CHOICE OF ASSOCIATION.

LANG STATION, Mar. 13, 1883.

Every youth should early determine upon some calling, and prepare for it and pursue it with vigor.

Male and female, rich and poor, high and low, one and all, should have some honorable and useful employment which they shall pursue as a regular business.

The touchstone of his knowledge must be applied to their dead and living forms, that he, his wife and children, may be surrounded with the comforts and harmonies of life.

But Dr. Kirkpatrick under date of March 10, says: "I have succeeded at this 30 minutes past 8 p. m., in finding the solution. It gives me intense satisfaction. I can't express a 'dying man's' thoughts, neither my continued delight in the solution of so profound and excellent a problem. It is beautiful! It is difficult! It is pure!"

Similar remarks may be applied to youths who have designed to fill any of the honorable callings in which men fulfill their earthly destinies.

First of all, a choice of business should be made, and made early, with a wise reference to capacity and taste. Then the youth should be educated for it, and as much as possible in it, and when this is done, it should be pursued with industry, energy, and enthusiasm which will warrant success.

Remember there are only a few such boys in this community, while on the other hand we have some as bright and energetic young men in this community, as can be found in the country. They have made their choice of avocation—which is agriculture—and are making it a study.

They know that their calling is a good one—one that God and goodness sanctions, and they are true as steel. They are throwing their mind, might, strength, heart, and soul into action for it, and success will undoubtedly crown their efforts.

CURIOUS FACTS.

A spring at St. Tammany parish, Louisiana, pours forth clear, cold water all day, but at sunrise it suddenly goes dry, discharging its water until the sun rises again.

While sawing veneer from a walnut knot an Indian discovered in the twisted fibres of the wood a perfect picture of a Spaniel's head. The lines are as accurately drawn as if by the pencil of an artist and when framed this natural curiosity has all the semblance of art.

One theatrical show which has been revealed by a florist in the remodeling of designs received by actors and actresses. The material of a flower ship received in the first set appears in the shape of a harp in the second, of an anchor in the third, or of any other design. And all the time the audience is amazed at the extravagant profusion of flowers.

The lion and unicorn became the supporters of the English royal arms in 1603 at the accession of James VI. The unicorn was the Scottish supporter.

CHESS COLUMN.

On Jan. 19 we commenced a regular chess tournament to consist of 10 problems, one to be published each week until the tourney is completed.

Mr. S. A. DeVaney, of Jefferson offers the following prizes for solution of problems in this tourney: To any person solving all of the 10 problems, a prize of 100 blank chess diagrams.

Problems for the tourney will be furnished by S. A. DeVaney, Jefferson.

TOURNEY PROBLEM NO. 10.

Table with chess notation: White K at K B 3, Black K at Q 5, R at K R 7, P at Q K 2, R at Q B 8, P at Q 3, B at K R 2, P at K B 4, B at Q K 3, K at Q R 2, K at Q R 7.

White to play and mate in two moves.

By investigation it has been ascertained by several Knights that tourney problem No. 6 was not sound. We will therefore in our next issue publish a substitute for No. 6 which will close the tournament.

"Sad," says: "Now if 'go-as-you-please' is a fair square problem it is in fact a good one, but I feel certain that such is not the case. I would like to see the solution."

The following is the full solution: White 1 Kt to K B 7, Black 1 Kt to Q 5, 2 Q to B 2 ch, 2 K to Q 4, 3 Kt to B-mate.

White 1 R to K B 1, Black 1 R to K 5, 2 Q to K B 4, 2 K to P 3, 3 Kt to B-mate.

White 1 R to K B 1, Black 1 R to K 5, 2 Kt to R ch, 2 K to P 3, 3 Kt to B-mate.

White 1 R to K B 1, Black 1 R to K 5, 2 Q to Q B 4 ch, 2 K to B 3, 3 Q to B-mate.

White 1 R to K B 1, Black 1 R to K 5, 2 Q to Q B 4 ch, 2 K to B 3, 3 Kt to K 5-mate.

White 1 R to K B 1, Black 1 R to K 5, 2 Q to Q B 4 ch, 2 K to B 3, 3 Kt to K 5-mate.

SOLUTION.

Tourney problem No. 8, Dr. J. E. Kirkpatrick.

Note. In placing black in tourney problem No. 9 we may pawn at 3 but it should be pawn at Q 3.

THE RICH AND POOR COUBINS.

"Well Alice lets play a joke on the people while we are at Newport. You are poor, while I am rich, and there will some worthless fellow fall dead in love with me—or my money—while we are gone. When I marry a man I want him to love me and not what few dollars I have. So I will play I am the poor one and you the rich, I will dress very plainly, wear some dull color, say brown, while you get a handsome outfit. I will fool the bill, and just carry things high, and see how much you can stir. You know your hand is already promised in marriage to Mr. South the banker. So if while you are making a fool of some man, you for a minute should not forget that you are engaged to the richest man in Albany just east your eye on the diamond on your finger, that will remind you of it, so have all the fun you can, knowing your fortune is made, and the man that falls in love with the poor, plain girl will love her for herself alone, and that's the man for me." Lilly the speaker was a perfect blonde, with golden curls and blue eyes. While Alice was just the opposite, a brunette, dark hair, which made a rich coil on the back of her head. They were orphans living with an uncle and aunt. Lilly had only been an orphan two years, while Alice had been without father or mother nearly seven years. His father involving all his money and property in an unlucky speculation soon lost his health, and a short time before his death he sent for his brother and gave to him his dearest treasure on earth, his daughter Alice, who was homeless and penniless. Since that time her uncle has given her a good home and cared for her as though she was his own daughter having the same name, strangers supposed her uncle to be her father. Near a year ago she became acquainted with Mr. South and at the present time is betrothed to him. The marriage is to take place on her eighteenth birthday. The girls told their uncle their plan, which he thought a capital idea. For said he I want my little golden hair to get a good true man, one that is worthy of her. So everything was arranged and of they started, their uncle for their escort. He said "now girls don't forget the part you are to play; let's make this thing a success. I'll watch and keep you posted how things are going. While I am talking to the old folks, I'll be sure and keep my eyes open to how my girls are getting on."

TEMPERANCE DEPARTMENT.

Women's Christian Temperance Union.

WHO SHALL CONQUER.

The great question of the present day with us is whether the liquor trade is to conquer this nation or be conquered by it. That trade is thoroughly organized, has unbounded capital at command, and has its agents swarming everywhere. The profits are so great that it will never lack apologists and defenders in the press, in our Legislatures and among the people, and will only go out, like the evil spirit of old, upon compulsion, and even then it will try to rend and convulse society. Were all good men opposed to it, it could be easily overcome, but there is a class entitled to that name who defend and patronize the liquor traffic in some of its phases, though condemning it in those forms which do not interfere with their own indulgence, and the better the men of this class in other respects the more power they have as supporters of the liquor traffic. This is the struggle for life and death, in which there is no neutral ground; every man and woman must be either for or against the great enemy of all righteousness—the traffic in intoxicating drinks.—New York Witness.

The above facts are undoubtedly true. There is also, another class of men who express their opinions freely with enthusiasm and earnestness, and yet when it comes to the test, you find very few who have the bravery to sustain their opinions. They empty their quiver of its bitterest arrows, but do not follow their declarations with actions worthy of the opinions expressed, and such a course injures, rather than assists the cause of temperance.

Dr. Lyman Beecher, in one of his famous temperance sermons said: "All denominations of Christians in the nation may with great ease be united in the effort to exclude the 'use' and the 'commerce' in ardent spirits. They alike feel and deplore the evil, and, united, have it in their power to put a stop to it. This union may be accomplished through the medium of a national society. There is no object for which a national society is more impudently demanded, or for which it can be reared under happier auspices."

Temperance keeps the senses clear and unimpaired, and makes them seize the object with more keenness and satisfaction. It appears with life in the face, and decorum in the person; it gives you the command of your head, secures your health, and preserves you in a condition for business.

A FAIR PROPOSITION.

Anyone suffering from habitual constipation, torpidity of the liver, colds, fevers, headaches, restlessness, sleeplessness, indigestion or other ills arising from a disordered or inactive condition of the liver, stomach and bowels, and wishing to give Strych of Figs, a thorough trial, can buy it of Fosbary & Mason, Albany, Rector & Son, Halsey, who will agree to return your money if it fails to act promptly and satisfactorily.
