When these battles were fought the Whig party was in full blast. Clay

While the candidates were speaking some of the b'hovs got into a muss, and some ten or a dozen fights followants did not fight about politics, as some may suppose---not at all; but simply for the fun of the thing, as near as we can learn. They had not had a fight for a long time, and they were actually "spoiling" for one. they rolled up sleeves and pitched in and in a short time everything about Scio was unusually lively. that I have consented to run as a candidate for County Treasurer on what is termed the " Cayuse Ticket." I desire to say that this is wholly false. I have not consented to do so, nor will I do so under any circumstances or for any consideration. For forty-five years I have been a voter, and have always voted the Democratic ticket ; and it is too late in the day now for me to repudiate the timethan ever. I shall vote the regularly nominated Democratic ticket, if my life is spared and I have health sufficient to enable me to go to the polls. May 5, 1868. CLAIBORNE HILL.
