Presidential Electors:

BREWIES IN THE JOYFUL CONSCIOUSNESS THAT THEY ARE AND MUST HENCEPORTH REMAIN dorsed the famous Crittenden Com HORACE GREELEY."

CHOOSE YE THIS DAY.

The time for discussion has passed and the time for action is at hand .-The enemies and the friends of free government are again in hostile array and will soon join in a contest in which is involved interests more vital than any ever before presented in a Presidential canvass. The country, though in apparent profound peace. slumbers over a volcano. It is not when armies are marshaled and panoplied for trenchant, bloody war that the liberties of a free people are in danger, but when a cold apathy pervades the masses and venal rulers lure them on to vote away their birthrights; then, indeed are they hastening down the declivity of governmental ruin. Liberty once aroused to danger is unconquerable, and is only lost by the supineness of its friends. The great governments of antiquity expired reclining in the lap of luxury and ease and drifted away into anarchy and final chaos on the tide of echoing plaudits, for venal rulers, from a deluded people. Is the fate of this great nation to be but a repetition of the history of those that have gone before? Have the people learned nothing from the sad lessons found on the record of the past, and attested by the decaying monuments which mark the places where States and Empires fell? Great Heaven! We can but address our countrymen in the lauguage of Milton:
