Gen, Hancock will be able to keep in perfect accord with his party, as he will neither have to vote or sign any bills for the payment of rebel claims.

Was it faintly remarked that after Indiana had voted they would be called "The boys with the Blues," and not the Boys in Blue?

Won't some more Democracy from Southern Oregon come down here and call Gen. Williams the "greatest thief, my God, of the age !"

It is believed that the Confederate Democracy will not now be in hot haste to reorganize the Supreme Court in the interest of the "solid South,"

The boast of the "solid South" will not be heard any more. The fact is the spirit of entire rebeldom is at a remarkable low stage.

The Memphis Appeal strongly approyes General Hancock's manifesto in regard to Southern war claims. So do a number of other leading Southern estly recommend their readers to "preserve their documents showing their losses," The impression, evidently is that the manifesto is a capital joke, and that while penning it for the Northern market the astute General indulged in a significant wink at the South.

what General Hancock's friends say he accomplished for the Union cause in California is a subject which Eastern Democrats are just now making much of. The fact is General Hancock did nothing at all in that respect while he was here. His position was that of a Lieutenant and Quartermaster in the regular army. He was stationed at Los Angeles, and when the news of the rebel attack on Fort Sumpter reached that place, in 1861, a mob of Los Angeles rebels gathered around his office and made such threatening demonstrations in favor of the Confederacy that Hancock became alarmed and was got clear of the mob by the stratagem of a friend. When asked what he thought of the Eastern situation, he was despondent and appeared to be wanting in resolution. Soon after this affair he left California, went East and wss appointed by Governor Curtin of Pennsylvanta wrath certain to follow. to the command of volunteers raised in that State. There was work to be done here in the organization of Union volunteers for a known rebel General, Albert Sidney Johnson, was in command of this Department, and it was suspected that he would do as the rebel General Twiggs did in Texas, and take the State out of the Union it he could-We have never heard that Hancock tendered his services to General Stananti-slavery policy of Lincoln, Seward pewer to utterly crush Lee's army and 150,000 lives and $800,000,000. SALEM, Oct. 9, 1880. Ever since the introduction of Senator Clow's bill, No. 82, to regulate interchange of traffic by common carriers, the press, including papers in Eastern Oregon, Eugene City, Harrisburg, Albany, Corvallis, Independence, Dallas, Monmouth, Philomath, Lafayette and Salem, have nriged its passage, while there has been a persistent effort made W. After the bill had been referred President Dolph remarked to a triend : "I gness Clow will think white men very vailed. uncertain," This shows that he at least feels that his work has been well done, and it only remains for the people to see the end of this sad drama. His second "point" was his abuse of Judge Williams, ("laundhulet" Williams as he was pleased to designate him), in which he even attempted to outdo the Democrat, working himself up into a party, for those were the principles on perfect frenzy while he heaped epithets which that party everywhere subsisted. upon the name of thesman whom Mr. Au-"Union" officers like Harcock and tenrieth can never hope to approach in Mc Clellan really aided the rebels, and honesty, truthfulness, towering ability. gentlemanly instincts and every attribute of manhood. Here where Judge Williams is so well known and so universally respected nearly a thousand million dollars to ed for his ability and uprightness of char acter, such blackguardism only barmed the man guilty of such low vulgarity and the party of which he is the mouthpiece. During Autenrieth's first remarks, when he asserted that the Homestead Law was a Democratic measure, passed long before the Republican party came into existence, an old time bedrock Democrat in the audience, who we believe was the first Sheriff of Linn county, took occassion to call the speaker a "liar." The flutter created by this interruption was soon quieted, and the speaker sat down to cool off. Mr. Curtis was then introduced, and proceeded to make an excellent, wellby the O.
