

Washington is the worst place in the country for impaneling a trustworthy jury.

Radical harmony is still illustrated by disheartening disagreeableness.

We nominate Ben Butler to succeed himself as governor of Massachusetts.

It looks very much now as though Governor Butler would get his own kin tanned.

The talk about Mr. Tilden as a Presidential candidate next year is becoming utterly rapid.

The Republican party generally hold its own—and everybody else's it can lay its hands on.

The wild man recently discovered in the woods of Virginia is believed to be Mahone.

It gave one of the jurymen the jitters to return a verdict of "not guilty" in the star-route cases.

Brady has no misgivings for the future. He has enough left to make him comfortable.

The Republicans have been through all the distress of a great state trial and yet have not got rid of their vermin.

No political organization in the country ever had as many unsavory reminiscences as the Republican party.

If the Democrats in Congress prove either weak or wicked it will not make much difference whom they nominate.

Mr. Arthur evidently believes that the Republican nomination for the Presidency will not amount to anything.

The chairman of the Democratic State central committee of Pennsylvania, has issued a call for a meeting of the State convention at Harrisburg on the 1st of August.

The Star route business will hurt the Republican party more than any scandal since the time of the salary grab and the Credit Mobilier.

General Grant is in favor of wiping out the internal revenue system. The General was politically wiped out some time since.

The colored people of Ohio also draw the line at Foraker. They say he once decided a case on the wrong side of the Civil Rights Act.

The New York Times concedes that if the Democrats are discreet and nominate a suitable candidate for President they are pretty sure to carry the country.

Pennsylvania's great argument for a high tariff is the alleged protection it gives to workmen. Yet half the workmen in the State are on a strike.

Texas economists are a peculiar class of people. That State is not only out of debt, but has money in the Treasury. It also runs railroads at three cents a mile.

The apparently irreconcilable differences in Republican ranks are giving the party great pain, since they prevent a solid movement in pursuit of the spoils.

Henry Whiting, 75 years of age, and his wife, aged 74 years, have been found near a cemetery in Brooklyn, he having cut his wife's wrist and then his own, under an agreement to die rather than starve. "The woman will die, but the man will recover."

As an example of the bitter animosity existing between factions of the Republican party, our attention has been called to the fact that at the trial of Cannon a few days since, in Salem, indicted for the crime of making an assault upon Senator Voorhees of that county with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, the "half breeds" joined hands all round for the purpose of convicting Cannon whether guilty or not guilty, while the "stalwarts" ranged themselves on the side of the defense, determined to acquit without considering whether the defendant is guilty or not guilty. All this is done by the immaculate leaders of the grand old party. Every day adds freshly to the accumulating disgust that is constantly driving decent men from the ranks of that party.

If the price of wool has declined on account of the reduction in the tariff, why has not the price of rye and barley declined upon which a reduction of 5 cts per bushel was made? Why has not the price of rice declined? Why has the price of hops declined to 24 cents per pound when the duty was raised from 5 to 8 cents per pound? Why has not vinegar upon which the duty was reduced from 10 to 7 1/2 cents per pound declined? Why have not acorns and dandelion roots declined in view of the fact that the duty was reduced from 3 to 2 cents per pound? Why has not blacking declined? Why have not cases and walking sticks declined? Why have not brooms declined? Why have not playing cards advanced when the tariff has been increased? Why have not plums declined when the tariff has been reduced?

The leaders of the Republican party have committed more moral and legal crimes than any other party that ever existed in the United States. No party ever condoned so many crimes as the Republican party has been made to do, not only through the selfishness of its leaders.

The disgraces and shames heaped upon the rank and file of that party, while denounced and condemned by most of them, were finally condoned. The Treasury Ring which completed its nefarious schemes on the memorable Black Friday, was never punished. The whisky ring which fattened upon ill-gotten gains, and almost gloried in its crimes in the very face of public opinion, was never adequately punished. Babcock, Grant's private Secretary, was indicted for his villainies in the whisky ring, but Grant saved him from the penitentiary.

Who was ever punished for the Indian Ring villainies, and port trade-shipping swindlings? Who was punished for the Credit Mobilier swindlings? None. But many were called to important offices; one to the highest office in the gift of the people. Then following down the line of the history of the Republican party, as made by its leaders, we come to Freedman's Bureau crimes for the commission of which not a single man was punished. These crimes were committed by those who were loudest in their professions of sympathy for the colored people. Then there was the Saa Domingo job, which was checked in its incipency by an indignant people, but the whole affair was whitewashed and covered up from the public gaze.

Then there was the salary grab and back pay steal, the fraudulent Mexican claims, the navy jobs, speculations in public loans, the damnable public land swindles, the mutilation of the great ledgers in the Treasury department for the express and avowed purpose of forcing balances, and then that greatest and most execrable crime ever committed against the rights of any people, the stealing of the presidency in 1876. And was any body ever punished for absolutely swindling the people of Louisiana out of the electoral vote of that State? On the contrary, Garfield, who contributed largely to that crime, was made President of the U. S., and nearly every one who conspired to commit that crime was given an appointment to some lucrative office by Hayes, the beneficiary of that fraud and crime. Now this is a fair, faithful statement of the truth of the history of that party during the last decade. Now to all this damning schedule of crimes against public morality, public decency, and the law of the land is to be added the swindling of the government out of large sums of money by the star route ring, and after two trials costing the government half a million dollars, these detestable leaders, who were the pet advisers of Hayes' administration, have been declared not guilty. In all these things we would call the leaders of that party to account. The great body of the voters of that party have intended that no such crimes should be committed. But these corruptionists have such complete control of the organization of that party, that the rank and file are utterly unable to shake off the incubus that is thus weighing it down, and from year to year these "practical politicians" go up to the conventions of the party, and if they do not get nominations themselves, they dictate the names of those to whom nominations shall be given. Is it any wonder that the better elements of the party are growing sick and tired of being made such men as Dorney and Brady? Every day old line Republicans are to be met with, who declare their intention to no longer identify themselves with that party, and declare themselves in favor of a change. Will a change bring us a purer administration? We believe it will, hence we urge it. If not, we hope the change will not come.

It was a fitting finale to the Star route trial that the acquitted defendants and their enthusiastic admirers should adjourn to the "Hole-in-the-wall" and celebrate their legal victory over the government they had plundered by a drunken carouse. That kind of moral debauchery which teaches that government revenues are lawful prey is accurately typified by and generally accompanied with the habits of drunkenness and rioting. To the people who desire that their government shall be an honest one, and that the law shall reign supreme, the sight will not prove a pleasant one. The realization of the fact that corrupt men in high places may appropriate millions of money rightfully belonging to the government to their own private uses, escape the just penalty of their crimes and defiantly spend the money so taken in drunken orgies before the very doors of the temple of justice, is not calculated to give much pleasure or comfort to the genuine patriot. But what else could have been expected? The verdict rendered by a jury, one member of which at least was in a state of intoxication himself, could logically be followed by a big drunk all round, in order that the eternal fitness of things might be maintained.

It should not be forgotten that if the reduction in the tariff on wool by the last Congress is the cause of the decline in the price of wool, then the Republican party is wholly responsible therefor, as the law was passed almost exclusively by the votes of that party.

Senator Anthony has so far recovered as to be able to leave this afternoon for Oakland Beach.

A fearful war is being waged against trade dollars in the East. They will probably have to go.

The jury in the case of Miller, who was indicted for the killing of Dr. Olena in Colusa county, California, disagreed and was discharged.

Charles Cass, a lawyer, and grand nephew of General Louis Cass, of Michigan, is reported to the police as missing.

For common, 25.9 cents per pound; pulled, 33.8 cents per pound; merino, 45 cents per pound. These figures furnish food for reflection.

The Omaha strike of printers continues and the newspapers are issuing regularly, and the offices are filling up slowly with non-union men.

A Burlington, (Ia.) Gazette special to-day says 300 negroes have arrived at the White Breast coal mines at Cleveland, Ia., taking the place of strikers there.

There were 109 deaths from cholera at Damiatta last Saturday. The cholera appeared at Samonod, a small town fifty miles southwest of Damiatta.

The steamship Nevada brings 680 Mormon converts, in charge of twenty-two missionaries. Of the converts from Sweden, Denmark, Wales, England and Norway, the number of men and women are about equal.

Richard F. Biene, who engaged in a duel with Elam, accompanied by his second, as well as Andrew Biene and H. Smith, Jr., reached Baltimore last Saturday. Their further movements are not known.

We see that wool under the law rates of duty which ruled from 1857 to 1861 brought higher prices than it did under the high rates which ruled from 1874 to 1880. We throw these figures out for the consideration of fair, candid thinking high protectionists, whether they be Republicans or Democrats.

The suit of Marvin, of Fargo, Dak., against the Northern Pacific Railroad Company for damages for the loss of both his legs, while an employe on the road, has been decided, and damages in the sum of $20,000 granted. The suit will be appealed to the Supreme Court.

Biene, editor of Richmond, (Va.) State, and Elam, editor of Richmond, (Va.) Whip, fought a duel last week near Waynesboro, in that State with pistols at a distance of eight paces. Two shots each were fired, Elam being struck in the fleshy part of the thigh, but the wound is not considered dangerous. Biene was untouched. The trouble grew out of local politics.

The following telegram has been received from Fort Assiniboine: "About 100 lodges of Crees are preparing to move South, under the leadership of Little Pine, for the ostensible purpose of hunting the buffalo, but in reality to steal horses and commit other depredations in Montana. Colonel Ilges will intercept them and see that their sojourn on this side of the line is short."

End of track on the west end of the N. P. R. R. is at Hattieshake Creek, beyond Missoula. Accommodations for through passengers now are better, since both terminal points are at the cities of Helena and Missoula. The staging between those points is made in thirty hours, by two daily coaches running each way. The first through regular passenger train from the west, with Pullman sleepers attached, will arrive here to-night.

The average price of wool from 1846 to 1857 was 32.8 cents per pound on common wool; 41.6 cents for merino; 31.3 for pulled. These prices obtained under a tariff duty of 30 per cent ad valorem, or about 5 cents per pound when the price of wool is 17 cents. The average price of wool from 1857 to 1861 was for common wool 34.3 cents per pound; for merino 45.4 cents; pulled 30.6 cents. This was under a tariff duty of 24 per cent, on all wools above the price of 20 cents per pound, while all wool under that price was admitted free. From 1874 to 1880 under a high tariff duty, the average price of wool was as follows:

A special from Fremont, O., the home of ex-President Hayes, states that George J. Krebs, the recently removed postmaster, has disappeared. When last seen in town he was going out on Birchard avenue and a little later was seen several miles in the country on his way to a neighboring town, probably to take the train to Toledo, O., and thus avoid his family and friends. Several suits have been commenced against him to secure claims for borrowed money. Krebs did well until a year ago, when he became too intimate with a young widow, on whom he lavished $4000 of the government's money. This he made good by the sale of property. It is thought he has gone to join the widow, as a letter from him was found by some member of his family about the time of his departure, and the contents are enough to justify this opinion.

General Crook and Captain Bourke, aide-de-camp, arrived in Denver last week, en route to Washington via Omaha and Chicago. Crook was interviewed this evening, and says the telegraphic report that the hostilities were again on the war path, is absolutely without foundation. In fact, he says they were glad of an opportunity to surrender, and fully realize that further demonstration by them would be disastrous. With News, Loco and Donito subdued, and old Juh a refugee from his own tribe, further trouble is quite impossible. A few squaws and children only remain out, and they are expected in hourly, and beyond doubt will bring in Charlie McComan. The general is of the firm belief that the Indian trouble is permanently settled.

A quantity of sand taken from the Columbia river, a short distance above Astoria, was recently sent to parties in San Francisco, with a view of applying a new process of extracting gold from sand, and which the Columbia river sand is said to contain in paying quantities. The experiment has been successful, as the following results will attest: An ordinary bucket was filled with the sample sent here, and after being put through the new process yielded an amount of precious metal equal in size to an ordinary pea. The parties interested feel confident of making a huge success, and have already filed application for a patent. As soon as it is granted a company will be organized for the purpose of carrying on the work on a large scale. The owner of the patent is a well known mining engineer of that city, who built the first mill on the Comstock.

In the criminal court, in the closing address in the Cook murder case, United States District Attorney, Calkhill, made the following remarks: "I cannot allow this occasion to pass without calling attention to the remarkable exhibition of want of character in the witnesses, both for the government and defense, in this case and one other trial a few weeks ago of a similar character. Almost one hundred witnesses have been examined, and so much perjury uttered and disregard of the obligations in an oath I never before saw in a court of justice. It suggests to me that those worthy and benevolent gentlemen and ladies, who are soliciting money and devoting their time to reform and christianizing of the heathen from Greenland to Africa, can work closer at home—here at their own capital. If these hundred people represented the neighborhoods in which they live, under the very dome of this temple of justice and within the sound of the church bells, there is a field here ripe for the harvest and worthy of labor, as fully demanding their attention as can be found on the sands of Africa or the shores of Abyssinia."

The volume of general trade during the week in New York has been of exceptionally small proportions, even for the season of the year. This is due to the unsatisfactory result of the regular spring season generally. It had been expected that the summer traffic would be larger than usual, but thus far the expectation has not been realized. Business is characterized by the same marked conservatism that was so conspicuous during the spring months there being a general disposition to defer for all transactions not imperatively necessary until the new tariff goes into operation, when some definite idea may be formed as to the effect a change in duties is likely to have on values. As the new law becomes operative on Monday this restraining influence may be said to have reached the limit, though some little time will be necessary for the readjustment of the machinery of the trade to the new order of things. The present indications are that crops, as a whole, throughout the country, will be such as will insure the basis of a prosperous season for trade during autumn. California merchandise is extremely quiet, but prices are firmer. Two thousand hides sold a 20 1/2, cash; 20,000 pounds spring wool, 19 1/2; 20; quickly held at 35 1/2; sperm oil is held above buyers' views; whale oil is firm.

A singular case of insanity, creating much excitement, comes from Brush Valley, a small town near Ashland, Schuylkill county, Pennsylvania. Mrs. Moore, a widow lady living with her son, was alarmed by the noise he made during the progress of a thunder storm. She ran into the room and found the man by almost dead. She succeeded in quieting him, when he said, that during the raging storm he was startled by seeing, by the dim light of a lamp which burned in the room, a man raising the window. Almost paralyzed with fear, he sat in bed unable to move until, by the aid of a vivid flash of lightning, he perceived the features of the man to be similar to those of his father, who was killed in the mines. With the shriek that so startled his mother he sank on the bed, and the intruder fled hastily. When the mother had heard his story she, too, perceived the same face on the panes of glass. She sprang to the window and fell a distance of twenty feet, receiving severe injuries. The neighbors brought her to her senses, and when she glanced at young Moore she burst into a violent fit of laughing. Young Moore was taken with spasmodic attacks. He fainted at the mouth and barked like a dog. A young farmer named Herick attempted to quiet him, and took hold of his hand. No sooner had he done so than he was seized with fearful spasms and laid on the floor in intense agony, exhibiting the same symptoms as the others. The neighbors assembled, became frightened and ran away, leaving the three alone. Mrs. Moore was raving mad, and the two young men commenced demolishing the furniture. A physician soon arrived and attended to the cases. Herick was taken to his home, and will be taken to an asylum. No hope is entertained of Mrs. Moore's recovery. Her son was very violent yesterday and could scarcely be held by four men.

At Pendleton, Mrs. Kunzler was cleaning up a bed in which a fire had broken out, and pulled the sheet off, jerking from under the pillow a pistol, which exploded, killing her little four-year-old child Bertha instantly.

But has been begun in the Kings county supreme court by Willis M. Finch, a resident of Brooklyn Heights, against William Cauldwell, as proprietor of the Sunday Mercury, to recover $50,000 for libel. The publication of which Finch complains appeared in the paper named on Nov. 12, 1882, and it charged him with acting the viper in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Brooke. Being on friendly terms with the couple, he informed the wife, as alleged, of the escapades of her husband with other ladies, and the result was that she brought an action for divorce from Mr. Brooke. Finch alleges that the defendant published the above article with the intent to charge the plaintiff with being a person of a deceitful, intriguing, mischief-making, ungrateful and lawless disposition, and with having craftily and deceitfully instigated himself into the confidence and favor of Mr. and Mrs. Brooke, and with having abused the confidence reposed in him. At the time of the publication of the libel, plaintiff was a salesman with Kirby & Halsey, of Front street, New York.

The New Orleans Times-Democrat in treating of the above subject says that last week a cargo of 413 Mormons arrived in New York. This government has already been notified of their coming by the United States consul at Basle, Switzerland, and attention has been called to the fact that they were paupers, and their landing could be prevented under the law prohibiting the landing of paupers in this country. In other words, it was proposed to test the efficiency of this law. Its inadequacy was very clearly demonstrated. The Mormon emigrants all swore they were not paupers, the Mormon priests promised to care for them and take them to Salt Lake City; and the government was consequently powerless to prevent their landing.

Down in North Carolina they appear to take a different view of the situation, and propose to meet the Mormons not with law but with mob violence. Trouble is evidently brewing in those portions of the State where the Mormon missionaries are carrying on their proselyting. In Gaston and Rutherford counties are a host of Mormon priests, vigilant, active and successful. They are winning converts by the score—principally young women, whom they immediately baptize and send west to Utah. A large number of converts, however, are kept at home, and in the western portion of the State are several communities in which the Mormons are actually in a majority. These colonies are the chief causes of trouble to come, as they lay the groundwork for more pronounced Mormonism hereafter.

The method of the Mormon elders in securing recruits and converts is said to be very vile. They generally travel along on foot through the country like tramps. When they reach a farmhouse, they wait until all the men have left it, and enter and ask for a glass of water. Their conversation turns on religion, and, skilled as they are in preaching and proselyting, they succeed in persuading the women to attend a Mormon meeting, and this step gained, they slowly but surely win them over to the church of Latter Day Saints.

As we have said, considerable feeling has been aroused in Western North Carolina by the operations of these Mormons, and the better classes of the community are resolved to stop this missionary work, which is carried on principally among the most ignorant people. There is some talk of appealing to the Legislature to pass a law somewhat similar to that in force in Georgia, directed against the Mormons. There are others, however, who prefer more violent means of getting rid of these invaders, and the following advice of the Charlotte Observer finds many backers and supporters: "It is a shame to our civilization that such things are permitted in our midst, and missionaries are needed. The sort of missionary, however, and one to suit the case best, is in the household of nearly every man in the country, or it can be procured at any hardware store. It is a shotgun. Introduce a few of these pistols to this missionary and our country will soon be effectually rid of them."

John Sherman talks in the most cheerful way about Republican prospects in Ohio. This would doubtless be very reassuring to timid Republicans if Mr. Sherman would stoutly stick to his first assertion—that the Republicans will carry the State. But when he follows the assertion with the qualification that, if they don't it won't make any difference, as there is room for a lurking suspicion that he is trying to let himself down easy in case of a defeat, which he fears may be possible. Mr. Sherman could have had the nomination for asking, and if it was a sure thing, it would have been a mighty good stepping-stone to the Presidency, which everybody knows he wants. Such insignificant straws lead to the inference that Mr. Sherman isn't half so sure about the result as he says he is.

Head Squat. While walking along Sixteenth street recently we ran across a gentleman considerably the worse for liquor and as tramping a looking character as one would care to meet this side of Salem. We eyed him closely. During our gaze, he said, (He) "You think I'm just slightly drunk, do yer?"

"Well, my friend, it looks very much that way," we answered. "There's where you're mistaken, my blood's clear as any man's." "You evidently don't know what it is to be drunk," we continued. He straightened up, a look of intelligence spread itself over his countenance, when he spoke thusly: "I don't, ah, well, I'll show you. According to the learned savants of a celebrated Biological society to which I belong, a proportion of one part of alcohol to 195 parts of blood. But a few moments ago I made a thorough analysis of my blood and I found only one part to 200 of blood, so that I yet have a chance to reduce it 165 parts, but knowing that death follows should it fall to 100 parts I shall be very careful to visit a saloon but several times more."

Observing Marshal Burkhardt in the distance on the corner of First and Ferry we winked at him and had the scamp arrested. He has since been sent to East Portland. The above contains its own moral.

How to Kill a Town. As some of our citizens are anxious to know how to kill a place we give the following receipt, taken from an exchange: "Send east for everything that you can purchase two cent cheaper than the merchants of the town can afford to sell. If you have a few dull days of business ahead every one you meet of the town, stop your advertisements in the paper, and let your general dejection be most apparent. Do not attend any public meetings or assist any public improvements, and should any improvements be projected, find every possible fault with them, predict their failure, and publish your disapproval whenever an opportunity presents itself. Abuse all those who may happen to show a lively interest in the welfare of the community. Continue in this spirit throughout the affairs of your daily life, and when you have succeeded in instilling a sufficient degree of general nastiness, wonder why your customers have forsaken you; attribute it to the lack of enterprise in the paper where you will not advertise, and have vilified. Then you will find perhaps that the town is not so good as it should be, and that the great object you have had in view is nearly accomplished; the town being dead you will doubtless be happy."

No person shall be summoned as a juror in any Circuit Court more than once in one year, and it shall be sufficient cause of challenge to any juror called to be sworn in any cause, that he has been summoned and attended said Court as a juror at any term of said Court held within one year prior to the time of such challenge, or that he has been summoned from the bystanders or body of the county, and has served as a juror in any cause upon such summons within one year prior to the time of such challenge.
