

HIS MAJESTY'S MESSAGE.

The President's message is being severely criticized by the leading Eastern journals of both parties. It is extremely narrow-contracted and illiberal, and its insulting criticisms on the recent Southern elections, after he had received his office by robbing three of those States of their electoral vote, is not only in bad taste but simply outrageously impudent.

HERE'S A TIPPER!

Isn't this an elaborate cuss now—this talented manipulator of lightning! Hear him:

SAN JOSE, Dec. 4.—A shock of earthquake was felt here at 7:30 this morning. The oscillations were from north-west to southeast, with a semi-rotary rotation intermediate, the tremor lasting ten seconds.

"That semi-rotary rotation intermediate," with its accompanying "tremor" knocks the blazes out of our stoga style of literature! The dispatch don't tell whether the operator died after this fierce "oscillation" of his transcendent intellect.

TOO TRANSPARENT.

That a Republican Administration steeped to the lips in election frauds and which owes its existence to the basest cheating at the ballot-box and perjuries in making up the returns, should now put on white robes of purity of elections, and the Baltimore Gazette thinks it is too transparent a fraud to deceive the American people. The de facto President is only permitted to retain the seat which he obtained by fraud because, like a bullet near a large artery, it may be less dangerous to the body-politic to leave him there than to take him out. To extract him is not worth the inflammation he would cause; but still let him not imagine that even his own office-holders believe he was elected. In their hearts they all know him for a fraud. The Republicans will not be able to build anything substantial on such a foundation.

A SOLID COUNTRY.

The East, the West and the South are not rivals in trade, remarks the Brooklyn Eagle. Each makes a market for the product of the other two, and each is dependent upon the enterprise and intelligence of its sister sections for the necessities of every-day life. Every tradesman in the North has suffered because of the prostration of his Southern customers. The villainous adventurers, who, in the name of Republicanism and backed by Federal bayonets, for years harried the Southern States, were taking the bread out of the mouths of Northern artisans. The attempt to put enmity between these people is a crime against humanity, and the politicians who, from Hayes down, are engaged in the business, should not find a solid South arrayed against the solid North, but a solid country resolved to drive them forever from the public places which they disgrace.

"DIDST WE SCOP" EM.

The Albany municipal election of last Monday was almost a complete Democratic victory—as we lost only the Mayor and one Councilman, and elected the Recorder, Marshal, Treasurer and five Councilmen. This is the best showing our party has ever made, with but one exception, since the organization of the city government, and the Democracy of Albany may well pride themselves on the result.

Much credit is due to the admirable order and harmonious action of the nominating convention and the fairness and unanimity with which the candidates were chosen. There was no noisy tumult nor brazen ballot stuffing, as in the case of the Republican convention, hence the people who participated in our convention knew they were voting at the polls for the honest choice of the party.

There is one feature about the election, however, which to our mind was not in accordance with Democratic usage, and that is the manner in which Democrats "threw off" our candidate for Mayor. Mr. Crawford was enthusiastically and unanimously nominated, in the largest Democratic mass meeting ever held in the city, and yet a large number of Democrats who participated in that meeting, and did not raise a dissenting voice against his nomination, not only voted against him, but made it a specialty to vote openly for his opponent. This seems to us to be acting in bad faith, and is calculated to engender strife and discord in the party in the future. The vote of the city shows that the Democrats have a fair working majority, and if every member of that party had openly and squarely supported the ticket we could have elected every candidate.

However, we have done well—even nobly—as it is, and we only make these remarks with the hope that future elections may develop a better state of things, and that every member of the party who shall participate in conventions will do his best to see that the full ticket, if fairly nominated, shall receive a hearty support and the party organization thus be preserved intact.

PEN AND INK.

LOUIS A. GODEY, the founder of Godey's Lady's Book, died at Philadelphia last Saturday, aged 75 years.

The Greenbackers, so the New York Express alleges, wish somebody would play the same game as has been practiced on those of the late Mr. Stewart.

ALEXANDER H. STEPHENS seems to gain health as he grows older. A Washington correspondent says he weighs at present ninety-two pounds, being within one pound of the greatest weight he ever attained.

THE Free Press remarks: It is awful hard times, you know—wolf at the door, and so on, and yet the United States will have a surplus of 1,300,000,000 bushels of corn, 400,000,000 of wheat and 5,250,000 bales of cotton.

BECHER is at last revenged; he has had the woman he has ruined excommunicated. At a meeting of the Plymouth Church held some time last week Mrs. Titton's name was erased from the roll of membership.

In August the National wave struck Memphis, and a Radical-Workingmen-Independent Greenback ticket was elected. All the new officials—Sheriff, Judge of the Criminal Court and Chancellor—died of yellow fever, and the vacancies have been filled by the appointment of Democrats.

THERE is one thing to be said in behalf of Mr. Bayard and his neat little State of Delaware, remarks the Baltimore Gazette—the late election for Governor shows an increased Democratic majority of 5,266 as compared with the vote for Tilden. This is enough to set the Bayard movement booming.

THERE is a general disposition among the Republican papers to blame the great statesmen of their party for keeping aloof from the Southern brethren, and leaving the latter to fight their political battles alone. The cause is a very simple one. When the era of gold stealing came to an end the South ceased to possess any real attractions for Radical statesmen.

The new legislature of South Carolina will stand thus: Senate, Republicans, 5; Democrats, 29. House, Republicans, 3; Democrats, 121. Last year the Democrats had only one majority on joint ballot. Hampton at the last election was chosen Governor without any opposition whatever. This shows very plainly that the people are well pleased with his government.

The Republican press of this State still prate about the Cronin electoral vote. If they would take the time to look back into the facts of the case their memories might be refreshed in regard to that matter. The whole affair was caused by their own egotism and stupidity and ignorance in selecting as one of their candidates for election a man who was debarred by the constitution of the United States from holding any such position.

Captain Tyson has arrived at Princeton, Mass., with the arctic schooner Florence, after many narrow escapes among the grinding bergs. Tyson will be ready to pioneer Hovgata next year if Congress makes the appropriation of $500,000. It was Tyson who a few years ago, got separated from the Polars on an ice floe with several of the crew and floated down off the coast of Labrador, where they were picked up by a Scottish whaler.

The Greenback National party claimed in its official organs 250,000 votes in New York and got less than 80,000, remarks the Herald. It claimed 250,000 in Pennsylvania and got 81,000. It claimed 125,000 in Michigan and got 72,000. It claimed ninety Congressmen and got eight, and it showed once more that it is an excellent club in the hands of the Republicans with which to defeat the Democrats; but that is all.

THE Cleveland Herald says: It is foolish to count upon the Greenbackers elected to Congress co-operating with the Republicans because they were formerly Republicans themselves. Nearly all of them owe their election to Democratic support, and can have no political future unless that support is continued. They will probably prove the most bitter Democratic partisans in the House. Like all renegades, they will go to an extreme to show their devotion to their new masters.

IN the public cemetery at Carlisle, Ind., is a small plain monument covering the grave of a man known in every home in Sullivan county as Dr. Davis, formerly a practicing physician. After some service in the State Legislature he served four terms in Congress, and in 1834, was elected Speaker of the House. Subsequently he was appointed to succeed Caleb Cushing as Minister to China, and on returning home was appointed Governor of Oregon. He was President of the Democratic Convention that nominated Franklin Pierce for the Presidency, and himself came within one vote of receiving the nomination. An effort is making to erect a larger monument to his memory.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION FOR OREGON.

The decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, pronounced yesterday by the Chief Justice, in the Oregon case which involved title in land under the Donation law of Congress, passed 1850, will be hailed with delight in that State by thousands of honest settlers and holders of claims under it. The law itself allowed six hundred and forty acres of land to every man and wife who should locate and live upon the tract for four consecutive years—the half on which the improvements were built to be the separate property of the wife under certain conditions. The act also allowed three hundred and twenty acres to each single man of lawful age, subject to the same requirements as to location, residence and term of years. Until a few years ago there had been very little litigation in respect to these claims, but a suit was at length brought by claimants whose case was based on a technical construction of the law, in the face of justice and precedent. It was carried to the Supreme Court of the State, where it was decided according to the manifest intention of the Act. From that tribunal it was taken to the United States District Court, Deady, Judge, who gave judgment in the interest of the claimants under the technicalities. The effect of the decision of Judge Deady was to cloud the title and imperil the ownership of three-fifths of the farming lands in the Willamette and Umpqua Valleys, and to cause a vast deal of litigation, to the perplexity and cost of the bona fide owners and possessors, who were at the mercy of adventurers and impetuous heirs that could find a technicality or flaw upon which to commence proceedings. In many instances these claimants and their attorneys realized considerable sums from owners who preferred compromising on the best terms they could make to the hazard of a suit in Judge Deady's Court, where the decisions were almost wholly against their class. It was noteworthy that in all these cases the same lawyers were generally employed by the claimants, and from this practice they derived handsome emoluments in land and money. All this will now be stopped, by the decision of the Supreme Court, and the fact that the Judges were unanimous in its demonstration that the decision of Judge Deady had no real foundation in law or justice. This final decision will remove the cloud from hundreds of thousands of valuable lands in Oregon, secure the owners in their possessions, and effectively cease the schemes of rapacious claimants who hunted for flaws in titles on which to base harassing suits in a Court where the law was generally warped in their favor.—S. F. Examiner.

THE telegraph brings the intelligence from Great Britain of continued business depression, which is also intensified by distress in the agricultural districts. In Scotland, reductions of wages are being made, factories are closing, while firms and companies are failing. Altogether the prospect for the Winter seems to be dark indeed. As usual, however, the first to suffer, and that most intensely, are the workmen. To entail a reduction in profits or a cessation of profitable returns mean only the retrenchment of expenses and the use of extra caution in the application of means in any given direction. Not so with the laborer, he is skilled or unskilled. His only capital is the work of his hands, and when they are still, destitution and starvation stare him in the face. With him, reducing wages is often another name of depriving him of a certain amount of necessary food and clothing. Hard times with him are hard indeed. Hunger and other physical sufferings are invariably their companion. There is little wonder that he becomes impatient and appears unreasonable to those more fortunately situated.

THE Scotch have an old proverb to the effect that it is ill talking between a fasting man and one who has just risen from a plentiful meal. So it is with many of these labor troubles. The laborers may be expostulated with and talked to until their interlocutor is worn out; but all the talk in the world does not relieve their distress or fill empty stomachs. Hunger has no ears; food is the only talisman which will save its wrath. Privation of this character soon makes desperate men. Already reports come from Glasgow that great bitterness is existing between the employers and their workmen. The men say: "Their motto toward us has been, 'No mercy,' and we will give as good as we get." These feelings bode no good to either side, but for all that they seem to be spreading.

THE Pull Mall Gazette, in its last issue, notices the increase of distress in the agricultural districts, and points out the probability that the farmers will make common cause with the men, and unitedly attack the landlords for the purpose of compelling a reduction in rent. In all parts of the world, it would thus seem that the classes who are tolerably well off, frequently forget that their fellows who are suffering all sorts of privations are not mere machines, who can be called upon when needed, but, when no longer required, are discarded with less consideration than an old horse is turned out to take his chances, which, like the men, usually means semi-starvation or death.

Jacksonville Sentinel: Last Friday evening between 8 and 9 o'clock a remarkably large and brilliant meteor flashed out directly over this place, lighting up the surrounding country like day. Some were pink colored, others deep red, blue and white. These spread out in every direction and gradually faded out into a light cloud which remained visible for several minutes.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE. The telegraph informs us that the message is not regarded by any considerable number of persons as a strong document, but rather as a somewhat weak summary of the conclusions which may have been reached and expounded with ability by the respective heads of departments. Californians note with dissatisfaction surprise that the president fails to make any expression of his known views concerning Chinese immigration, and contents himself with the hackneyed remark that the establishment of diplomatic relations in Washington with the Chinese embassy will be doubtless of advantage to both nations in promoting friendly relations and removing causes of difference.

This remark was undoubtedly approved by the Chinese embassy, which, together with their American secretary, occupied seats in the diplomatic gallery of the senate the other day during the reading of the message; but it failed to meet the expectations for which the president's private utterances have apparently afforded ample basis. Senator Ben Hill, in an interview referring to the southern portion of the message, said it was an outpouring of really criminal proportions. There, he said, not the slightest foundation upon which to base the absurd charges of cruelty and violence to the blacks, with which people of the south are charged. Hill claims to be thoroughly familiar with the occurrences in South Carolina. He says the experience of the blacks in Georgia is that they are better off under Democratic rule, and that the strongest supporters of the Democratic policy has are the colored people. Georgia, Ben Hill said, is practically solid for Democracy for all time to come. Our people would rather be placed in their graves than again be subjected to or afflicted with idealism in any shape.

When the farmer, at the end of the year, settles his store account, pays his smith bill, with that of his teacher, doctor and preacher, which tax is generally in the rear, and if anything is left from the amount realized from the sale of his produce, that amount is called profit; but, if it falls short, he has made nothing. That is not a correct estimate of results, for the bills have no connection with the cost of planting, except the smith bills. A merchant doing business on a capital of $10,000, wanting to obtain the result of a year's operation, takes an inventory of the unsold stock, the amount of available accounts, with money on hand after paying his store rent, his clerk hire, interest paid on borrowed money, and other expenses incidental to his business, but does not include the expense of supporting a family, which might, if extravagant, absorb all the profits, though it might be 30 or 40 per cent on the capital. There are a large number of farmers, whose real estate, with all the working stock, and farming implements, cannot be valued at more than $3,000, yet, by their profits realized, have raised, clothed and educated from five to ten children, which, to do this, must make a profit of 30 to 50 per cent on the capital.

THE Russians have succeeded in turning the course of the Amou-Daria (Oxus) river into its ancient bed, thereby causing it to flow into the Caspian sea instead of the Aral. The river was diverted from its ancient course by the Khivans, who wished to be isolated from the world, and especially from Russia. Up to the present time communication between the banks of the Caspian and Khiva was impossible, owing to the total lack of water, but now the Amou-Daria will give the Russians easy access not only to Khiva, but to the whole of Central Asia. The strategic advantage of changing of the river's course can, therefore, be scarcely over-estimated.

It is the institution goes into the decline it is a most uncomfortable thing to own bank stock on the other side of the water. In this enlightened and liberal country the holder of bank stock is only liable to his creditors in full, twice the amount of this stock, which means, in practice, that he isn't liable at all. In Scotland the liability extends to one's entire means. Thus, the Duke of Sutherland owned but four shares in the bank of Glasgow, and he will have to make a gallant fight to save some small portion of his fortune of $5,000,000.

A Row of Pearls

Glistening through coral lips is certainly a pleasing object; but a row of discolored, spotted teeth in any mouth at all is a grievous drawback; add to this such a set of teeth is usually accompanied with impure breath and one can scarcely imagine anything more objectionable. SOZODONTE, the great purifier of the breath and whitener of the teeth obviates this state of the mouth completely, restoring the dental occupants from destruction, and counteracting the influence upon the enamel of acid secretions in the mouth.

FARMERS OF LINN AND ADJOINING COUNTIES.

I am happy to inform you that I am again on hand with a new stock of Agricultural Implements, and as in the past, so in the future, shall it be my constant endeavor to offer you none but first-class goods. Our past business relations have been very pleasant indeed, and shall be held in grateful remembrance, and while I improve this opportunity of thanking you for the many favors in the past, I will also express a hope that by fair, square dealing and strict attention to business, I may merit a continuation of the same. I shall be pleased to meet all my old, and as many new customers, and will favor me with a call on the old stand, Harper's Block, Albany, Oregon.
