ALBANY, OREGON, AUG. 20, 1880.

LOCAL MATTERS.

Local.

The case of the State of Oregon vs. Pottinger & Barnes, criminal prosecution for libel, was heard before Justice of the Peace Haven, of West Albany precinct, on Friday last. Judges Strahan & Blyden for the State, Judges Powell & Blyden for the defense. The cause of action was an article which appeared in the local columns of defendant's paper, charging Jas. H. Linn, of the dry goods firm of Johnson & Linn, Scio, with striking or otherwise ill-treating Mrs. Brown, and driving her out of her store at Scio. The first witness for the State called was Mc Montell, who testified that Pottinger & Barnes were publishers of the Herald.

Jas. H. Linn called: I was waiting on Mrs. Phillips, and upon looking up I saw Mrs. Brown on the opposite side of the store, conversing with her son. I asked Mrs. Phillips to excuse me a moment, and walking across the store to where Mrs. Brown stood, I touched her on the right shoulder with my right hand, and as she turned her face toward me I stepped back and pointing with my left hand toward the front door of the store, ordered her to leave. Upon turning around she said: "Why, Mr. Linn." With my left hand still raised and pointing toward the door I again ordered her to leave the store. Mrs. Brown went out leisurely, and when she halted in her progress I repeated my demand for her to leave the store. As she passed toward the door, I followed to the end of the center counter, and then crossed the store to where I had been waiting on Mrs. Phillips; in the mean time Mrs. Brown passed out of the door of the store. On being cross questioned, Mr. Linn swore positively that he neither struck or pushed Mrs. Brown; that he merely laid the fingers of his right hand on her shoulder, her back being toward him, to draw her attention, and then ordered her to leave the store. He also swore that Mrs. Brown had not been in his store since he ordered her to leave, on the 17th day of July, and that to his knowledge she had not been in his store previous to that time for eighteen months or more.

W. W. Richardson called: His testimony corroborated Mr. Linn's. He swore positively that Mr. Linn did not strike or otherwise misuse Mrs. Brown; and he closely watched Linn during the whole time until he went back to his place and Mrs. Brown left the store.

Mrs. G. W. Phillips testified that Mr. Linn did not strike Mrs. Brown or push her with his fist, or maltreat her in any way; that she witnessed the whole affair, paying special attention throughout; she did not "think" or "guess," but was most positive in her answers.

P. H. Raymond testified that the papers containing the libelous article passed through the mails as usual, except that Judge Powell and some others did not get their numbers.

G. W. Johnson: Was in the store, saw the whole transaction, and was positive that Mr. Linn used no violence in any way; he ordered Mrs. Brown to leave the store, and she leisurely departed, doing more or less talking as she went out.

O. E. Holdrege, dentist: The evidence of this witness tallied with the others for the State; it was evident that no force was used in any way, that Mrs. Brown went out of the store without assistance of any kind.

The Court then retired to the residence of Judge D. R. N. Blackburn, where Mrs. Brown has been staying during her stay in the city, to take her evidence.

Mrs. J. J. Brown: I saw Mr. and Mrs. Richardson in the store when I went in. I had been in the store about five minutes when Mr. Linn came to me. I was talking to my son, John F. Brown, when Mr. Linn came up to me, took hold of my shoulders with his hands, and pulled me around, and asked me to leave the store. I did not recollect whether I was angry or not. I turned to leave the store. I had gone, I think, about ten feet towards the door, when Mr. Linn placed his left hand on my shoulder and I felt the blow on my left side. I first thought that he had struck me with a knife. I first felt a sort of tingling sensation. I stopped before I got to the door and spoke to Lizzie Brown, my daughter-in-law. She asked me: "How dare you speak to me; you have slandered and defamed me." I went out of the store, but I told Mr. Linn before I went out: "The reason you order me out of the store is because I ordered your wife (Mrs. Linn) out of my house. You can write to Camp Point for it." I went out of the store; got to the Scio hotel, about a block away, when I began to feel sick. I did not find any little girl at the hotel. I met Dr. Martin's little girl and went on over the bridge to Dr. Martin's house. I felt sick and dizzy when I got there; washed my face and felt better. For a half hour felt sick again; washed and felt better. The affair in the store took place on Saturday evening. I stayed all night (Saturday) at Dr. Martin's. On Sabbath went to Mr. Baldwin's, and stayed there until the following Friday. Went from there to Corvallis. I told my sister-in-law about Mr. Linn striking me; she was the first one I told about it. Came from Corvallis to Albany. I was hurt once before about six years ago, was thrown from a buggy. I told Mr. Kirkpatrick about the trouble; I also told my son, Z. M. Brown, about it after I became sick. I did not want my son to know it, for I was afraid there would be trouble.

David Kirkpatrick: Testified that Mrs. Brown had made a statement similar to the above to him; that he had known Mrs. Brown for twenty years, and that he believed what she said.

Judge D. R. N. Blackburn: Stated that Mrs. Brown, while stopping at his house, had told him that Mr. Linn had assaulted her, and claimed that her illness was caused by the treatment received at the hands of Mr. Linn; that Mrs. Brown was a sick woman, and that he understood Dr. Hill had said one of her ribs was broken.

Dr. J. L. Hill: Was called to see Mrs. Brown while at Judge Blackburn's; that she was ill; had been injured just below the shoulder-blade and in the short ribs; he couldn't say positively that a rib had been broken as he had never been able to make a critical examination; whenever he pressed against the rib it made Mrs. Brown sick.

Charles Johnson was called by the prosecution, but we did not hear his testimony.

The examination and pleadings occupied the time of Friday, and until late Saturday afternoon.

Judge Haven discharged the prisoners. He said the evidence was strong that Mr. Linn did not abuse Mrs. Brown at the time charged, but Mrs. Brown had been injured and had been very ill, and the prosecution had not shown that the hurts were received at any other time or place; therefore the evidence of the prosecution was not deemed by him sufficient to hold the prisoners and they were discharged.

NARROW GAUGE.

BROWNVILLE, Or., Aug. 18, 1880.

ED. REGISTER:—It seems the same with papers as with individuals, the weather is always a ready subject. It is splendid for harvesting operations, but the air is so thick with smoke that it seems to take the sun a long time to pierce through, and he looks like a huge red fire ball that had got loose from some other part of the heavens, and to a person any way superstitious it portends no good.

It is too early yet to learn much about the yield of wheat in this locality, but it is only fair to estimate an average crop, and it we had only had our usual June rains the crops must have been very heavy; but the weather has been so uncommonly dry that even the hop crop that promised to be unprecedently large is hardly going to come up to last year.

Walt, Jack is having a porch built over his house, and Mr. Croft has got his finished and it looks neat and tasty.

The saw mill had shut down till after harvest, but is busy part of the time sawing log material for the railroad, and to-day it is to commence sawing out the lumber for a depot and warehouse.

Charley Ellswick is improving, as is also Dick Warren; he has just been moved to Peter Hume's house.

J. M. Moyer and family, and Jas. Keeny and family start for Yaquina to-day, to enjoy the cool air of the Pacific.

The great cry here now is for more men and teams. There is not an idle man or mule here at present.

Operations on the railroad are progressing very well, considering the limited amount of help they have got. The graders are about two miles from here at present, and last Saturday evening 60 Chinamen arrived on the works and the contractor hires every team that comes along.

Owing to some little misunderstanding with the Co., the parties here who had intended building a warehouse have backed out, and the Company intend to put one up.

The bill is made out and operations are to commence to-morrow putting it up, and from all indications the road is bound to be completed this fall in time to carry part of the grain crop, and Mr. Hanson has opened a street through between his house and Mr. E. Thompson's, so that teams can get down to the depot grounds without any more opening gates, and by the time my next letter leaves here, the depot building, will in all probability, be well under way.

Lebanon Notes.

LEBANON, Aug. 17, 1880.

A new project is on the tapis now. A company has been incorporated known as the Lebanon & Santiam Ditch and Manufacturing Co., with a view to dig a ditch from the vicinity of Waterloo to Lebanon for manufacturing purposes, etc. A number of our active citizens and business men have gone into the enterprise, with our enterprising and wide awake railroad man, L. Eklus, Esq., in the lead. We hope this undertaking will be carried through to completion, as we are satisfied that it will prove a great benefit to this town and vicinity.

A Keys damaged his threshing machine last week to the amount of forty dollars, by trying to thrash a pair of shears used in cutting the wire bands on the bundles.

John Blend has just finished a commodious and conveniently arranged barn, with all the modern conveniences. Join is an energetic farmer and is bound to succeed.

G. H. Jody, Esq., has taken charge of the well known Lebanon Hotel, and the traveling public may be assured that their wants will be supplied, if they will give him a call when stopping in town.

W. W. Parrish, Esq., of Sodalville, will make a trip east of the mountains soon.

clothing Lost.

A package of clothing, in a grain sack, was lost Sunday, August 15th, somewhere between Albany and Saddle Butte. The finder will confer a favor by sending information to this office or to Miller Morgan, at his farm.

No price, so far we believe, has been offered for wheat. The indications are that what prices will rule low for the present.

Farmers of Linn County, Take Notice.

It is now a settled fact that the Board of Directors of the Agricultural Association of Linn County have determined to have a fair, commencing on the 6th day of October next. This is certainly a good move. It was foolishness for the farmers of Linn county ever to let the fair go down. Why go away from home to attend fairs, and spend their money away from home? Is it not better to have a fair at home, and spend what little we have to spend at home? Let every farmer in Linn county come forward to the fair, and bring the best of their products and exhibit it, and we shall have a fair like those of years gone by. Since the farmers of Linn county saw fit to stop the fair, we have never had a prosperous season. Providence has disowned us, and threatened to destroy Linn county altogether. Now let us all come forward to the fair, and bring part of the plentiful crop that is now before us. It really ought to be a week of thanksgiving for the beautiful crop and the good health which the people of Linn county are now enjoying. Let every man and woman in the county come, bringing a little of their time-money along, just as the Bible commands, and we shall have a glorious fair. No man can object to this, at least no Christian man can. Now just take down your old dusty Bible and read the 13th, 21st, 23rd and 25th verses of the 11th chapter of Deuteronomy. Read for yourselves; don't require the aid of a priest to read for you, and do as the Lord has commanded you. And let no man say what you shall eat or what you shall drink, or where-withal you shall be clothed. This is the command of the Lord. Now all do it, and we will be happy when we meet at the fair.

J. J. FINLAYSON.

Candidates for the University.

On Wednesday, County School Superintendent, Prof. Gilbert, assisted by County Judge, Hon. L. F. Fin, and Prof. Sox, examined the annexed candidates for scholarships in the State University at Eugene: Misses Rosa White, of Brownsville; Lillie Robertson, of Halsey; Nettie Robinson, of Crawfordville. All passed the examination with flying colors, and the County Clerk at once issued the necessary certificate to each. Linn county is entitled to one more scholar in the University.

Personal.

We were pleased to receive a call from S. H. Shepherd, editor of the Great County News, published at Canyon City, Oregon, yesterday. Mr. Shepherd is publishing a lively paper and of course it is proving successful and profitable. He came down to secure the necessary material to enlarge his paper, and will soon issue the News as a forty column paper. Success to him. He started for home on the noon train yesterday.

Hon. M. C. George will pass through this city on Monday, on route for Yaquina Bay.

"A Stitch in Time Saves Nine."

We see by a late Eastern paper that the Standard Oil Company has secured the few remaining refineries of the coal oil region. Now is the time to buy, as coal oil will probably be advanced by that great corporation. We note the arrival of a large shipment by a C. A. Plummer, the druggist. See him and secure a bargain now.

New wheat coming in. Health good throughout the county. N. Baum started for Frisco on Monday. Bill and letter heads a specialty at the Register's office.

Go to C. D. Simpson and get your new wheat sacks. Those cookies at Haffendens are unequalled.

We extend the special thanks of a "grass widder" to Jas. Finlayson, Esq., for several gallons of blackberries and a pitcher of cream.

That new tea of Haffendens is pleasing every one that tries it. It has excellent flavor and great strength. Try it—it is cheap.

The demand for water in this city will soon require the enlargement of the Santiam Canal.

Rev. J. T. Wolfe will probably be returned to the charge in this city. He is an able divine.

C. A. Plummer received this week one thousand gallons of the best brand of coal oil in the market. Buying in large quantities, he is enabled to sell at bottom prices. Call and see him under Odd Fellows' Temple.

Haffendens Bros. sell groceries at the very bottom figures, as a call will prove. But then they keep only the choicest goods.

Mr. Paxton and family have returned from the Bay.

E. J. Haffendens, McWain and wife, Misses McDonald and Minnie Johnson and Fred McCoy, we learn start from the Bay for this city on Monday next. Have had a splendid time.

That honey is delicious, and cheaper than syrup; that cheese is rich and can't be beaten; that coffee in cans, and the roasted in papers, is fragrant, and oh! that tea! Where? Why, at Haffendens Bros.—at least that is the verdict of those who have tried and therefore know.

C. D. Simpson has always kept the price of wheat up. No combination. Will always get the top price for the farmers.

Jas. Heron returned from the sodas in front of the week, looking better than for months past. He had a couple of congestive chills while up there, and made a narrow escape, but seems to be all right now.

The matter of building a bridge across the Willamette is being fully canvassed, more than usual interest being manifested in the matter. It is time. If Albany should be turned over to the owls and bats, it will be a most severe blow to the whole county. The best interests of the county as well as the city demands that such an improvement be made, and the party or parties who oppose it are the enemies of the entire community.

Wilson Blinn has closed his mountain school, and is now enjoying his short vacation here.

Down freight on the river has been reduced to one dollar per ton to Portland.

Strand Long had the misfortune to break his right arm last week. The animal on which he was riding fell down, causing the fracture. He is getting along all right, and will soon be ready for another turn of the wheel of fortune.

A petition asking that Hon. F. M. Wadsworth be appointed agent at Siletz, was circulated last week, and signed by every prominent man in this and Benton counties. During the war Mr. W. served under the old flag, and in one of the engagements had the misfortune to receive a shot from the enemy through the lungs. Besides, he is honest and capable, and there should be no hesitancy in giving him the appointment.

The Blue Ribbon Club gave an entertainment at the Opera House last Friday evening which was largely attended. These entertainments are popular.

An excursion train brought up a large number of people from Portland last Sunday, arriving here about 12:30. The woodshed just east of the depot was decorated with evergreens and partially closed in with canvass, and the excursionists tripped the light fantastic until 5 o'clock in the evening. We can say this much for the party, that so far as we have heard everything went off pleasantly, and the peace of the city remained unbroken while they were here.

James Dannals has some of the handsomest lounges anywhere.

With a united effort we can bridge the Willamette, and save to the city the vast trade that will certainly go elsewhere if this matter is delayed much longer.

Another strenuous effort will be made to divide Linn county. This feeling could have been allayed if our citizens had shown the proper spirit of enterprise in the way of building passable roads leading out into the populous districts.

The flax factory is now turning out work in good shape.

The steamship Columbia, lying at her wharf in Portland, was thrown open to the inspection of the public on Monday, and is estimated that 7,000 people visited the vessel that afternoon.
