Official City Paper.

ALBANY, FRIDAY, AUG. 20, 1880.

FOR PRESIDENT.

JAS. A. GARFIELD,

OF OHIO.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT.

Chester A. Arthur,

OF NEW YORK.

The crops in Germany are generally bad.

Prince Alexander, of Bulgaria, was thrown from his carriage on the 17th, and received serious injuries.

Miss Neilson died very suddenly at Paris last Saturday. Said to be dropsy of the heart.

Hon. Thos. H. Brents is likely to be renominated and elected Delegate to Congress from Washington Territory. Tom has made a splendid Delegate.

Henry Witzengerode respited by the Governor until to-day, was condemned to be hung on the 6th. He will probably be granted a new trial.

On the morning of the 17th a fire swept off the half of Eureka, California. Loss estimated at $1,000,000. It traveled over the same ground as the fire of a year ago.

The World says that the "first gun from the South is double shotted," meaning that the ballot boxes were stuffed twice in Alabama, when once was all that was necessary.

Gen. Walker now admits that some of the counties in South Carolina, since the census returns have been received, show "phenominal results." He admits it looks singular.

We are told that the Scotch Company offer to furnish all the sacks farmers may require in handling their grain, and store the same at reasonable rates. The Company will also pay the highest price for grain and other produce.

Whatever tends to injure Albany will in turn injure the balance of the county. It is much easier to tear down than to build up. Take the present capital out of this city, and it would make a material difference in the volume of business done in the county.

A short time ago a prominent Democrat was sitting in Squire Lauman's office, in Walla Walla, and speaking of the election, said: "I have always been a Democrat and always voted the straight ticket, but I gave my two sons an education and the d—— little cubs went and voted the Republican ticket.

William H. English, the complete type of the northern dough face, who never had any political views, except those of servile subjection to the South, was one of the twelve northern congressmen who voted against expelling Preston S. Brooks from the House for his assault on Charles Sumner, on the 22d of May, 1856.

We must have the road to Yaquina Bay. One way to get it is to throw a bridge across the Willamette that will answer for a railroad and wagon bridge, and invite the narrow gauge, or any other, to cross on it. If the matter is delayed too long, to retain our present trade and commerce will cost the price of several bridges.

The cotton crops of this country for 1878 and 1879 were the largest ever raised. The ten crops from 1852 to 1861, raised by slave labor, numbered 31,995,440 bales; the ten crops from 1870 to 1879, raised by free labor, numbered 41,454,743 bales.

The State Superintendent of Public Schools has called a convention of County Superintendents, at Salem on Monday next. On Wednesday at the same place, the State Teachers' Association convenes. There will be a large gathering, and the occasion will prove of unusual interest.

A railroad running six or eight miles north of us, carrying freights either to Portland and thence down the Columbia, or to Yaquina Bay, and not touching here at all, would cut off a large slice of business that we otherwise would get. A bridge across the river, if built now, would not only save this, but would increase the business brought to our door four-fold.

The narrow gauge running through Scio, Lebanon and Brownsville, taking in its course the richest of the grain-bearing portion of the county, will take from us a large amount of business heretofore done here. Warehouses will be erected by the Scotch Company along the line of the road wherever demanded, and trading points will spring up here and there, and business will be divided and sub-divided.

Two hundred thousand visitors were in Chicago in the front of the week to witness the gathering of the Knights Templar. On Tuesday there was a grand parade of the Knights through the city, no less than 20,000 members of the order being in the line of march. The houses and streets were gaily and even expensively decorated, and the struggle to see the parade was lively. Exhorbitant prices were paid by sight seers in many instances for available points where the grand pageant could be taken in.

Democratic Economy.

The Democratic party is always strong on economy. It is surprising what an amount of this virtue the party possesses, but it never manifests itself practically except when the party is out of power, and wishes to make political capital against its opponents. When the Democrats have the power and control the purse strings, their economy is confined to their show in the platform.

The late Democratic National Convention took this method of claiming their devotion to economy, and, after reciting the various causes for which it deserves the blessing of the country, gravely specifies the saving of $40,000,000, by the Congress that has been controlled by the Confederate brigadiers. The bold faced arrogance of the claim has challenged investigation as to its truth, and the Washington correspondent of the Cleveland Herald furnishes the following statistics which need no comment:

For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1871, the expenditure was $292,177,188 25; for 1872, $277,517,962 67; for 1873, $290,345,245 33; for 1874, $287,133,873 17; for 1875, $274,623,392 84, and for 1876, $258,459,797 33. Thus in five years an annual reduction in expenditures amounting to $33,717,300 92 have been accomplished under Republican management, and this, at the close of the war for which the Democratic party owes the country over $6,000,000,000, when there were naturally many expenses directly incidental to it.

Now we reach the era of the Brigadiers, and what is the result? Fiscal year ending June 30, 1877, $238,660,008 63; for 1878, $236,954,326 80; for 1879, $266,947,883 53; for 1880, $267,330,237 17, and for 1881 the amount appropriated is 291,423,888 90. For the present fiscal year the sum of $6,424,012 was appropriated, and next winter there is every indication that it will be even greater for the expenses of the year ending June 30, 1881. The amount in reason will then at least be, for 1881, $297,847,900 90. Thus the Democrats, after five years' manipulation of the Government Treasury, will have reached a figure $39,388,103 57 in government expense in excess of that of the last year of Republican rule. It is very near the amount named in the platform, but, unfortunately for the Democrats, the figures are on the other side of the page. It shows they have increased the cost of government to that amount instead of diminishing it.

The Barrel Organ Style.

The following is from that sober, staid, fair-minded and non-partisan paper, the New York Evening Post:

What are the paramount questions of the day? What are the opinions of the Democratic party on these questions? If the Democratic party should get control of the government what would it do about this, that and the other thing? These are not impertinent inquiries. They are entirely relevant, and they must be answered before the 2d of November if the intelligent and thinking voters are to be influenced. But we get no answers to them through the organs. Set never so mild an interrogation point before them and the reply comes screaming, "Credit Mobilier!" "DeGolyer!" The changes are rung, "Credit Mobilier—DeGolyer," "DeGolyer—Credit Mobilier," article after article, column after column, day after day, week after week until the patience even of men who try hard to believe the charges, is exhausted and they turn with rising nausea from the monotonous repetition.

It has been and still is a prevalent opinion among scientists that the denuding of forests affects the amount of rainfall. Prof. Daniel Draper of the meteorological service in New York does not subscribe to this theory, and is likely to be widely criticised in consequence. He has drawn up a chart showing the quantity of rainfall each year since 1835 in New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington. According to this, the rainfall gradually increased from 1835 to 1869 and has since shown a tendency to decrease. Prof. Draper believes there are cycles of rainfall as there are in sun-spots.

The time has come in the history of this city, when every man interested in its welfare must put his shoulder to the wheel, and help with all his might. The world is moving around us, and position, natural advantages, etc., are as nothing when brought into active competition with push, energy, resolution and brain backed by capital. "Get up and git," is the solution of all difficulties now-a-days. Now is the time to work—to-morrow it may be too late.

The Meridian, Mississippi, Mercury of July 31st, says: We would like to engrave a prophecy on stone to be read of generations in the future. The negroes in these States will be slaves again or cease to be. His sole refuge from extinction will be in slavery to the white man.

And this is the programme of the solid South: first get the reins of Government into their hands, and then overthrow the amendments to the Constitution, declare negroes slaves, and then parcel them out. This is to be accomplished, or the negro is to be exterminated. Is it any wonder that the black man, knowing this feeling to exist, is fleeing from the South?

It is given up on every hand that the Republicans will carry New York and Indiana with ease. Democrats are beginning to fear that the 1st man will not be able to carry the solid South. Even Missouri is doubtful and Georgia and Louisiana none too certain to cast their electoral vote for Hancock—with a fair vote and an honest count they certainly will give Garfield from 10,000 to 20,000 majority.

Reports say that Maine, where last year the Democrats and Greenbackers had a majority, is now going Republican by 7,500. The campaign is becoming very active all over the State. Republicans are making the greatest effort they have ever put forth. The election will take place on the 13th of September.

The best of news comes from Pennsylvania. Democrats are coming in by the scores and avowing their determination to vote for Garfield and Arthur. Pennsylvania will give an overwhelming majority for the Republican ticket.

Six men, while eating a watermelon in Falls county, Texas, suddenly died. Beware of Texas melons.

An Indiana woman gave birth to four children the other day. If the little darlings live, she may have a spanking good time before long.

Some of the democratic organs are saying that southern men like Lamar and Wade Hampton ought to make speeches throughout the northern states. Suppose they make such speeches throughout the north as Hampton made the other day in trying to reconcile the democratic factions in Virginia; that is, suppose they tell the country that the cause represented now by the democratic party embodies "the same principles for which Lee and Jackson fought for four years," and that it is now time to "remember the men who poured out their blood for the success of these principles." That would present the issue in the north just as these eminent democrats present it in the south. And it would probably be highly convincing.

Gen. Hancock, after giving the subject his profoundest study, informs us that "the bayonet is not a fit instrument for gathering ballots." We don't use 'em for that purpose much, in fact if we should set all our bayonets to work "gathering" ballots next fall, each bayonet of our little army of 25,000 would have to gather 5,000 in order to get around. Hence, as the bayonet hasn't been put to that use within Hancock's memory, why did he not think of a problem just as profound, that would be more appropriate to the occasion? Why did not our fat military friend give us his views of the utility of shotguns in planting ballots?

If in his reference to the bayonet, the corseted knight of Governor's Island intended to throw a brick at Johnny Davenport, he would have hit that wiry little trad walloper a lick between the eyes, if he had indicated his impression that a "free ballot" according to the meaning implied in the term as used in the Democratic platform, cannot be had so long as a satrap was permitted to examine your naturalization papers, or to put handcuffs on your wrists and throw you into a "hull pen" if you were caught voting more than once or twice on the same day. There was an interesting field for the profound intellect of Hancock to revel in, without going abroad for instances where "a bayonet" is used in "gathering ballots," and expressing his reluctant disapproval thereof.—Nebraska State Journal.

Very Good Sarcasm.

We venture to suggest to our esteemed contemporaries who may be in want of subjects of campaign investigation the Mulligan case, reported in the fourth volume of Wallace's supreme court reports. Mulligan as a "traitor" who was tried by a military commission during the war, but within the limits of the state of Indiana, and sentenced to be hanged. That he was a bad man and richly deserved hanging there can be little doubt, but there was a question whether a man could be legally sentenced by a military commission within a jurisdiction in which there were civil courts sitting for trial of crimes and felonies of all kinds. The matter was brought before the supreme court at Washington, and many able counsel appeared and made arguments, among others Gen. Garfield in favor of Mulligan. the case attracted much attention at the time, and the decision, which was that habeas corpus ought to issue, was generally regarded as a triumph for civil liberty. It brought to an end all trials by military commissions, and from that time (December, 1866) to this no Democrat has been hanged in the United States except after trial according to all the forms of law and a verdict by a jury. The wide-spread criminality prevailing among the Democrats made the decision of the utmost importance to them, and it is singular to reflect that, while it was through Gen. Hancock that Mrs. Surratt was hung, it was partly through the efforts of Gen. Garfield that the practice of hanging democrats by military commission was brought to an end.

Major General B. Grimes, of the confederate army, was shot and killed by some unknown person while riding near his home in Pitt county, North Carolina.

Accumulated Treasure.

The accumulation of coined silver in the Treasury and sub-Treasuries of the United States is so great that it is already very hard to find proper storage room for it. The vaults of the Government now contain seventy million dollars in silver coin, of this amount $45,500,000, are in dollars, and the remainder smaller pieces. The Government has also on hand five million dollars' worth of silver bullion. This amount of coin takes up a great deal of room. The bulk of the load is carried in San Francisco and New York. Notice has has been sent from San Francisco that the overcrowded vaults will hold no more. It is impossible to induce people to hold and use the silver as currency. It returns to the Treasury very soon after it has been paid out in payment of duties or in exchange for silver certificates, a great many of which are in circulation, and still the work of coining goes steadily on, in compliance with law, at the rate of $2,324,000 a month. This has been the average for the past twenty-seven months, the total for these months being nearly $63,000,000, three quarters of which remain in the Treasury.

We understand the boats are now carrying grain to Portland at one dollar per ton. This is in favor of Albany, as it is believed the railroad will not haul it for one dollar.

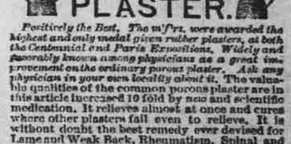
Neatly executed at this office.



Positively the Best. The w'ld'rs. were awarded the highest and only medal given rubber plasters, at both the Centennial and Paris Exposition. Widely and favorably known among physicians as a great improvement on the ordinary porous plaster. Ask any physician in your own locality about it. The valuable qualities of the common porous plaster are in this article increased 10 fold by new and scientific medication. It relieves almost at once and cures where other plasters fail even to relieve. It is without doubt the best remedy ever devised for Lame and Weak Back, Rheumatism, Spinal and Kidney Complaints and all local aches and pains. Avoid imitations. Sold by all Druggists. Price 25c.
