Casa Grande," the celebrated ruin in Arizona. Professor Davidson contributes an able paper on the "Abusions of the Northwest Coast." A. W. Havens has a sketchy article on "Modern Archery," and John A. Wright has a thoughtful and powerfully written contribution on "Probable Change in American Government." A very readable article by Charles H. Shinn on "Future Gardens in California," an adventurous Nun," by Phillip Shirley; a well written and very humorous account of a "Trip into Sonora," by James Wyatt Oates, are among the attractions. In the way of stories, Miss Anna Alexander completes her charming serial, "St. Bartholomew;" Mr. W. C. Morrow has a short character study entitled "Rags, Sacks and Bottles;" and Helen Williams contributes a story, brim-full of laughter, entitled "Jack's Boys." Literary articles are furnished by John Vance Cheney and P. H. Reardon; while the poetry is contributed by Seidie E. Anderson, Carlotta Perry, and Charles H. Phelps. The usual departments are added, and the entire magazine is what it is claimed to be, "the cheapest and best magazine published." It is a credit to the Pacific Coast, and any family without it is behind the times. For sale at all book stores and news stands for twenty-five cents. Send yearly subscription ($3) to The Californian, 302 Sansome Street, San Francisco.

Paragrammets.
 Gen. Ojell took the road from this city across the Cascade mountains, on Saturday, for the Ochoco county, to finish his surveying contract there. He expects to finish up and return in about six weeks. He went a horseback and a lone.
 Parties arriving in this city last week, who came across the Cascades on the McKenzie route, report traveling still bad and weather hot. A good deal of snow in the mountains yet to melt and snow soft.
 Charley Harmon is reported as the father of twins. This makes our Deputy City Marshal a double grandfather, don't it?
 More iron received for the A. & L. railroad.
 Hon. Geo. E. Chamberlain was promoted last week. Another voter.
 The efforts to induce Rev. Mr. Crawford to remain as pastor of the Baptist Church of this city have proved successful, we are pleased to learn, and hereafter services at that church will be held as usual, by Mr. Crawford.
 Butter, eggs, fish, cranberries, salt, tobacco, cheese, candy, flour—in fact everything, at Haffenden Bros., plenty enough.
 Rev. W. C. Cantner, of the Evangelical Church, who for the last three years has been preaching at Corvallis, has been sent to this city to fill the pulpit; so long and faithfully filled by Rev. J. Bowersox. Bro. Bowersox goes to Corvallis.
 C. D. Simpson has purchased about 60,000 pounds of wool during the season, paying out therefor some sixteen thousand dollars, which will help to soften the asperity of hard times.
 Mill men and warehousemen are preparing to receive the immense grain harvest now nearly upon us. Linn will turn up not less than two million bushels of grain this season. Now let prices go up as high as they please, our farmers can stand it.
 First class brick now ready and for sale by B. W. Cunniff—and don't you forget it!

Work on Senders & Sternberg's new brick has commenced—that is, the cellar is being dug.
 Dr. O'Toole has gone to Clatsop beach. The Sheriff is busily engaged making out the delinquent tax list for the last two years.
 Geo. L. Sutherland and Miss Lizelle Carey were married at Seilo on Sunday, and four more weddings are on the tapis. Sodaville was visited by Seilo brass band and lady friends last Sunday.
 About two hundred persons are rustling at Sodaville.
 The new steamer Columbia has arrived at Portland.
 Three new dwellings and a livery stable in the course of erection in Seilo.
 The Willamette is now down to a reasonable stage.
 Sheriff sale at the Court House to-morrow.
 Weather warm and pleasant during the week.
 Mrs. Sadie Cunningham, a former resident of this city, died at Portland on the 19th of consumption. Her husband died of the same disease about a year ago.
 It is reported that Rev. Mr. Todd and others of Douglas county, have discovered a rich ledge of clnabar ore, about fourteen miles north of Oakland. Some excitement thereat.
 Farmers are hurrying their preparations for the coming harvest, now almost upon us. Some cutting will be done this week. The harvest promises to be the largest ever gathered in Linn county.
 Over one hundred thousand dollars has been paid out in this county to wool growers during the past three or four weeks.
 Hay harvest is on, and the yield is said to be unusually heavy and good.
 Rev. A. J. Hnasaker, late a resident of this city, was in Baker City during the races there on the 7th and 8th instants, delivering several sermons on the streets in front of the bank. A faithful minister.
 Rev. J. T. Wolfe, pastor of the M. E. Church, being out of health, went to Sodaville to enjoy the mountain breezes and pure water to be obtained there, on Tuesday. He will remain a couple of weeks.
 Mr. A. B. Colyer, of Prineville, has been in the city a few days, having come down to meet his wife who has been visiting in California. Mrs. Colyer arrived here the first of the week.
 Rev. J. L. Powell will fill the pulpit of the M. E. Church in this city during the absence of Rev. J. T. Wolfe.
 Mr. Spinks, wife and daughter were to start yesterday for Yaquina Bay. Pleasant trip and safe return, Perry.
 Mr. Johnson, of Seilo, was in the city on Tuesday.
 Misses Minnie Johnson, May McDonald and a crowd of joyful people start for the Bay in a short time.
 Wes. Baltimore and family go for a month in the mountains, starting next week.
 The water supply was short for a time last Sunday, resulting from a break in the ditch.
 Miss Angie McCulloch went to Harrisburg on a visit Wednesday.
 Since the establishment of water works in the city, a number of our citizens have secured movable fountains for their lawns and gardens.
 For bargains in millinery go to Mrs. G. Parrish.
 Spectacles for old and young, at F. M. French's.
 Mr. G. Parrish, who has been quite ill during the week, is convalescing.
 Watches, clocks and jewelry carefully repaired and warranted, at F. M. French's. Prices the lowest.
 Before starting for mountains or coast call at Haffenden's and get a supply of provisions—the choicest in the city.
 Rankin will soon finish the new Hook & Ladder house.
 The best machine oils are kept at the City Drug Store.
 F. M. Westfall is completing the new cellar for Senders & Sternberg's new brick.
 Mr. Ingram will commence pulling his fire next Monday.

Conn Bros. are to receive $1,576 18 Insurance on their mill property burned recently at Grassridge. They were insured for $1,800, but some of the property was saved.
 The following teachers have been employed by the School Directors of this district: E. F. Sox, principal; assistants, Mrs. W. M. Sox, Misses Hettie Miller, Roxa Alexander and Mary Gaston. Mr. Sox will receive $90 per month, and the assistants $50 each.
 Harvest hauls are reported scarce in this valley.
 Shall we have a county fair in September or October?
 James Foster, Jr., and Billy Mansfield have gone to Yaquina. Care for them tenderly, Pete—they are good boys.
 Last week Mr. D. Mansfield was elected Superintendent of the Albany Farmers' Co.'s warehouse in this city. As he had but a short time before been elected Secretary of the Company, he now fills the two most important and trustworth offices in the Company—and he's just the one that can do it, and do it well, and don't you forget it!
 The best kinds of coffee, ground an unground, roasted and green, at Haffenden's.
 Flax pulling will commence soon. Linn will turn out considerable list flax this season.
 Farmers who need bacon, beans, pickles, lard, syrup, salt, hams, canned fruit, honey, crackers or cheese, should call at Haffenden Bros., where they will always get a good article at low prices.
 Charles Haffenden returned from Yaquina Bay on Tuesday, much improved in health by his five weeks sojourn by the seaside.
 W. S. Newbury, of Portland, swapped wa-wa with us on Wednesday.
 Jay Blain and wife have gone to Astoria for a few days.
 Pete Williams is the handsome and obliging ad interim at L. E. Blain's.
 The M. E. Sunday School picnic across the river on Wednesday was enjoyed by the little ones.
 The hot sun of last week cooked a hundred gallons of raspberries for Hon. F. M. Wadsworth.
 Capt. N. B. Humphrey is slowly recovering from the bruises and smash up caused by breaking the front axle of a buggy on Monday.
 Extra chairs, tables, bedsteads, lounges, etc., needed for properly caring for harvest hands, can be obtained of James Dannals, the boss furniture man.
