STATE RIGHTS DEMOCRAT

M. H. ADAMS, EDITOR.
SATURDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1854.

PORTLAND TELEGRAPH COMPANY.

The last Garland Gazette, and a few more numbers follow the Star and Oregon Advocate, and it is understood that the printer has been sold to the Portland Telegraph Company. We understand that the new owner is an Englishman, who has taken over the business and will make it a first-rate newspaper. We understand that the newspaper will be published under the name of the Portland Telegraph Company.

We have heard with some alarm that the Oregon City Gazette is about to be discontinued. We hope this is not true, and that the paper will be continued.

The Oregon City Gazette is the only paper published in Oregon City, and it is the only paper that represents the interests of the people of Oregon City. It is the only paper that can be relied upon to give news of the country, and it is the only paper that can be relied upon to give news of the world.

We understand that the new owner of the Portland Telegraph Company is an Englishman, and that he will make the paper a first-rate newspaper. We hope that he will not be too hard on the people of Oregon City, and that he will not be too hard on the people of the country.

We understand that the new owner of the Portland Telegraph Company is an Englishman, and that he will make the paper a first-rate newspaper. We hope that he will not be too hard on the people of Oregon City, and that he will not be too hard on the people of the country.

We understand that the new owner of the Portland Telegraph Company is an Englishman, and that he will make the paper a first-rate newspaper. We hope that he will not be too hard on the people of Oregon City, and that he will not be too hard on the people of the country.