ENLISTED FOR LIFE.

In retiring from the position of Master of the State Grange of Missouri, H. Eshbaugh, Esq., made a parting address, of which the following are the concluding paragraps:

When I united with the Order of Husbandry, I enlisted for the struggle, and through life. Retiring from an official position does not relieve me from any duty or obligation in the Order. Hence I will always be found within its fold, advancing its pure principles, laboring to build it up on a basis that will enable it to distribute. Justice with all its blessings to all mankind. I have long since been convinced of the fact, and my belief is more strongly confirmed than ever before, that there is no time to be lost by the farmers of America if they wish to raise themselves and their children from serfden,-the doom that has crushed the tillers of the soil, in every other age and land. Would that every farmer in our land could fully realize his condition, and his surroundings in their true light, and the great dangers which constantly beset him. He would then not be long in feeliging that the only hope for relief and, for the restoration of his God-given rights depend upon the success of the Grange. This is the only enganization that the farmers have ever had that promises relief, sherter than you suppose. With these convictions so firmly fixed upon my mind, by close observation and careful study, I shall ever work for the success of the Grange, with a strong hope that the farmers will all rally to its support and carry its halowed principles on to victory. With kindest regards, best wishes the only one that will ever give relief;

It must be either this or nothing, doom of the farmer will soon be sealed too firmly to be ever broken. Farmers, make your choice; there is no one side or other. Which side it shall be is for you to say, and the time you may think still alotted, may be much and my most sincere thanks to one and all, for favors and courtesies received through your kindness. I most fraternally bid you an official adieu.

AMERICAN WHEAT IN RUSSIA.

Last month (wo American steamers laden with grain entered the port of Revel for the purpose of discharging their cargoes a circumstance hitherto without precedent in the annals of Russian commerce. A St. Petersburg letter received a few days ago, says that it has bitherto been a firmly established article of faith in the Czar's dominions that Russ'n would never need to import cereals from foreign countries. So rapid however has of late years been the falling off in productiveness exhibited in the that the seemingly impossible has at length come to pass, and northern Russia is importing wheat from the United States. It is but justice to the Russian press to acknowledge that it has been profuse of warnings with respect to the probable consequences ALBANY of slovenly and unintelligent farming, persistence in eld fashioned and exploded systems of cultivation, reluctance to invest capital in prodern agricultural improvements, absenteeism and other leaches which have practic ally disqualified Russian grain growers By A. F. CHERRY, structed at corner of from competing for foreign custom Piese and Montgomery Streets, Albany, with their trans-Atlantic rivals, But Russian boyars and peasant farmers alike were so immutably possessed by the conviction that Russia was the predestined granary of Europe that they calmly ignored these salutary monitions. They are now stricken with amazement and consternation by proof positive such as is now. tion by proof positive, such as is aford. chinery. ed by the importation of American grain into Revel, that the cereal yields of northern and central Russia no loager suffice to meet the consumptive requirements of the native population. Germany, too, is giving to for what grain she finds it necessary to import from abroad, on the reasonable grounds that the American wheat STAIGER BROS. - Proprietors. is at once cheaper and of better quality than the Russian. On the whole extremely low ebb, and its future promises to prove even gloomier than its present.
