A DOG STORY.

He would ride one of the carriage torses when taken out to exercise, sit ting on his back like a monkey on bear, the ccachman riding the other. How well I remember it, as if it were but yesterday-those two noble bay horses, Peer and Andrew, walking slowly down the road with their dissimilar riders! The horses took kindly to their dog groom, for they loved him and he loved them, so that this equino-canine affection was ludicrously touching. They spent their lives together-they and the coachman. They were rarely separated, for he went with the coachman when he walked or rode, and ran after the carriage when he drove. And now comes the tragic part of my story.

It happened one Summer that my father and mother went to the metropolis-a rare event with them-and took the carriage and horses. The dog my father would not take; so he was lock ed into the stable when they left, and ! and a brother of the family remained

When Nelson was liberated, some hour or so after the party had gone, h was in a state of great distress and perplexity. He rushed about in every direction seeking his companions vain. He did not bowl or whine, but bore his grief in silence.

At last he went into the coachman' bedroom and poking out a pair of his old shoes from under his bed, lay down day of the next regular term of said Court | beside them, expecting, no doubt, that the man would return and look for his in Albany, Linn county, Oregon, on Mon-day the 27th day of October, 1884, that shoes.
