

FOR PRESIDENT: GEO. H. PENDLETON, OF OHIO.

DEMOCRATIC NOMINATIONS. FOR PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS, S. F. CHADWICK, of Douglas county.

The usual leap year advice to young women is, to "act like men."

In a short time there will be a woolen mill at Ashland, Jackson county.

PROGRESS.—Ground was broken for the East side railroad at Corvallis last week.

A Fair and Supper for the benefit of the Corvallis College, held last week, netted $700.

The Jacksonville Sentinel heads births, marriages and deaths: "Come," "Fixed to Stay" and "Gone."

A mining ledge in Josephine county is valued at $270,000. The average yield is computed to be from three to five thousand dollars to the ton.

The Negro has been freed. Woman now knocks at the door. Some deem she ought to have been emancipated at first.

A man named Whitsell was severely hurt one day last week, near Dallas, by being run over by a wagon. The Signal says he was, at the latest advice, still insensible.

Horace Greeley says that if the Democracy carry New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio they are bound to win the Presidential contest.

The editor of the Jacksonville Reveille says he has been presented with a gooseberry measuring three inches around.

Judge Boise held Saturday, at Salem, in the Railroad case, that the grant of State aid to the Railroad enterprise was void, because it violated sec. 7 of art. xi. of the Constitution.

A man named Wm. Burston, living on Saavies Island, Multnomah county, this State, has a bill against Grant of $60, for borrowed money while Grant was stationed at Vancouver.

The West side railroad company held a meeting in Portland on last Saturday, for the election of officers.

"After me, in manners," says a track "manhood" to Anna Dickinson, when she cries for female suffrage.

The Unionist editor says "it is of small moment what quantity of water is used in administering sacramental rites."

The importance of one vote is proverbial. Gibbs was elected Prosecuting Attorney by one vote.

The Unionist editor congratulates the people of Lane county on their failure to get up a Fourth of July celebration.

"I desire to congratulate you and rejoice with you on the result of our late election; and I but express the feelings of the Democracy generally when I say that your paper has contributed largely to that result."

This is very complimentary; and we intend to strive earnestly to merit such praise more than ever.

INDEPENDENCE DAY.

This morning's sun ushers in the Ninety-Second Anniversary of American Independence. It is our nation's natal day. Ninety-two years ago to-day John Hancock, John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, Benjamin Franklin and all those other noble and immortal delegates, assembled at Philadelphia and drafted, reported and adopted the Declaration of Independence, the first official note of defiance and renunciation which afterward caused the British tyrant to land upon our soil the finest body of soldiery that were then in existence, for purposes of subjugation and tyranny.

But with these things every American—either native or naturalized—has become so familiar that it is useless for us to repeat them. The long and bloody struggle which followed the action of that assemblage...

How dear to every patriotic bosom is Independence Day!

How dear to every patriotic bosom is Independence Day! How doubly dear and sacred now, when that grand old Government which was created by the sacrifices and preserved by the blood of those bold spirits of '76, is tottering on the verge of bankruptcy and ruin—being crowded and rushed to its death by fanatical radicals who are gnawing at its vitals and undermining its existence by the same species of unjust enactments and tyrannical legislation that characterized the British government in the days of the Revolution.

THINK OF IT.—The Council Bluffs (Iowa) Democrat says: It has been long asserted, and is now reiterated, that Ulysses Shiloh Grant was heartily drunk at Shiloh; that he was in that condition when the Confederates conquered his superior force, driving them all huddled up, into the Tennessee river, in substantiation of which, it is said that General B. M. Prentiss, a General under Grant and at one time commander of the post of Cairo, who, with his whole force, was captured at Shiloh and taken South, and several others stand ready to make affidavit. General Prentiss is a Republican, and resides at Quincy, Ill.

THE DIFFERENCE.—Says the Sacramento Bee: "The chiefest glory of England is that she protects her people in their rights in whatever part of the world they may be."

THE OREGON ELECTION.

The Missouri Republican, after giving the result of the recent election in this State, adds the following pertinent and eloquent remarks: "Hurrah for the grand old mountain State! This is the answer he sends back to the nineteen Senators who secured the acquittal of the President and the defeat of the impeachment conspirators."

GRAND BARBECUE AT SALEM!

Eleventh (11th) instant appointed by Democrats here for a grand Barbecue, torch-light procession, etc., to rejoice over late victory and ratify action of National Convention.

THE NATIONAL CONVENTION.

To-day assemblies in New York one of the most important and earnest bodies that was ever convened since ninety-two years ago, when the signers of the Declaration of Independence performed that immortal task. To-day is to decide the fate of the nation. It will decide whether the people's desires and expressed wishes are to be respected, or whether a few moneyed or bonded aristocrats are to govern and control the efforts of the country for their own benefit.

The Railroad.

HARRISBURG, June 20th, 1868. The political commotion that recently agitated the denizens of this locality has completely subsided; and the serene, smiling faces that characterize the members of both political parties evince the enviable alacrity with which our people bow to the sovereign will of the majority.

A. J. Cook & Co. in order to insure a harmonious identity of interest between themselves and the people require that they purchase the entire stock of the road at one tenth of its estimated value; the other nine tenths being mortgaged to the contractors, and so soon as the buyer of the stock pays one tenth of its estimated value he is to receive a certificate of non-assessable stock, ten times the value of the money paid for the same; and he is then a stockholder of the Company representing ten times as much stock as he has paid for, or will ever be required to pay for, except as it arises from the net proceeds of the road as per contract.

There is an objection interposed by some, that the estimated is much more than what will be the actual cost of the road, thereby the contractors will realize large sums of money which should be applied to the liquidation of the mortgaged stock of the company. The writer is not sufficiently conversant with the cost of railroads to venture an opinion. It is not to be expected, nor should it be desired by the stockholders that the contractors should undertake to build the road at a cost that would involve loss or yield no profit to them.

If there is a people any where suffering for the want of a speedy transportation they are to be found in the Willamette Valley, and now the opportunity and inducement are soliciting their relief. Will they have it? Relying upon the intelligence, pride of State, and public spiritedness of our citizens we feel it a foregone conclusion. There are many reasons why the people of Lane should purchase the railroad stock. In the first place it secures a speedy construction of the road, which is of much importance, and a still greater consideration, one in which every one who has the pride, independence and welfare of his County at heart feels a lively interest.

A Visit to the President.

The delegates to the National Typographical Convention called on a body of the Executive mansion at noon, June 24, for the purpose of paying their respects to the President. He, in response, expressed himself grateful for the compliments paid him by the members of the Convention, and, in a few remarks, alluded to his great respect for all classes of workmen.

It had always been a fundamental principle with him not to forget the source from whence he sprang. He had long since learned that one's profession was no disgrace, and if the man did not disgrace his calling it would not disgrace him.
