

OFFICIAL COUNTY AND PAPER. PUBLISHED WEEKLY.

The Democratic candidates for the respective Legislative and County offices will address the citizens of Linn county at the following times and places: Waterloo, Tuesday, May 25th. Sweet Home, Wednesday, May 26th. Crawfordville, Thursday, May 27th. Brownsville, Friday, May 28th. Sycamore, Monday, May 31st. Sycamore, Tuesday, June 1st. Sheldahl, Wednesday, June 2nd. Halsey, Thursday, June 3rd. Harrisburg, Friday, June 4th. Albany, Saturday, June 5th.

A MAN ABOUT TOWN. It seems to the Man About Town that a great amount of fuss is being made over the question of whether one has worn a shirt washed by a Chinaman or not. Right here the M. A. T. will say that he has been guilty of the crime several times. Had to go to work, and what are you going to do about it, anyway. This may keep us out of gubernatorial chains; but the truth must be spoken.

Did you ever have any one mad at you? And if you have, is it not pleasant to meet the mad person and have him look at you like a volcano or a thunder storm, or a wild elephant, as if he would erupt on you, send forth his lightning or annihilate you with the trunk of his wrath until you begin to feel as if you would like to be a volcano, or a thunder storm, or a wild elephant, and you will have mountains of experience, however meek you are.

Cyclones, typhoons, hurricanes, blizzards, etc., may rage elsewhere, filling the hearts of the people with terror; but, bless the Willamette Valley, it knows them not. In the windy days of winter, it is more to make a country Eden like than an absence of these heart quakers.

Last Saturday the M. A. T. saw a curious looking specimen of a boy, with long black hair and a blacking box hanging over his shoulders. Having lived where boot blacks grew he knew what it meant, and, being influenced by the lazy weather asked for a shine. The fellow did not turn, but went gawking down the street. Being familiar with the business character of boot blacks, the M. A. T. immediately knew he had been addressing an individual, and dumb physically as the barefooted bearded youth on the four quired daily is to truth. For ten seconds we felt sort of guilty; but collecting ourself followed up the curious looking character and not only got a good shine, paid for; but as well as a desired interview.

A little girl in the First Ward referring to a couple of neighbors said they would be pretty good if they weren't so bad. The M. A. T. would call this a Webster bull.

The M. A. T. has just read of an egg cooking match in Missouri between a Republican and a Democrat. Score—Republican, 43; Democrat, 42. But there are Albany boys who could beat either, and they don't know who's President.

The Man About Town hears a general expression in favor of "Vanny" Smith for Sheriff. People are going to vote for him because he is competent, reliable and knows the duties of the office completely. The two Albanies will boom him and the county give him, say 400 majority. Here's our halloo on the subject:

For Sheriff, D. S. SMITH.

Speaking of competency and reliability, they just hit J. P. Galbraith stoutly. Mr. G. is just the man for County Clerk and will get there by a fine majority.

Last Monday Mr Crawford had his camera set near the corner of Ferry and First Streets to "shoot" off the procession when it should go that way, as all political processions have been in the habit of doing. But for several years the procession of the two Albanies was struck the focus, the other with the crowd striking a new route. As a result the members of the Mechanics Band were the only ones in the picture. The moral is plain.

The M. A. T.'s ears have been full recently of rumors about the O. P. People should keep cool and everything will be all right.

Death of "Jimmy" Daniels. Last Saturday evening James Daniels died at the home of his parents, on Fourth Street, in this city, at the age of eighteen. About three years ago "Jimmy" as every body knew him, was taken sick with the scarlet fever, the seeds of which run into consumption, and since then he gradually failed until his death. "Jimmy" was a boy of exemplary habits and will be remembered kindly by old and young. He developed business qualities which would have made a thorough business man of him but for disease in the spring time of his life. Funeral services took place Monday at 2 o'clock, and were largely attended.

Browned in the Willamette. Last Wednesday evening as the steamer "Isabel" was passing up the river about four miles above this city George Ward, the freeman, in walking along the side of the lower part of the steamer, slipped and fell into the river. His cries attracted the attention of the deck hands, who immediately got a small boat out, but young Ward sank before reached. His body has not been found yet. Only his hat was secured. Ward's parents reside in Washington Territory, and he has several uncles in Polk county, the latter of whom have been telegraphed.

Temperance Alliance. A County Temperance Alliance will be held in the Court House, in this city on Tuesday afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock p. m. All temperance organizations, churches and Sabbath schools in the county are requested to send delegates.

Wheat 72 cents. Wheat has gone up to 72 cents in this city, the rise being rather of a sudden one. Farmers who have kept their wheat for once failed in the right boat.

The Ashland Tidings says the fruit crop will be better than at one time expected, Good.

A Car Load of Fish. Great interest was taken in this city Sabbath over the fish car sent out by the government, many visiting it during the day. The car arrived here Saturday evening and returned on its trip back East Sabbath afternoon. It was in charge of J. F. Ellis, of the Smithsonian Institute. Mr. Ellis was accompanied by Mr. F. Trybom, Sweden's fish commissioner, who is on a tour through the U. S. for the purpose of studying our fisheries. The fish car is somewhat of a curiosity, containing hatcheries, ice boxes, force pumps for keeping the water fresh, etc. It left Washington on Saturday, May 1st, starting out with spawn for, and young shad, taken a few days previous from the Susquehanna river, near its mouth. The trip to Albany was made in just one week, most of the little fish hatching on the way. Sunday morning about a million of the shad were emptied into the river at the O. P. wharf. If we congratulate ourselves on having had here in the future we will be very much pleased. All of these fish, not eaten by larger fish, will be in the lower Columbia by September. They are a salt water fish, and only go up fresh water rivers to spawn. Our apology for a fish ladder at Oregon City will prevent their ever seeing these "diggers" again. About half a million of them were also placed in the Columbia at Wallula, and have ever this started for Astoria.

Death of Mrs. C. P. Burkhardt. Last Wednesday evening Mrs. C. P. Burkhardt died at her home near this city at the age of 60 years and 1 day. She was taken sick two or three days previous with the pneumonia, from the effects of which she was unable to recover. Mrs. Burkhardt was a pioneer of 1851, coming to Oregon in that year with her husband, who survives her. She was a woman of noble character, and leaves an influence which will long be felt. Known all over this part of Oregon, her death causes general sorrow. Her husband, children and relatives have the sympathy of all in their affliction.

Funeral services are to be held at 1 o'clock this (Friday) afternoon at the residence of C. P. Burkhardt, Rev. S. G. Irvine will deliver the sermon.

A Midnight Call. Shortly after midnight Sunday morning a man named James Kelley entered the back door of Mr. Zukerman's jewelry store and home. Mr. Zukerman's son, Isadore, was sleeping in the first room, and hearing the noise jumped from his bed and attacked Kelley. Being a man of muscle Isadore easily vanquished the intruder, and sent him to dust in the back alley. The next morning Kelley was arrested and fined $5 for disturbing the peace. As he has been in the habit of spending his money for intoxicating beverages, he failed to put up, as an alternative agreeing to leave the city. Whether Kelley was out on a drunken spree or on burglary intent is a matter of speculation.

Ten Little Pleasants. A few weeks ago Mr. Wallace, of Leng Station, found a deserted nest of eggs laid by a Chinese pheasant. He set them under a hen and in just three weeks ten little pleasants put in an appearance. The hen is taking good care of them. "They are peculiar little things and worth seeing. Mr. Wallace will take good care of them and allow them their liberty, if they choose to take it, the same as if born wild. But they seem to be some what of a domestic nature, and it is possible that when grown will prefer Mr. Wallace's barn yard to the woods and field.

The First. Mr. William Peacock (long may he live) again crosses the line first. Last Monday his daughter handed this office a box of luscious strawberries, the first garden strawberries of the season to appear in Albany. Delicious fruit, green of berries, we bow our thanks for them. Mr. Peacock has many times placed this office under obligations to him for little bits of kindness, and we regret that printers ink is only a small recompense. The headquarters for Mr. Peacock's strawberries is at Conrad Meyer's.

Hired Shanks's Horses. Three Albany hunters were in the county last Sunday, seven or eight miles from the city. They were to meet at a certain point and ride home. One failed to put in an appearance just at the minute named, so the other two came home without him leaving him to employ Shanks's horses, much to his disgust.

Four Graduates. There will be four graduates from the Albany Collegiate Institute this year, Stephen Linn, Frank and Quincy Propst and Lillie Robertson being the ones to retire from the school. This is the largest number for several years. Commencement exercises will occur on June 14th, and will be of more than common interest. The program, now being gotten up, promises to be an exemplary one.

Death on Cayotes. G. M. Clark, the saw mill man of the foot hills beyond Solo, presented to the County Clerk last Tuesday the scalp of five cayotes and one wild cat, receiving in payment therefor a warrant for $26. Those who saw the uncommonly pleasant look on Mr. Clark's face will not understand its meaning. Mr. Clark is death on cayotes, and he never gets them mixed up with rabbits.

St. John's Day Picnic. The Mason's of Albany will give a big picnic in this city on June 24th. St. John's day, arrangements for which are already being made. Invitations will be sent through the valley generally. Last year several thousand people were present on such an occasion at Dallas. As big a crowd is expected in Albany.

A Distorted Arm. Last Friday evening Bert Wheeler, a son of Alfred Wheeler, of this city, in striking at a cow with a club on Mr. Wheeler's farm, several miles from Albany, missed his blow, giving his arm such a forcible jerk as to dislocate it at the shoulder. He was brought to Albany, where Dr. Hill attended him.

A Jersey Cow Did It. A few days ago Mr. Levi Brower was feeding a Jersey cow a few miles from this city, when the animal suddenly raised her head hitting Mr. Brower in the eye with one of her horns. The wound though a bad one, we are glad to know will not be fatal one to Mr. Brower's eye sight.

Immensely storms all through the East have been in order of day. Oregon people continually congratulate themselves that they live in a country where the elements kindly love to behave themselves. Cornelius is a funny looking man, isn't he? Frank Osborne has been appointed Postmaster at Eugene. There were several applicants. A Boston man cures sickness by taking a $10 fee in advance and saying "you are cured," calling it the mind cure. There are fools who patronize him. A white headed, gawky looking boot black was in Albany Saturday. Depend on it though he knew how to take care of No. 1 and chew gum, if he was deaf and dumb.

Ex-Alderman Jaehne, of New York, has been convicted of bribery. Served him right. The New Castle mills at Seattle were to resume work yesterday. Last Sunday a king was born at Madrid Spain. The Spaniards made a big ado about the matter. Stars, 8, Portlanders, 3, last Sunday. A new pitcher did it. A Washington Territory man says a neighbor is not an honest man because he put a brand on his cow and laid claim to her.

Last Monday Jon Meyer and wife of Salem were riding in the country when their team ran away throwing both out, breaking several bones in the bodies of both of them. A F. Snelling has been appointed Register at Lakeview. Reports of a fair crop of wheat come from the East.

Two or three weeks ago the DEMOCRAT gave an account of the disappearance of a cayuse pony belonging to James Elkins, of this city, and stated that there were indications that it had been stolen. As a result of the use of printers ink information came from Kings Prairie last week that a horse like the one described had been taken up there. Luther Elkins went after the horse and found it to be the one lost. It was probably stolen by some one who wanted to get out of this vicinity, perhaps the Eugene bank robbers, and deserted when the purpose was served.

Monday a DEMOCRAT man took a spin with Mr. Bruce McKnight after "Bill Nye." This young stallion is probably the fastest now in Linn county, and has a powerful reliable gait to back his speed. He is worthy of the attention of farmers who want first-class roadsters as well as workers. It is well to remember that while big horses are now in demand in three or four years roadsters are likely to have their day. For a pedigree of Bill Nye see adv. in another column.

Monday a DEMOCRAT man took a spin with Mr. Bruce McKnight after "Bill Nye." This young stallion is probably the fastest now in Linn county, and has a powerful reliable gait to back his speed. He is worthy of the attention of farmers who want first-class roadsters as well as workers. It is well to remember that while big horses are now in demand in three or four years roadsters are likely to have their day. For a pedigree of Bill Nye see adv. in another column.

Monday a DEMOCRAT man took a spin with Mr. Bruce McKnight after "Bill Nye." This young stallion is probably the fastest now in Linn county, and has a powerful reliable gait to back his speed. He is worthy of the attention of farmers who want first-class roadsters as well as workers. It is well to remember that while big horses are now in demand in three or four years roadsters are likely to have their day. For a pedigree of Bill Nye see adv. in another column.

Monday a DEMOCRAT man took a spin with Mr. Bruce McKnight after "Bill Nye." This young stallion is probably the fastest now in Linn county, and has a powerful reliable gait to back his speed. He is worthy of the attention of farmers who want first-class roadsters as well as workers. It is well to remember that while big horses are now in demand in three or four years roadsters are likely to have their day. For a pedigree of Bill Nye see adv. in another column.

Monday a DEMOCRAT man took a spin with Mr. Bruce McKnight after "Bill Nye." This young stallion is probably the fastest now in Linn county, and has a powerful reliable gait to back his speed. He is worthy of the attention of farmers who want first-class roadsters as well as workers. It is well to remember that while big horses are now in demand in three or four years roadsters are likely to have their day. For a pedigree of Bill Nye see adv. in another column.

Monday a DEMOCRAT man took a spin with Mr. Bruce McKnight after "Bill Nye." This young stallion is probably the fastest now in Linn county, and has a powerful reliable gait to back his speed. He is worthy of the attention of farmers who want first-class roadsters as well as workers. It is well to remember that while big horses are now in demand in three or four years roadsters are likely to have their day. For a pedigree of Bill Nye see adv. in another column.

Monday a DEMOCRAT man took a spin with Mr. Bruce McKnight after "Bill Nye." This young stallion is probably the fastest now in Linn county, and has a powerful reliable gait to back his speed. He is worthy of the attention of farmers who want first-class roadsters as well as workers. It is well to remember that while big horses are now in demand in three or four years roadsters are likely to have their day. For a pedigree of Bill Nye see adv. in another column.

Monday a DEMOCRAT man took a spin with Mr. Bruce McKnight after "Bill Nye." This young stallion is probably the fastest now in Linn county, and has a powerful reliable gait to back his speed. He is worthy of the attention of farmers who want first-class roadsters as well as workers. It is well to remember that while big horses are now in demand in three or four years roadsters are likely to have their day. For a pedigree of Bill Nye see adv. in another column.

Monday a DEMOCRAT man took a spin with Mr. Bruce McKnight after "Bill Nye." This young stallion is probably the fastest now in Linn county, and has a powerful reliable gait to back his speed. He is worthy of the attention of farmers who want first-class roadsters as well as workers. It is well to remember that while big horses are now in demand in three or four years roadsters are likely to have their day. For a pedigree of Bill Nye see adv. in another column.

Monday a DEMOCRAT man took a spin with Mr. Bruce McKnight after "Bill Nye." This young stallion is probably the fastest now in Linn county, and has a powerful reliable gait to back his speed. He is worthy of the attention of farmers who want first-class roadsters as well as workers. It is well to remember that while big horses are now in demand in three or four years roadsters are likely to have their day. For a pedigree of Bill Nye see adv. in another column.

Monday a DEMOCRAT man took a spin with Mr. Bruce McKnight after "Bill Nye." This young stallion is probably the fastest now in Linn county, and has a powerful reliable gait to back his speed. He is worthy of the attention of farmers who want first-class roadsters as well as workers. It is well to remember that while big horses are now in demand in three or four years roadsters are likely to have their day. For a pedigree of Bill Nye see adv. in another column.

Monday a DEMOCRAT man took a spin with Mr. Bruce McKnight after "Bill Nye." This young stallion is probably the fastest now in Linn county, and has a powerful reliable gait to back his speed. He is worthy of the attention of farmers who want first-class roadsters as well as workers. It is well to remember that while big horses are now in demand in three or four years roadsters are likely to have their day. For a pedigree of Bill Nye see adv. in another column.

Monday a DEMOCRAT man took a spin with Mr. Bruce McKnight after "Bill Nye." This young stallion is probably the fastest now in Linn county, and has a powerful reliable gait to back his speed. He is worthy of the attention of farmers who want first-class roadsters as well as workers. It is well to remember that while big horses are now in demand in three or four years roadsters are likely to have their day. For a pedigree of Bill Nye see adv. in another column.

Monday a DEMOCRAT man took a spin with Mr. Bruce McKnight after "Bill Nye." This young stallion is probably the fastest now in Linn county, and has a powerful reliable gait to back his speed. He is worthy of the attention of farmers who want first-class roadsters as well as workers. It is well to remember that while big horses are now in demand in three or four years roadsters are likely to have their day. For a pedigree of Bill Nye see adv. in another column.

Monday a DEMOCRAT man took a spin with Mr. Bruce McKnight after "Bill Nye." This young stallion is probably the fastest now in Linn county, and has a powerful reliable gait to back his speed. He is worthy of the attention of farmers who want first-class roadsters as well as workers. It is well to remember that while big horses are now in demand in three or four years roadsters are likely to have their day. For a pedigree of Bill Nye see adv. in another column.

Monday a DEMOCRAT man took a spin with Mr. Bruce McKnight after "Bill Nye." This young stallion is probably the fastest now in Linn county, and has a powerful reliable gait to back his speed. He is worthy of the attention of farmers who want first-class roadsters as well as workers. It is well to remember that while big horses are now in demand in three or four years roadsters are likely to have their day. For a pedigree of Bill Nye see adv. in another column.

Monday a DEMOCRAT man took a spin with Mr. Bruce McKnight after "Bill Nye." This young stallion is probably the fastest now in Linn county, and has a powerful reliable gait to back his speed. He is worthy of the attention of farmers who want first-class roadsters as well as workers. It is well to remember that while big horses are now in demand in three or four years roadsters are likely to have their day. For a pedigree of Bill Nye see adv. in another column.

Monday a DEMOCRAT man took a spin with Mr. Bruce McKnight after "Bill Nye." This young stallion is probably the fastest now in Linn county, and has a powerful reliable gait to back his speed. He is worthy of the attention of farmers who want first-class roadsters as well as workers. It is well to remember that while big horses are now in demand in three or four years roadsters are likely to have their day. For a pedigree of Bill Nye see adv. in another column.

Monday a DEMOCRAT man took a spin with Mr. Bruce McKnight after "Bill Nye." This young stallion is probably the fastest now in Linn county, and has a powerful reliable gait to back his speed. He is worthy of the attention of farmers who want first-class roadsters as well as workers. It is well to remember that while big horses are now in demand in three or four years roadsters are likely to have their day. For a pedigree of Bill Nye see adv. in another column.

These gentlemen addressed the people of Linn county last Thursday afternoon at the Court House, in this city, on some of the questions of the day that are now before the people for their consideration. Hon. J. K. Weatherford was appointed Chairman. Mr. Pennoyer stated that he had not been a candidate for Governor, but that the nomination came to him entirely unsought, but having accepted the nomination he felt it his duty to use all fair and honorable means to secure his election. On the Chinese question he reiterated his views heretofore given to the public. He regarded their presence here as an unmitigated evil. They blast by their presence and contaminating influence the fairest portions of our towns and cities. They really become a burden upon the taxpayers. They constitute the one-sixth of the population of California, and pay the one-fourth of the tax of that State. As touching mobocratic or revolutionary methods to drive them from our presence, the speaker said he was opposed to all such methods. He said he is now, always has been and always will be in favor of law and order. During the Chinese agitation at Portland he belonged to no society or organization, but when hints were thrown out that vigilance committees were to be organized he felt it his duty as a citizen, property holder and taxpayer to attend the meeting and use his influence in the interest of law and order. The bold and unequivocal stand which the meeting over which he presided at Portland took with regard to a rigid enforcement of the law allied public sentiment, and ever since that meeting law and order have held supreme sway. The speaker then showed that Mr. Cornelius, if measured by his public record, was not in sympathy with the people as against the encroachments of grasping corporations. Cornelius supported the bill to give Ben. Holladay $300,000 of the money of the people of Portland without anything in return, and this outrageous fraud would have been imposed upon the people of that city had it not been for the timely veto of the Governor. Mr. Pennoyer spoke of questions of state policy, but we have not space to refer to them. He made an excellent impression upon all who heard him, all regarding him as a safe, sound man to occupy the Governor's office.

At the close of his speech Mr. Butler, candidate for Congress, addressed the audience for the space of three quarters of an hour, devoting his time to the financial and tariff questions. His expostulations of these subjects was forcible and clear. His treatment of the subject of the tariff was in strong contrast with that of Mr. Hermann's of two years ago. Mr. Butler is an able speaker and one who, by his candor, convinces. We predict he will make a brilliant campaign. At the close of his remarks Mr. Miller, Prohibition candidate for Congress, spoke. He is a lively, energetic, forcible talker, and entertained the audience by interspersing his remarks with anecdotes and laughable comparisons, while he devoted himself to the prohibition question, but when he switched off into historical and constitutional questions he soon found himself lost in a maze.

At the close of his speech Mr. Butler, candidate for Congress, addressed the audience for the space of three quarters of an hour, devoting his time to the financial and tariff questions. His expostulations of these subjects was forcible and clear. His treatment of the subject of the tariff was in strong contrast with that of Mr. Hermann's of two years ago. Mr. Butler is an able speaker and one who, by his candor, convinces. We predict he will make a brilliant campaign. At the close of his remarks Mr. Miller, Prohibition candidate for Congress, spoke. He is a lively, energetic, forcible talker, and entertained the audience by interspersing his remarks with anecdotes and laughable comparisons, while he devoted himself to the prohibition question, but when he switched off into historical and constitutional questions he soon found himself lost in a maze.

At the close of his speech Mr. Butler, candidate for Congress, addressed the audience for the space of three quarters of an hour, devoting his time to the financial and tariff questions. His expostulations of these subjects was forcible and clear. His treatment of the subject of the tariff was in strong contrast with that of Mr. Hermann's of two years ago. Mr. Butler is an able speaker and one who, by his candor, convinces. We predict he will make a brilliant campaign. At the close of his remarks Mr. Miller, Prohibition candidate for Congress, spoke. He is a lively, energetic, forcible talker, and entertained the audience by interspersing his remarks with anecdotes and laughable comparisons, while he devoted himself to the prohibition question, but when he switched off into historical and constitutional questions he soon found himself lost in a maze.

At the close of his speech Mr. Butler, candidate for Congress, addressed the audience for the space of three quarters of an hour, devoting his time to the financial and tariff questions. His expostulations of these subjects was forcible and clear. His treatment of the subject of the tariff was in strong contrast with that of Mr. Hermann's of two years ago. Mr. Butler is an able speaker and one who, by his candor, convinces. We predict he will make a brilliant campaign. At the close of his remarks Mr. Miller, Prohibition candidate for Congress, spoke. He is a lively, energetic, forcible talker, and entertained the audience by interspersing his remarks with anecdotes and laughable comparisons, while he devoted himself to the prohibition question, but when he switched off into historical and constitutional questions he soon found himself lost in a maze.

At the close of his speech Mr. Butler, candidate for Congress, addressed the audience for the space of three quarters of an hour, devoting his time to the financial and tariff questions. His expostulations of these subjects was forcible and clear. His treatment of the subject of the tariff was in strong contrast with that of Mr. Hermann's of two years ago. Mr. Butler is an able speaker and one who, by his candor, convinces. We predict he will make a brilliant campaign. At the close of his remarks Mr. Miller, Prohibition candidate for Congress, spoke. He is a lively, energetic, forcible talker, and entertained the audience by interspersing his remarks with anecdotes and laughable comparisons, while he devoted himself to the prohibition question, but when he switched off into historical and constitutional questions he soon found himself lost in a maze.

At the close of his speech Mr. Butler, candidate for Congress, addressed the audience for the space of three quarters of an hour, devoting his time to the financial and tariff questions. His expostulations of these subjects was forcible and clear. His treatment of the subject of the tariff was in strong contrast with that of Mr. Hermann's of two years ago. Mr. Butler is an able speaker and one who, by his candor, convinces. We predict he will make a brilliant campaign. At the close of his remarks Mr. Miller, Prohibition candidate for Congress, spoke. He is a lively, energetic, forcible talker, and entertained the audience by interspersing his remarks with anecdotes and laughable comparisons, while he devoted himself to the prohibition question, but when he switched off into historical and constitutional questions he soon found himself lost in a maze.

At the close of his speech Mr. Butler, candidate for Congress, addressed the audience for the space of three quarters of an hour, devoting his time to the financial and tariff questions. His expostulations of these subjects was forcible and clear. His treatment of the subject of the tariff was in strong contrast with that of Mr. Hermann's of two years ago. Mr. Butler is an able speaker and one who, by his candor, convinces. We predict he will make a brilliant campaign. At the close of his remarks Mr. Miller, Prohibition candidate for Congress, spoke. He is a lively, energetic, forcible talker, and entertained the audience by interspersing his remarks with anecdotes and laughable comparisons, while he devoted himself to the prohibition question, but when he switched off into historical and constitutional questions he soon found himself lost in a maze.

At the close of his speech Mr. Butler, candidate for Congress, addressed the audience for the space of three quarters of an hour, devoting his time to the financial and tariff questions. His expostulations of these subjects was forcible and clear. His treatment of the subject of the tariff was in strong contrast with that of Mr. Hermann's of two years ago. Mr. Butler is an able speaker and one who, by his candor, convinces. We predict he will make a brilliant campaign. At the close of his remarks Mr. Miller, Prohibition candidate for Congress, spoke. He is a lively, energetic, forcible talker, and entertained the audience by interspersing his remarks with anecdotes and laughable comparisons, while he devoted himself to the prohibition question, but when he switched off into historical and constitutional questions he soon found himself lost in a maze.

At the close of his speech Mr. Butler, candidate for Congress, addressed the audience for the space of three quarters of an hour, devoting his time to the financial and tariff questions. His expostulations of these subjects was forcible and clear. His treatment of the subject of the tariff was in strong contrast with that of Mr. Hermann's of two years ago. Mr. Butler is an able speaker and one who, by his candor, convinces. We predict he will make a brilliant campaign. At the close of his remarks Mr. Miller, Prohibition candidate for Congress, spoke. He is a lively, energetic, forcible talker, and entertained the audience by interspersing his remarks with anecdotes and laughable comparisons, while he devoted himself to the prohibition question, but when he switched off into historical and constitutional questions he soon found himself lost in a maze.

At the close of his speech Mr. Butler, candidate for Congress, addressed the audience for the space of three quarters of an hour, devoting his time to the financial and tariff questions. His expostulations of these subjects was forcible and clear. His treatment of the subject of the tariff was in strong contrast with that of Mr. Hermann's of two years ago. Mr. Butler is an able speaker and one who, by his candor, convinces. We predict he will make a brilliant campaign. At the close of his remarks Mr. Miller, Prohibition candidate for Congress, spoke. He is a lively, energetic, forcible talker, and entertained the audience by interspersing his remarks with anecdotes and laughable comparisons, while he devoted himself to the prohibition question, but when he switched off into historical and constitutional questions he soon found himself lost in a maze.

At the close of his speech Mr. Butler, candidate for Congress, addressed the audience for the space of three quarters of an hour, devoting his time to the financial and tariff questions. His expostulations of these subjects was forcible and clear. His treatment of the subject of the tariff was in strong contrast with that of Mr. Hermann's of two years ago. Mr. Butler is an able speaker and one who, by his candor, convinces. We predict he will make a brilliant campaign. At the close of his remarks Mr. Miller, Prohibition candidate for Congress, spoke. He is a lively, energetic, forcible talker, and entertained the audience by interspersing his remarks with anecdotes and laughable comparisons, while he devoted himself to the prohibition question, but when he switched off into historical and constitutional questions he soon found himself lost in a maze.

At the close of his speech Mr. Butler, candidate for Congress, addressed the audience for the space of three quarters of an hour, devoting his time to the financial and tariff questions. His expostulations of these subjects was forcible and clear. His treatment of the subject of the tariff was in strong contrast with that of Mr. Hermann's of two years ago. Mr. Butler is an able speaker and one who, by his candor, convinces. We predict he will make a brilliant campaign. At the close of his remarks Mr. Miller, Prohibition candidate for Congress, spoke. He is a lively, energetic, forcible talker, and entertained the audience by interspersing his remarks with anecdotes and laughable comparisons, while he devoted himself to the prohibition question, but when he switched off into historical and constitutional questions he soon found himself lost in a maze.

At the close of his speech Mr. Butler, candidate for Congress, addressed the audience for the space of three quarters of an hour, devoting his time to the financial and tariff questions. His expostulations of these subjects was forcible and clear. His treatment of the subject of the tariff was in strong contrast with that of Mr. Hermann's of two years ago. Mr. Butler is an able speaker and one who, by his candor, convinces. We predict he will make a brilliant campaign. At the close of his remarks Mr. Miller, Prohibition candidate for Congress, spoke. He is a lively, energetic, forcible talker, and entertained the audience by interspersing his remarks with anecdotes and laughable comparisons, while he devoted himself to the prohibition question, but when he switched off into historical and constitutional questions he soon found himself lost in a maze.

At the close of his speech Mr. Butler, candidate for Congress, addressed the audience for the space of three quarters of an hour, devoting his time to the financial and tariff questions. His expostulations of these subjects was forcible and clear. His treatment of the subject of the tariff was in strong contrast with that of Mr. Hermann's of two years ago. Mr. Butler is an able speaker and one who, by his candor, convinces. We predict he will make a brilliant campaign. At the close of his remarks Mr. Miller, Prohibition candidate for Congress, spoke. He is a lively, energetic, forcible talker, and entertained the audience by interspersing his remarks with anecdotes and laughable comparisons, while he devoted himself to the prohibition question, but when he switched off into historical and constitutional questions he soon found himself lost in a maze.

At the close of his speech Mr. Butler, candidate for Congress, addressed the audience for the space of three quarters of an hour, devoting his time to the financial and tariff questions. His expostulations of these subjects was forcible and clear. His treatment of the subject of the tariff was in strong contrast with that of Mr. Hermann's of two years ago. Mr. Butler is an able speaker and one who, by his candor, convinces. We predict he will make a brilliant campaign. At the close of his remarks Mr. Miller, Prohibition candidate for Congress, spoke. He is a lively, energetic, forcible talker, and entertained the audience by interspersing his remarks with anecdotes and laughable comparisons, while he devoted himself to the prohibition question, but when he switched off into historical and constitutional questions he soon found himself lost in a maze.

At the close of his speech Mr. Butler, candidate for Congress, addressed the audience for the space of three quarters of an hour, devoting his time to the financial and tariff questions. His expostulations of these subjects was forcible and clear. His treatment of the subject of the tariff was in strong contrast with that of Mr. Hermann's of two years ago. Mr. Butler is an able speaker and one who, by his candor, convinces. We predict he will make a brilliant campaign. At the close of his remarks Mr. Miller, Prohibition candidate for Congress, spoke. He is a lively, energetic, forcible talker, and entertained the audience by interspersing his remarks with anecdotes and laughable comparisons, while he devoted himself to the prohibition question, but when he switched off into historical and constitutional questions he soon found himself lost in a maze.

At the close of his speech Mr. Butler, candidate for Congress, addressed the audience for the space of three quarters of an hour, devoting his time to the financial and tariff questions. His expostulations of these subjects was forcible and clear. His treatment of the subject of the tariff was in strong contrast with that of Mr. Hermann's of two years ago. Mr. Butler is an able speaker and one who, by his candor, convinces. We predict he will make a brilliant campaign. At the close of his remarks Mr. Miller, Prohibition candidate for Congress, spoke. He is a lively, energetic, forcible talker, and entertained the audience by interspersing his remarks with anecdotes and laughable comparisons, while he devoted himself to the prohibition question, but when he switched off into historical and constitutional questions he soon found himself lost in a maze.

At the close of his speech Mr. Butler, candidate for Congress, addressed the audience for the space of three quarters of an hour, devoting his time to the financial and tariff questions. His expostulations of these subjects was forcible and clear. His treatment of the subject of the tariff was in strong contrast with that of Mr. Hermann's of two years ago. Mr. Butler is an able speaker and one who, by his candor, convinces. We predict he will make a brilliant campaign. At the close of his remarks Mr. Miller, Prohibition candidate for Congress, spoke. He is a lively, energetic, forcible talker, and entertained the audience by interspersing his remarks with anecdotes and laughable comparisons, while he devoted himself to the prohibition question, but when he switched off into historical and constitutional questions he soon found himself lost in a maze.

At the close of his speech Mr. Butler, candidate for Congress, addressed the audience for the space of three quarters of an hour, devoting his time to the financial and tariff questions. His expostulations of these subjects was forcible and clear. His treatment of the subject of the tariff was in strong contrast with that of Mr. Hermann's of two years ago. Mr. Butler is an able speaker and one who, by his candor, convinces. We predict he will make a brilliant campaign. At the close of his remarks Mr. Miller, Prohibition candidate for Congress, spoke. He is a lively, energetic, forcible talker, and entertained the audience by interspersing his remarks with anecdotes and laughable comparisons, while he devoted himself to the prohibition question, but when he switched off into historical and constitutional questions he soon found himself lost in a maze.

At the close of his speech Mr. Butler, candidate for Congress, addressed the audience for the space of three quarters of an hour, devoting his time to the financial and tariff questions. His expostulations of these subjects was forcible and clear. His treatment of the subject of the tariff was in strong contrast with that of Mr. Hermann's of two years ago. Mr. Butler is an able speaker and one who, by his candor, convinces. We predict he will make a brilliant campaign. At the close of his remarks Mr. Miller, Prohibition candidate for Congress, spoke. He is a lively, energetic, forcible talker, and entertained the audience by interspersing his remarks with anecdotes and laughable comparisons, while he devoted himself to the prohibition question, but when he switched off into historical and constitutional questions he soon found himself lost in a maze.

At the close of his speech Mr. Butler, candidate for Congress, addressed the audience for the space of three quarters of an hour, devoting his time to the financial and tariff questions. His expostulations of these subjects was forcible and clear. His treatment of the subject of the tariff was in strong contrast with that of Mr. Hermann's of two years ago. Mr. Butler is an able speaker and one who, by his candor, convinces. We predict he will make a brilliant campaign. At the close of his remarks Mr. Miller, Prohibition candidate for Congress, spoke. He is a lively, energetic, forcible talker, and entertained the audience by interspersing his remarks with anecdotes and laughable comparisons, while he devoted himself to the prohibition question, but when he switched off into historical and constitutional questions he soon found himself lost in a maze.

At the close of his speech Mr. Butler, candidate for Congress, addressed the audience for the space of three quarters of an hour, devoting his time to the financial and tariff questions. His expostulations of these subjects was forcible and clear. His treatment of the subject of the tariff was in strong contrast with that of Mr. Hermann's of two years ago. Mr. Butler is an able speaker and one who, by his candor, convinces. We predict he will make a brilliant campaign. At the close of his remarks Mr. Miller, Prohibition candidate for Congress, spoke. He is a lively, energetic, forcible talker, and entertained the audience by interspersing his remarks with anecdotes and laughable comparisons, while he devoted himself to the prohibition question, but when he switched off into historical and constitutional questions he soon found himself lost in a maze.

At a meeting of Albany Ladies Co. No. 1, held Tuesday evening a committee of three consisting of Robert Davis, Vain Month and Wm. Richardson, was appointed to make arrangements for an excursion down the Willamette. Read Raymond & Dresser's new ad in another column. This firm has a large stock of groceries, dress goods, etc., which they will sell at augmented prices, some at half of original cost. Call on them and find out for yourselves. C. A. Johns, Republican candidate for Prosecuting Attorney, scored several votes for G. W. Bell, while in Albany Monday. Mr. Johns is doing good work for Mr. Bell, who will, it is confidently believed, be elected by several hundred majority. The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Albany Farmers Co. was held Tuesday afternoon, when the following directors were elected for the ensuing year: S. S. Powell, D. F. Houck, M. H. Wilda, W. P. Anderson, G. W. Propst and S. Canon. A fatal disease among the poultry is prevalent in this county, and is called cholera. It is a very contagious disease, and is very fatal. It is caused by a germ which is very small, and is very difficult to see. It is very common in the West, and is very fatal. It is very common in the West, and is very fatal. It is very common in the West, and is very fatal. It is very common in the West