

The Democrat.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 24, 1883.

Judging from the political chatter in Ohio the sparrows have all flocked thither.

Shades of Ashland! Henry Clay, grandson of the great Commoner, was defeated for the Legislature on Monday in Kentucky.

Sullivan, the Boston slinger, might be probably employed in knocking out the Pennsylvania Legislature.

The portrait of Andrew Johnson is to be placed on the new four-cent letter stamp. This will be quite in contrast with the determined effort made to impeach him in 1868. In spite of the vindication by a return to the Senate he died too early to know of this latter honor.

General Crook's official report of his recent campaign against the Apaches indicates that he was not only not captured in that unpleasantness, but that he also knows how Indians ought to be governed, as well as how to catch them when they become obstreperous. The Texas colonels will have to invent something new.

The color line has been wiped out even in Washington, at the centre of Federal authority. A colored physician of Norwich, Connecticut, who appears to have been visiting Washington, complains before the Police Court that he was refused his breakfast in a restaurant on Pennsylvania avenue because he was a "nigger." The aggrieved doctor purposes to bring an action under the criminal provisions of the civil rights bill.

The detail of a lady's costume, and of an artist's costume especially, are always interesting. Sometimes they are even startling, as when we read that certain gloves worn by Madame Sarah Bernhardt in "Fedora" measured four and half feet in length. That Sarah has very long arms is a fact which the caricaturists have not failed to make us familiar, but a yard and a half does seem a little too much, until we recall those graceful folds and wrinkles that are so important a feature in this revival of an antique fashion.

The new law forbidding the landing of Chinese laborers in this country has had the effect of giving a new turn to the smuggling business. The Northwestern coast thus promises to become the scene of a unique and most interesting traffic. It is said that some thing like a hundred of Dennis Kearney's friends have already been smuggled across the line, where they have gone to work at anything they can find with the traditional industry of their race, and as the outward appearance of one Chinaman of the class which comes here is much the same as another it bids fair to be impossible to put a stop to the business unless a cordon of soldiers are posted along the whole Northwestern line within hailing distance of each other.

The Elmira cashier who lost $200,000 in land speculation and wrecked his bank can be said to have a brilliant financial career behind him, but not a pleasing prospect ahead of him. He had carried on the speculation for a long time without the knowledge of his father, who is at the head of the concern, and now its ruin can scarcely be averted. He has taken money in his own name and in that of his wife, all of which has been remorselessly swallowed up in this speculative gulf. A good dose of Jersey Justice in New York would probably be about the best medicine which could be prescribed, not only on his own account, but on that of several hundred other bank officials in the same State, who are taking the same risk every day. When banks cannot be trusted to keep the funds of their depositors sacred from gambling, it is about time heroic measures were inaugurated and carried out with something like promptness and vigor.

It is very clear that all the sham heroes are not yet dead. The average conclusion of mankind is that Captain Webb was not only foolhardy but guilty of little less than suicide in drowning himself in the Niagara whirlpool. But from Salamanca, New York there springs up a man that wants to do all that Captain Webb did and pay a thousand dollars for the privilege of doing it. It is asserted that an oil barrel half filled with water and decorated with flags went safely through the rapids on Saturday morning. Of course Captain J. D. Rhodes thinks himself better than an oil barrel, and having a patent life-preserving armor of his own invention he is willing to stake his life and a thousand dollars on a splendid advertising of the same. Perhaps the Captain can beat Webb and the oil barrel and the whirlpool too. But if so the Niagara rapids will soon become the most popular, because the most exciting, bathing place and swimming school on the continent. It is said that every great enterprise must have its victim, and perhaps Webb was only the victim necessary to inaugurate a perfect Niagara of swimming armor, dancing in the whirlpool to the music of the falls. Some men will be boys as long as they live.

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE

A trip to Yaquina Bay, like all trips to tide water by pleasure seekers, is one of romance, pleasure, beauty, enthusiasm, enchantment. All the attendant circumstances on such a trip are those that contribute to the health, comfort and pleasure of the pleasure-seeker. It is one continual unbroken line of sweets with no bitter things. True, the joltings of a rumbling lumber wagon ordinarily are not calculated to inspire one with an exuberance of hope for unalloyed bliss. The clouds of dry, suffocating dust which continually envelop the traveler, under ordinary circumstances would detract from one's comfort and pleasure, but on a trip like this these things make up the very spice and luxury of the trip. When, at night fall, the weary traveler pitches his tent for the night, and, when, too late, he finds that he has made his bed near the bed of a hog pen, whose vigorous vermin keep up a lively game of hide-and-go-seek over his person during the entire night, his first impression will be that all is not happiness on such excursions, but here again the sober second thought will incline him to believe that herein is one of the vital beauties of a Summer trip to "old ocean's beach." Then again when all hands have to alight and take a long, tedious, wearisome walk up the steep declivity known as the "Devils Back Bone" to save horse flesh, one will be inclined to think that the bitter is impinging on the sweet, but here too is error, as this very walk is the life-exhilarating exercise so much sought after by coast-ward hunters of enjoyment.

And when the "borders of the Bay" are reached, and the sand is found to be almost impassable to a pedestrian, it will be looked upon as a hardship until we recollect that not all localities can afford such mountains of sand and we readily conclude that the rarity of a thing makes it a luxury, hence we accept sand hills as luxuries. Then when tents are spread and we feel that we are safely ensconced in our cozy retreat, secure from the inclemency of wind and weather, we are momentarily shocked when a storm of raging, unrelenting wind, seemingly with "malice aforethought," strikes our tent abroadside and in the twinkling of an eye places it hors de combat so to speak, we think our surroundings are not of the most inviting kind, but knowing that with some of us this was the first experience of the kind in life, its very rarity renders it attractive, and, being fully persuaded just at this moment that we will never in all future time be the victims of such untoward circumstances, we see its rarity and accept it as a luxury, one of the very objects of our search. So it is when the storm arises and the rains beat against and through our tents and wet bed clothing and camp equipage generally, we accept it as one of the beauties of a trip down to the sea. It is really a grand sight to see the majestic waves sweeping tents from their "moorings" and leaving their inmates exposed to the beating, cruel storms of the "howling sea."

Surely all these incidents, accidents and circumstances combine to make this trip one continued round of pleasure and enjoyment. There is enjoyment and comfort even in standing in mud and water six inches deep digging "shrimp bait" with which to catch the finny tid bits to tickle the palate. But enough of all this.

The people who are permanently settled here are more or less discouraged over the fact that work has been discontinued on the O. P. R. R. Various surmises and conjectures are indulged in as to the cause of such discontinuance as well as the prospect of an early opening of work again. Some say with a wise shake of the head that work will very shortly be resumed under a new management and that the work will then be pushed forward vigorously to final completion. Others equally wise say that work on the railroad will keep pace only with the work on the breakwater, while others say all hopes of an early completion of the road are blasted. It is due to candor to say that these opinions are of outside parties who may have no means of knowing what the actual state of things is concerning the matter. But the ceasing to work on the road has fallen like a wet blanket on the whole settlement about the Bay. The work on the Breakwater is said to be progressing satisfactorily to those who have it in charge.

Not being an engineer or builder we are not prepared to express an opinion of weight, but to an inexperienced eye the work seems to be one of great magnitude and importance. The details of the work seem to be fully and faithfully carried out. Mr. Polhemus is said to be a gentleman and a faithful Superintendent of the work. Mr. Nice, the foreman, was gentlemanly and courteous in showing us over the work. Work will continue on the breakwater until the appropriation is exhausted which will be about the middle of September or the first of November. Great interest is felt in the question as to whether Congress will make another appropriation to continue this work. The general opinion is that Congress will make a liberal appropriation for this purpose. At least one hundred thousand dollars, it is said by the men in charge, should be appropriated to carry on the work. But whatever appropriation is made, it will not be available until July 1, 1884, hence after the closing up of work this fall, it will not be renewed until the date above stated.

During our stay here we have met the following Albany folks: D. Mansfield and family, Joseph Webber and family, W. B. Scott and family, the Misses Flora and Allie Rumbaugh, P. W. Spink and wife, Capt. Shields and family, Miss Victorine Riley, Dr. R. C. Hill, wife and daughter, George Piper, Hiram Kinton, Joseph Watson and family, all of whom seemed to have had a general good time and returned home, except J. Watson who will make his future home here.

DEATH OF JERE BLACK.

Judge J. Black died at 2:10 o'clock Aug. 19. Though not unexpected, his death was sudden and the shock was great to the community. On Saturday morning he seemed somewhat better, but the improvement was too slight to justify hopes of recovery. An unfavorable change began about 4 in the afternoon, and he gradually grew worse, but remained conscious almost to the end and died peacefully. From the beginning of his illness Judge Black believed he never would recover, and was perfectly resigned. Mrs. Black, Lieutenant Governor Chauncey, F. Black and wife, Henry Black, Mr. and Mrs. Tamm, G. Hornaby, A. B. Farquhar and Dr. Meisenholder were present when he died. Many telegrams of condolence have been received. The funeral will take place Tuesday at 9 o'clock p. m. The remains are to be interred at Prospect Hill Cemetery. Dr. Powers, of the Christian Church, will probably officiate at the funeral. Shortly before Judge Black died he said to his wife, "How can I fear to cross the river when my father waits for me on the other shore?" and added, "Would I were as comfortable about all I leave behind unfinished in the world," and then he breathed the following earnest prayer: "Oh, thou most beloved and merciful Heavenly Father, from whom I have my being and in whom I have ever trusted, if it be Thy will, grant that my suffering may end and that I be called home to Thee. And, oh, may God bless and comfort thee, my Mary."

The capture of George W. Smith, the alleged murderer of Mrs. Petch, has caused a great deal of excitement and speculation in Yamhill county. A gentleman coming to Portland from that locality Monday, informs the Standard that he had a talk with the captured man, but during the talk Smith said nothing more of his connection with the crime with which he is charged than was reported in the Standard of Monday morning. Smith is about fifty years of age, and is not a pleasant appearing man, though there is little about him which would indicate the murderer. Public sentiment is setting in strongly against him in that county, owing to the well known fact that Mrs. Petch and he had a series of very bitter quarrels about some property, and Smith knew perfectly well that the woman had been digging up his record in Kansas, which she intended to use in her fight against him. Smith admits the charge of perjury hanging over his head in Kansas, and says that he has hidden away during the past year. Judge Boise has ordered a special term of the Circuit Court to be held in Lafayette, September 24, for the trial of Smith.

What is free trade? In one sense it is the raising of revenue to support the General Government by direct taxation. In another sense, it is supporting the General Government partly by tariff duties on tea, coffee, and other articles not produced in this country, repudiating all protection and encouragement of home productive industry and labor. But this would not certainly be free trade, while foreign countries levy a tariff on our exports received by them. Free trade cannot exist without reciprocity between our country and the foreign countries with which we trade. Our free trade politicians, in the interests of foreign importers and producers, would have all tariff duties taken off all foreign manufactured goods, while our goods taken abroad to the same countries were taxed by heavy duties there. There cannot be free trade without reciprocity; so that all the declamation about free trade as to our tariff system is mere bomb.

The immediate cause of Judge Jere Black's death was toxemia, produced by the absorption of retained urine, prior to the operation of Thursday. Dr. McKenna, of York, who had spent the day with the patient, noticed the appearance of unfavorable symptoms about 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Dr. Meisenholder, who relieved McKenna, also noticed the change for the worse, and from that hour the increasing gravity of his symptoms indicated a gradual failure of the vital forces. Judge Black suffered greatly during his illness, but his last moments were without acute pain, and he passed quietly away, retaining consciousness until within a few minutes of his death.

The approximate gross earnings of the Denver and Rio Grande Railway, including the Utah leased line, for the second week of August was $130,000, against $112,000 for the corresponding week one year ago; increased earnings since the first of January amount to $430,000.

GENERAL NEWS

The Second National Bank of Watrous, Ohio, closed its doors this evening. K. M. Fitch, the cashier, is reported to be a defaulter to the amount of $70,000 or $80,000.

Deaths from cholera in Egypt on Saturday were 310, and including fifty at Cairo. Another death from cholera occurred at Beyrout, Syria.

During the storm Sunday, lightning killed forty sheep and severely injured twenty-one at the Stewart farm, near Gordon City, New York.

The latest gossip about Senator Fair, now abroad, is down for another marriage. The bride is to be the daughter of Professor Dare, a London expert in telegraphy.

A young man by the name of Nichols stopping near Eugene, accidentally shot himself while handling a loaded gun Sunday. The shot took effect in the right side and inflicted a very ugly flesh wound. Dr. Patterson was called and dressed the wound. At last accounts the patient was doing well and will no doubt recover.

While the whole country is interested in Democratic talk of the old ticket of 1876, the Oakland Times says no one speaks up for a renewal of the Republican ticket of that year. Hayes and Wheeler are in their physical prime, why not nominate them? If they get office fairly and administered it honestly they will not run them again! Until the Republican party does run them it confesses they were not elected before. Its only historic vindication will be to run them again.

It is reported that D. P. Thompson, of Portland has been awarded the contract for the construction of the great railway bridge to span the Willamette at that place. The sum of $650,000 is given as the contract price. Mr. Thompson was not the lowest bidder, but he was the only responsible bidder. It is stated that the contract calls for a completed structure within twelve months.

The London Times says of the brilliant depiction of distinguished Germans who sail on the Elbe, on the invitation of Henry Villard to make the grand transatlantic excursion on the Northern Pacific. "Himself a Bavarian, Villard has still a warm heart for the fatherland and consequently desires to see Bavaria well represented in the hour of his triumph. But he is as proficient in the arts of advertisement as he is remarkable for the virtue of patriotism, and the Northern Pacific will be pretty well known to German emigrants in a month or two."

Aug. 20.—Gov. Hamilton of Ill. has issued a proclamation offering $200 reward for the arrest and conviction of any or which resulted in the killing of Nelson Howard, a negro, in Pulaski county, on the night of July 9. Howard was accused by a coroner's jury of killing John Kane, a railroad employe, on the night of July 4. That so enraged Kane's friends that they visited the jail two days later and hanged the alleged murderer. The governor's attention having been called to these facts, he has now issued this proclamation for a reward for the conviction of the rioters.

William G. Farwood, a white man, married a colored girl of Sandbergh, Mich. one week ago last night a party took him from his bridal chamber in the negro quarters and treated him to a coat of tar and feathers, and gave him free passage on the railroad out of the corporation. The last seen of him he was taking Horace Greely's advice and going West. He was helped along with small stones. Farwood left Cleveland a couple of months ago with a party of house painters. When the other parties returned Farwood decided to remain in Michigan, stating that he could get more work there. He is a fine-looking, intelligent fellow, 32 years old. He left a wife and two children behind him in Cleveland. During his residence in that city he was a man of good habits and was well liked by his employers.

For a crime said to have been committed ten years ago, Michael Danner, jr., station agent at Mareilles, Illinois, on the Chicago and Rock Island railroad was arrested Wednesday by Detective Thorp, and taken to Buffalo by Deputy Sheriff March, of that city. According to the police, the prisoner in 1873 was chief clerk in the Lake Transportation office of the New York Central office, and was in charge of the line of propellers plying between Buffalo and Chicago. Besides occupying a good social position, he was treasurer of the Odd Fellows' Benevolent Association of the state of New York, and secretary and treasurer of the Buffalo lodge of Odd Fellows. He suddenly disappeared, leaving his wife and friends without a word, and it was found that he was a defaulter to the lodges to the amount of $3000 or $5000. Detectives looked for him in vain, and finally gave up the search. His wife finally died, and he presumably heard of it, for he married again, and coming to this state from Canada obtained a position as station agent at Mareilles, going under the name of F. M. Denner. An old acquaintance saw him recently and recognized him, and notified the sheriff at Buffalo. The services of Detective Thorp of the central station were secured, with the result mentioned. Denner broke down when the charge was read to him, and confessed everything. He is about forty-three years of age and of intelligent appearance.

LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE

SCIO NOTES

Scio, Or., Aug. 23, 1883.

We have but few items to send you this week. Our town being unusually quiet the most interesting feature of the day is that the dry goods drummers have begun their solicitations to sell fall and winter goods.

Wm. Bilyeu of Jefferson has a good business in the livery line having brought over two loads of drummers yesterday, and the biz. has just begun. Willie Beard is able to let out again. He fell out of a tree one day last week, falling 20 feet or more, and had not professional skill been right at hand it would have been a fatal occurrence.

The marriage of Mr. J. H. Daniel, of Albany, and Miss Lizzie Johnson, of Scio, on the 14th inst., was the first occurrence of the kind in our city for quite awhile, and will probably be followed shortly by a number during the fall and winter seasons to the hymeneal altar. Mr. and Mrs. Daniel have the well wishes of many friends here. We were requested to express the thanks of the young couple to the Scio Brass Band for the music furnished by them in the serenade and that it was highly appreciated by them.

The Band accepts the compliment as they fully enjoyed the occasion, being courteously invited in also to enjoy themselves at a fine supper. May they live long to enjoy the realities of a happy marriage.

The city is to have a new jail.

The fall term of school will commence about the first of next month.

Harvest is almost completed. Everybody surprised and well pleased to have more grain than they were expecting. The principal part of the grain is being stored at the Jefferson warehouse this season.

Myers & Son will have their new mill in running order by the last of the week.

CALIFORNIA LETTER.

San Bernardino, Cal., Aug. 15, '83. Eds. Democrat: I arrived at the above named place on July 23rd, and after a day or two rest, I proceeded to view the objects of interest and find this town nicely laid out into streets and doing a lively business.

The population is about 3,000, and made up from nearly all classes, but a great many Eastern people have come in the last year. The large bodies of land and mines are attracting people from all the Eastern States. Land is much more valuable than one would suppose from its appearance as it is of a sandy nature but produces abundantly when supplied with water, which is done by means of irrigation, water being conveyed by ditches and is valued by the share, and sold by incorporated companies for such purposes.

Fruit is the principal crop in this valley, although barley and alfalfa are raised in considerable quantities. Fruit packing establishments are running and employ all the help that can be had. Peaches, apricots, pears, nectarines and grapes are raised in abundance.

It has been very dry here the last year and no rain is expected until about November when the rainy season begins. Mining is the principal object in the eastern part of the county, and in two weeks, since I came, there was 30 bars of silver bullion shipped from the King mine at Calico, valued at $45,000, and averages about $10,000 per week, while other mines are yielding large amounts.

The climate is delightful with pure air and a strong sea breeze, blowing nearly all the time, making it very pleasant.

In many respects this compares well with Oregon as the boys play ball and the girls bang their hair just the same. After a pleasant visit of three weeks and a visit to some of the most beautiful places in the valley, I will start on my homeward trip shortly.

J. D. BURKHART.

UNION, OR., AUG. 17th, 1883.

Eds. Democrat: Once more I grasp my pen to give you a few items from this place.

Weather warm and pleasant in the daytime but cold at nights.

It is very smoky caused by hunters and pleasure seekers being too careless with their camp fires or else it is pure cussedness.

Farmers are busy harvesting, the grain is turning out very well, the wheat crop will be larger than last year.

Emigrants are passing through town at the rate of from three to six teams a day bound for Washington Territory. The R. R. has not tapped our valley yet and will not before next Summer. They are grading on both sides of the valley in the Mountains, but as yet the road is not located in the valley.

While crossing the Blue Mountains a short time ago I had the pleasure of meeting my old friend T. P. McKnight who informed me that he was boss farmer on the Blue Mountains division of R. R. He is well liked by the R. R. Co. as a good faithful worker. May success attend him.

While in Walla Walla I had the pleasure of meeting with some more of old Linn farmers boys. Their names are John Nixon, Jun., of Lebanon, Duck Irvin of Scio, Robb McCauley also of Lebanon.

BROWNVILLE ITEMS.

Brownville, Or., Aug. 22, 1883.

Eds. Democrat: The Woolen Mills are just in receipt of 30,000 lbs. of wool from your city, 25,000 pounds of which was furnished by Mr. Samuel E. Young, and the balance by Mr. W. H. Goltra.

Dept. Sheriff Smith passed through town last Friday, but did not tarry long.

The Juvenile Minstrels gave us a three cent entertainment in the dog town Opera House on Saturday night.

The North Brownville graded school opens on the first Monday in September.

has, under the charge of Prof. J. B. Horner, and they anticipate quite a large school during the term.

T. S. Pillsbury, our watchmaker and Jeweller, who left here last May in search of a better place than this, after prospecting around over Eastern Oregon and Washington Territory, came to the conclusion he could find no place better than Brownville, and so returned here on Monday last and will locate permanently.

PHAD.

At the Jail.

Wednesday we called at the jail in company with Deputy Sheriff Smith and took a look at the unfortunate occupants of the different cells. On the left our poetical friend Bob Carmichael writes poetry and draws pictures to such an extent that the walls are pretty well covered with the latter and his cell filled with the former. Bob was a moulder and worked for Cherry & Parkes, but was a hard drinker, got in company with Geo. W. Taylor a drunken wanderer, and the first thing he knew was held to await the action of the grand jury for robbing Taylor. He will no doubt be discharged when the grand jury meets in October, for Taylor has left for parts unknown, and will not be here to appear against him. A German about 45 years occupies the apartment with Carmichael. He is quite despondent and takes things hard. He does not look like a very wicked man.

On the right side Tod Freeman and Riley Fields have been spending a week. They were arrested nine months ago for breaking a door in a Chinese establishment in Kalama. It seems they had been in the drinking, smoking opium, etc., when they became hilarious and made things lively. They have twenty-one months to serve. Fields is only eighteen and has an open, condoling countenance. It was easy to see that had company had been his ruin. Freeman is a mulatto, and a little older than his companion. He has a hard countenance and looks like a man much too blame for Fields' fall. The latter had spent most of his life in Kalama, but as he told it got to drinking, and this was the result. Both were taken back to Seaside yesterday.

"For goodness sake don't say we told you."

That if our citizens show a little enterprise they will get next year by a tide of immigration. That the North Pacific is a big institution. That a well known citizen is said to get tight on morphine, the next thing to opium smoking.

That people who owe for the Democrat without any inclination towards liquidating, very easily get money to go to the circus with. That times will be lively after harvest.

That a sensible man will not get mad when one disagrees with him: That Albany has no theater now. But it has an elegant Central school building.

That more people attend a circus than a lecture.

No; she ligured and suffered along pining away all the time for years, the doctors doing her no good; and at last was cured by this Hop Bitters the papers say so much about. Indeed! indeed! how thankful we should be for that medicine."

WANTED.

We want stock land, grain farms and all kinds of lands to sell to emigrants that are constantly arriving here in search of homes. We have made arrangements in Portland and San Francisco by which all persons that want to buy land in this part of Oregon will be sent to us. If you desire your land sold soon and on good terms call on or send for prospectus for descriptions.
