At the time this county was "organized" it had, according to the Spy, but thir-teen inhabitants, and none of these teen inhabitants, and none of these ever heard of an election being held there, aside from what has been told them by parties not resident then. The petition for the organization of the county was filed at the Governor's office in April, 1873, signed by forty-three persons. On the 24th day of April the Governor issued his proclamation that an election would take place for county officers on the 17th day of May, 1873, which election day of May, 1873, which election took place, according to the papers on file in the Secretary of State's office. The judges and clerks of election certified to the returns.

Speaking of these gentlemen, the account goes on to say:

The Career of a Fast Young Han is ton

Information has been received through the telegraph of the arrest of John H. F. Hannan in Jersey City on Friday. He is about 25 years of age and recently occupied a responsible position in the house of Messrs. Goodall, Nelson & Perkins, the well-known shipping agents of this city. About ten years ago young Hannan applied for employment at the office and was given a situation as clerk. In a short time he was promoted to the more lucrative and responsible position of freight collector. In accordance with a regular transfer of the second of the has turned boat builder and is creating a good of a most builder and is creati pacity for a few months, at his own solicitation he was furnished with a set of books, and was required to report but once a month to the cashier. He gave his employers satisfaction and was fast achieving an envisible reputation as an industrious and honorable young man. Unfortunately for his future prospects, however, he formed an attachment for a courtesan named Lallie Wesner, who resided on Sacramento street, near Dupont, and to the astonishment of his friends and the extreme sorrow of his venerable mother, with whom he resided on Folsom street, he married the cyprian. The disgraceful feet was made known to his employees; but with the hope that the marriage would result happily, he was continued in his position. About amouth ago, Hannan, accompanied by his wife, absconded, and it was developed in an investigation by his employees.
