

SCISSORINGS.

A roper in—The hangman. A spring bed—A bed of radishes. All time belongs to us, for all time is ours.

Motto for an old bachelor—Be just and fear not.

Going on Circuit—Taking a turn on the treadmill.

Where to find Eternal Springs—in the circus business.

Can a man whose head is level be said to be on a high plane?

A Knight Templar—A man who sleeps on the church steps.

If a bricklayer were called a brick he need not feel mortar-fred.

A student feels flirtation to be attention without intention.

What is better than a promising young man? A paying one.

Music is the food of love—beef and mutton that of matrimony.

A doctor calls his dog Chinchona, on account of the bitterness of his bark.

Men who frequent drinking saloons are most of their time in a tight place.

A farmer gathers what he sows; while a seamstress sews what she gathers.

An arch young lady is said to be an archer, for she can bend her beam as she pleases.

The best way for ladies to invest their spare change is in a pocket on the left side.

It is a paradox that you increase the value of a unit tenfold by adding nothing to it.

Early rising was once an indication of thrift, but now it indicates that a man is thrifty.

A blushing beauty says that among other "sports of the ring" may be included weddings.

"I follow in the wake of the baby," as the mother said when disturbed by her infant at night.

An exchange, noticing the marriage of a cotemporary, wishes him posterity and happiness.

"Good morning 'square. Got anything new?" "Yes, I've got the newralgia, and it hurts terribly."

Paradoxical isn't it—That some ascents are descents. A trip-up, for example, brings you right down.

The man that bit another man's nose off in an affray, is said to have taken a prominent part in the fight.

Josh Billings says: "The best way I know to repeat my enny thing is to do better the next time."

What is the difference between a tube and a foolish Dutchman? One is a hollow cylinder and the other is a silly Hollander.

Then and now—A lady said that before she was married, her husband was a riddle to her, but now he was a riddle (cross-stick).

When a house burns down it burns up; when you drink a glassful you drink it empty, and when you take a car it takes you.

"Will these goods wash? asked a lady of a dry goods clerk. "No," replied the wretched salesman, "you will have to wash them."

A St. Albans lawyer has discovered that "when we look back in the untrodden paths of the future, we behold the footprints of an Almighty hand."

The Bishop of Wurtzburg once asked a sprightly shepherd boy: "What are you doing here, my lad?" "Tending swine."

"How much do you get?" "One hundred florins a week."

"I am also a shepherd, but I have a much larger salary," continued the Bishop.

"That may be; but then I suppose you have more hogs under your care."

WENDELL PHILLIPS ON THE SITUATION.

Wendell Phillips takes a gloomy view of the political situation, as will be seen from the following letter to a Reform leader:

BOSTON, May 6th, 1872.

Dear Powell—I wish I could aid in the discussions of your Reform League at this important moment.

Old parties are breaking to pieces. New ones are to form on some of the issues you propose to discuss.

Whether Grant or Greeley, or whoever else is elected, this is the last time the Republican and Democratic parties, as such, will take part in a Presidential campaign.

Party succeeds, both die in the effort. Whether the Cincinnati Convention fails or triumphs at the ballot-box, one thing it has done—it has scattered forever the Republican and Democratic parties; killed both.

The Presidential canvass of 1876 will turn on new questions—I think on the relations of capital and labor; the condition of the working classes; the justice done them by law, finance, privileged corporations and trade, and injustice which is the root of poverty, prostitution, intemperance and crime.

May your discussions ripen public opinion for this new crusade.

Yours, heartily, WENDELL PHILLIPS.

COME DOWN, FATHER—Some one has paraphrased the song, "Dear Father Come Home," as follows: "Oh father, dear father, come down with the stamps, my dressmaker's bill is unpaid—and she said she would send it right home from the shop, as soon as the frounces were made. My new dress from—is down in the hall. I've nothing to sport with—can't go to the ball, so please send the shopboy away! Come down, come down! Please, dear father, come down! Oh, hear the sweet voice of thy child, who cries in her room all alone; who could resist her most piteous tears? So, father, with stamps you will come down. Oh father, dear father, come down with the stamps, my bills are not fit to be seen—the hair-dresser said he would not do them unless I pay him fifteen—He only asked twenty to give a new set and take the old hair in exchange—besides, pa, my waterfalls are full rough, and so my back hair will look strange. Come down, come down! Please father, dear father, come down!"

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.

Every Man his own Physician.

CAUTION.

THE IMMEDIATE DEMAND FOR HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT has tempted unscrupulous imitators to counterfeit the valuable medicine.

In order to protect the public and ourselves, we have issued a new "Trade Mark," consisting of an Egyptian circle of a serpent, with the words "HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT" written in a scroll around it.
