

NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC TICKET

For President, GROVER CLEVELAND of New York. For Vice President, THOMAS A. HENDRICKS of Indiana.

For Presidential Electors, A. C. JONES of Douglas county, L. B. ISON of Baker county, W. D. FENNON of Yamhill county.

Mr. Blaine is trying to carry water on one shoulder and whisky on the other.

"I can do something, I feel very sanguine, with Thomas A. Scott."—(Blaine to Fisher.)

"I do not feel that I shall prove a deadhead in the enterprise if I once embark in it."—(Blaine to Fisher.)

Judge Joseph R. Swan and Hon. John W. Andrews, both influential Republicans of Columbus Ohio say they cannot longer countenance the Blaine candidacy and will not vote for the republican ticket.

The man who writes a letter with the postscript, "Burn it" is pretty sure to get himself sooner or later. But never to soon.

The great prosperity which Blaine tells of is illustrated by a hoard of tramps in every county, stoppages of banks in every state, and the closing up of factories all over the country.

Tammany Hall has made the following nominations: For mayor Alderman Hugh J. Grant; controller, ex-Congressman P. Henry Dugro; district attorney, ex-Senator George A. Foster; president of the board of alderman, Dr. M. B. Messomer; judges of the court of common pleas, Richard L. Larimore, James F. Daly, re-nominated, and Hugh L. Cole.

The New York Times, which has long been regarded as the leading Republican newspaper in the United States is doing good work for the people in its opposition to the election of Blaine. It is emphatically no deadhead in the Presidential canvass, and the public is thoroughly glad to see its power turned to the service of the people and good government. It is true that we cannot expect it to display the frank loyalty of a Democratic newspaper to the party it has fought so long, but its love of independence and truth, and belief in fidelity to public trusts, will go far to compensate for this.

The Albany correspondent of the Boston Herald furnishes an interesting and instructive estimate of the vote of New York in the coming presidential election. He deducts from Garfield's vote of 550,000 in 1880, 40,000 Independents, 30,000 Protectionists, and 10,000 Butler Republicans, leaving to Blaine, on the basis of four years ago, 475,000 votes. To Hancock's vote of 335,000 he adds the 40,000 Independents, and from this deducts 60,000 Butler Democrats, giving to Cleveland 525,000. Conceding to Gen. Butler the Greenback vote of 1880, 12,000, his total vote would be 72,000, and St. John's 30,000. This would give to Cleveland a plurality of 50,000, allowing that each candidate will get the same proportion of the new voters. The Herald's correspondent probably underestimates the Cleveland Independent Republican vote and overestimates the Butler vote from all classes. The supporters of Butler have been counting on a large Tammany vote, which has evidently slipped out of their fingers.

Blaine's story about his first marriage is very thin. But very few persons believe the story. The very general impression is that it was very recently made up to suit the occasion. Blaine would never have said anything about his alleged recent marriage on the 30th of June, 1850, at Georgetown, Kentucky, had he not become apprised of the fact that the proprietor of the Sentinel could prove beyond dispute that Blaine was married at Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, on the 12th of March, 1851, and that his first child was born on the 18th day of June of the same year. The belief is general that, when Blaine saw the very awkward position in which he was placed before the public by the above facts, he manufactured this story to relieve himself of the embarrassment under which he was placed. Why did he not come before the public before and tell of this second marriage? Why did he wait until a bill of discovery had been filed by the defendant in his first suit which would compel him under oath to tell if it were true that he was married on the 12th of March, 1851, at Pittsburgh, Pa., and that his first child was born June 18th, 1851, about three months after the marriage? He persistently waited until he was driven into this very embarrassing dilemma, and then gave to the world a statement that he was married secretly in June 1850, in Kentucky. We repeat very few persons will believe his give credit to this statement.

FOR THE PEOPLE

We only need to read Blaine's letter of acceptance, (the first one), and then read Hendrick's speech at Toledo Ohio in order to determine which political party is the friend of the people. Mr. Hendrick's in the course of that speech asked if there ought not to be a change in National affairs; or in other words ought we as a Nation to go on from year to year as we have been going on in the past? I submit to you there are certain changes that every man ought to feel important and proper. First, there should be reform in the revenue system of the country. I shall not undertake to discuss this at length. I say there ought to be a change, a modification of the revenue system of the country. What did the President of the United States say to Congress two years ago? He said that the taxation of the people was beyond the demand of a Government economically administered and he urged upon Congress that immediate reform in that important particular ought to take place. He told Congress that annually there was being collected $100,000,000 from the pockets of the people that a fair and honest administration of the Government did not require. He told them that the next year it would be $115,000,000. At the next session of Congress, after the Republicans had somewhat amended the revenue laws, the Secretary of the Treasury called the attention of Congress again to the subject of revenue reform. He said that under the law as modified the excess collected from the people was $85,000,000.

Eighty-five million dollars collected from the people of this country every year beyond the demands of an economical administration of the Government: My fellow-citizens, the candidate for Governor of the State of Indiana in a speech not long since boasted of the fact that when the Republic party came into power it found an empty Treasury, but that now it has an excess in the Treasury of $400,000,000. His statement may be true. When this speech was made there was $400,000,000 lying idle and unemployed in the Treasury at the end of the year. There will be added to that in the new vaults another $100,000,000 and it will stand $500,000,000 wrong from the people beyond the demands of the Government.

Have you stopped to think how much that is! It is more than one half the paper currency of the United States, and when it comes to be $500,000,000, as it will be at the close of the year and before Congress can act, if the population of the United States is properly estimated at 50,000,000, then there is locked up in the Treasury and the vaults deg down beneath it, $8 to $10 for every man, woman and child in the country. What for!

I am arguing the question, ought there to be a change! The Democrats say in their platform at Chicago that revenue must be reduced to the requirements of the Government economically administered. What do you say to that my fellow-citizens! Are you a Democrat! Are you a Republican? Are you a Granger or Independent! Whatever may be your party relation, what do you say to that proposition of the Chicago Convention, that revenue shall be reduced to the needs of the Government economically administered. (Applause.) If you do not like that don't vote with the Democracy, for when the Democracy comes into power, I undertake to say that the machinery will be turned for a while—backward did I say! No, forward in favor of reform, reducing taxation to the wants of the Government economically administered. What are you going to collect any more for? (Voice, "Stealing.") Have you stopped to think that the money, which is now locked up, is a part of our currency, and that it has an office to perform, and that if the Government does not need it the people do. (Applause.) What does the Government don't need belongs to the people. If you owe it to the Government pay it. If you don't owe it to the Government for the purpose of carrying on its affairs economically administered don't pay it, just stop to think how much that $400,000,000 or $500,000,000 would do for you and yours. I don't know how much it would do. I know that in Indiana, with a soil of wonderful richness with many of the institutions that make wealth for the people, manufacturing establishments. I know that there is many a man that can not find employment, there is many a family that is hard pressed, because there is no employment for labor. Ought that to be with $400,000,000 locked up in the Treasury! The Democracy says: "Reduce taxation until the amount shall be just what the Government needs."

The Sentinel, (Jacksonville,) says: "The long public life of Hon. James G. Blaine in which he has proven himself to be a man of eminent ability, and unimpeachable integrity, together with the strictest test of his private life and character, which are without reproach have scattered to the winds the scandalous stories" which Democrats have circulated against him. We suppose the Sentinel, in referring to the test of Blaine's private life, had reference to his two marriages, both secret, and the first one of which, (if there ever was such a one), was invalid, and the second of which occurred three months and six days before the birth of his first child. Yes, verily these are the tests that Blaine relies on.

EYE OPENERS.

The Newport, Pa., News, republican, edited by F. A. Fry, always heretofore an uncompromising namesake, on Saturday last hoisted the banner of Cleveland and Hendricks to the mast head. "My whole connection with the road has been as open as the day. If there had been anything to conceal about it I should not have touched it."—[Blaine in house of representatives.] "No one will ever know from me that I disposed of a single dollar in Maine."—[Blaine to Fisher.]

Judge O. B. Hamilton, one of the famous "306" delegates to the Garfield convention, from Illinois, came out plump for Cleveland at Jerseyville, Ill., on Saturday, and in a strong speech gave his reasons for repudiating Blaine and Logan.

There are 358 German papers in the United States, of which 80 are supporting Blaine and 278 Cleveland. Heretofore, as is well known, a majority of these papers have been republican. Up to yesterday 650 of the members of the New York maritime and produce exchanges had joined the Cleveland and Hendricks club of that organization. The Mansfield, Ohio, Courier, a German newspaper, heretofore Independent in politics, is out for Cleveland and Hendricks.

The anti-Blaine Republicans of Milwaukee have organized for campaign work. Hon. Thaddeus C. Pound is to be chairman of the organization and Messrs. Sigel, Follett and Boetz, representative German Republicans of the city, are the vice presidents. A large number of voters have already signed the roll, and the number in Milwaukee alone is likely to be increased to 1800 or 2000. The movement is spreading to other parts of the state, and it is sure to assume proportions that will seriously alarm the supporters of the corrupt republican candidate. My object in writing is to ask in season, if your friends would desire to establish a bank at Little Rock? It will be to some extent a matter of favoritism as to who gets the banks in the several localities, and it will be in my power to cast an anchor to the windward in your behalf if you desire it.—(Blaine to Fisher.)

William S. Gilbert, a leading manufacturer of Cohoes, N. Y., declines the presidency of the fourth ward Blaine club of that city and says he means to vote for Cleveland.

In Mt. Washington, a little town in Berkshire county, which cast 25 votes for Robinson and 2 for Butler last year, it is reported, after a personal canvass, every vote will be cast for St. John this year. Mr. Faxon was at the prohibition headquarters yesterday wroathed in smiles. He still predicts a land slide from Blaine in this state, and thinks Gov. Robinson will be swamped by Edicott and Soelye. Edmund M. Wood, head of the firm of Henry Wood's Sons, 84 Oliver street, heads the call for an anti-Blaine republican organization in Natick. Mr. Wood has been a life-long republican, but thinks Blaine is corrupt from the crown of his head to the soles of his feet. On Wednesday evening last 99 republican voters of Seconk, Bristol county, met as per call, and after discussion it was voted, 85 to 14, to support St. John as a unit and to have no Blaine ballots at the polls on election day. Last year Seconk voted for Robinson 186, Butler 73, Almy 6. At an adjourned meeting it is believed that the few republicans in town who were not present at the meeting before meation will acquiesce.

And now the partisan news-gatherers of the Associated Press have entered upon their campaign in favor of Blaine. The dispatches are loaded down with glowing accounts of Blaine's electioneering tour through the country. Sickly, silly accounts are given about where and when Blaine took his dinner. Tells that at a certain hour and minute at a particular place, and under certain particular circumstances Mr. Blaine took a bath. Tells of his sneezing because he had a bad cold, and a thousand and one other silly, sickly things of the most trivial importance and all to help Blaine's canvass. The telegraph will be regarded with suspicion when speaking of political news.

Suppose, after his veto of the five-cent fare bill, Gov. Cleveland wrote to Cyrus W. Field, the principal stockholder, calling attention to the good service he had performed for the elevated roads in New York city? Suppose the Governor asked to be admitted to the enterprise, and assured Field that he would be no deadhead, and that he saw various channels in which he knew he could be useful, Suppose Cyrus W. Field gave the correspondence to the press. Would the Blaine organs have been willing to believe that the Gov. had been made the victim of designing men, that the transaction was of a purely business character and had no reference to the Governor's official integrity? Would they? Not much. They would have affirmed that Cleveland was a dishonest man. The democratic press is doing precisely what the republican journals would have done under similar circumstances.

DEATH OF HON. JOS. S. SMITH.

On last Sunday at 4 o'clock, p. m., Hon. J. S. Smith died at his residence in Portland. Mr. Smith was born in Pennsylvania in 1824, and was past sixty years of age at the time of his death. He came to Oregon in 1845. He studied law at Oregon City. He was married in 1849 to Miss Carter. In 1853 he moved to Puget Sound, where he served as prosecuting attorney for some time. He also served as a member of the legislature of that territory, being elected speaker of that body. After this he was appointed by President Buchanan U. S. district attorney for the territory. In 1858 he moved to Salem where he resided until 1870, when he moved to Portland where he has resided ever since until his death. In 1867 he went to Europe with his family for his health. In 1868 he was nominated by the Democratic party for congress against David Logan, who was the Republican nominee. Although the state was Republican, Mr. Smith was elected by 1200 majority. In 1882 he was nominated by the Democrats for governor, but, his health being very bad, he could not make a canvass, and had to let the matter go by default and was defeated. He was one of the very greatest men whose services the state has ever had. The Oregonian pays the following just tribute to his ability and integrity of character: "Mr. Smith was a natural orator. While he was not a vigorous public speaker and did not have much volume of voice, he impressed every intelligent hearer with his incisive, well-considered utterances which never lacked in force or dignity. His oratory might be compared to the William M. Evarts style, though he was scarcely so fluent as the great New York lawyer. Tall and of imposing presence, he commanded attention, and having once attracted an audience, held attention by his force of intellect, his earnestness and his evident sincerity. About the last time he ever spoke in public was before the democratic state convention which met in the Court House in this city a little over two years ago, and nominated him for governor. His speech accepting the nomination attracted wide attention. At that time he had just returned from a visit south in temporarily improved health, and it was generally remarked that his power as an orator had not weakened."

A few days since we saw a farmer who just started home from the city, after having disposed of a load of fine wheat at 50 cents. He had driven his wagon to the side of the road and stopped, and was busily engaged with pencil and paper as though he had some knotty arithmetical problem in hand. He accosted us with, "Say, Mr., be you good in figgers?"

Thinking it was some farmer who was "figgering" to see if he had received as much money as the number of bushels called for at 50 cents per bushel, we told him we had some knowledge of figures, and to accommodate him we would tell him how much he should have received if he would tell us the number of bushels he had. "Oh, Got darn it," said he, "I can figger that out myself; but what I can't get through my mind is this: If the farmer received 75 cents to $1 per bushel when there was no tariff at all on imported wheat, and only 50 cents per bushel when the tariff of twenty cents per bushel was imposed, how much would the tariff have to be increased in order that the farmer should get nothing at all for his wheat?"

We told him that he must ask Hon. M. C. George and Binger Hermann. He went away vowing that he would never vote again for one of those "protective" men. An immense German democratic meeting was held at the Academy of music in New York on Sept. 28. Gen. Sigel president. The throng in and around the building was immense. Oswald Ottendorfer, editor of the Staats Zeitung, Ex-Gov. Solomon of Wisconsin, and Joseph Pulitzer of the World made speeches. During the meeting Carl Schurz appeared on the platform. His appearance was the signal for the most enthusiastic and prolonged outburst of applause that has been heard in this city during this campaign. The audience simply went half wild, and shouted and cheered for over three minutes. At length Schurz, after having been called to the footlights, was permitted to say he was weary, after his extended trip through the west. He told his hearers he had met with the kindest reception all through the west, and that everywhere he found great enthusiasm for the democratic ticket.

An overflow meeting was held in Irving Hall. The enthusiasm was of the heartiest and most unbounded character. The tide of German republicans coming to the democratic nominee is swelling to cheering heights and proportions.

(For the Democrat) TO J. G. B.

Oh! he wants the Irish vote, And the German ones also, Does the shy, old artful dodger, Jimmy Blaine, The Irish may be gone, But they won't be caught with that From this shy old artful dodger, Jimmy Blaine Oh! Jimmy, Oh! Jimmy, your humbug is too thin, And to try your wiles on Paddy, I'm sure it is a sin.

You think Dutey's up to wire, But he's up to all your tricks, You say old artful dodger, Jimmy Blaine, And try it all you may, The German vote will stay, On the Democratic day, Jimmy Blaine, Oh! Jimmy, Oh! Jimmy, your humbug is too thin, And to try your wiles on Dutey, I'm sure it is a sin.

Even tho' it makes you ill, Cleveland and Hendricks fill the bill, Of the Irish and the Germans, Jimmy Blaine, Shoulder to shoulder they will stand, Both for Hendricks and Cleveland, So your dodges go for naught, Jimmy Blaine, Oh! Jimmy, Oh! Jimmy, your humbug is too thin, And to fool poor Pat and Dutey, I'm sure it is a sin.

Mr. J. C. Leasure, Republican candidate for Presidential elector spoke to an audience of about 60 persons at the court house last Wednesday evening, about one third or one fourth of whom were democrats. He devoted most of his time to the tariff. Mr. Leasure is a young man who has evidently not read up on the tariff question. He knows nothing about the practical workings of the tariff laws, He told his hearers that he was a high protectionist. Would he in favor of protective laws even if we could manufacture everything we use cheaper than England. Said there are 30,000,000 people in England of whom 35,000,000 are paupers, and in fact nearly every part of his speech on that subject was about as silly as the above. He is at variance with reason and good sense, at every point of the subject. But he is the chosen representative and leader of the republican party, and we only regret that all our farmers, laborers and mechanics were not present to hear him. He will make votes for Cleveland every where among the classes above named. His speech from a standpoint of reason, good sense, and candor was a failure. Many republicans so expressed themselves.

THE PORTLAND MEETING. PORTLAND, Sept. 26th, 1884. Hon. Democrat: The grand torchlight Republican procession came off according to the posted bills. Some six hundred came into the city from all parts of the county, even as far away as Astoria. And from actual count there were 700 including boys on foot, and 98 horsemen in line of march. There were not a thousand in line, where 5000 were expected. They were two abreast and stretched out, but it took over then but 19 minutes by the watch to pass. It was a break-down not looked for. There was not any enthusiasm, not such as ought to be manifested at the celebration of a first or second wedding. One motto read that it was "better to be married twice than not at all." But the coldness of this farce would indicate that this twice marriage business was what was the matter with this apology for a procession. Too much marriage.

LARGE PICTURES.

Large pictures of Blaine and Logan adorn the Post Office. Logan is on horseback at the head of a column of soldiers. A wag, a few days ago, while waiting for a distribution of the mail, inquired if that was the way Logan looked at the head of the rebel column in 1861, or at the head of the Union column in 1865. He further added that he supposed that this was the way Blaine looked just after his two marriages, both secret.
