WASHINGTON, Oct. 23rd, 1886.

It is probable that the Government has taken final action in Generalissimo's case.

The largest locomotive in the world is the Decapo, built by the Baldwin Locomotive Works in Philadelphia, last year.

The population of Chicago, as indicated by the new directory which is just out, is over 750,000.

The Ochoo Review says: "Last week's Albany Democrat uses anacular Anglo Saxon in speaking of some law defying corporation away back East, but no money could hire the editor to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth about some Oregon corporations, say for instance, the W. V. & C. M. Road company."

There seems to be a controlling element in the mental constitution of some editors that leads them to believe that a newspaper man has the right and ought to demand money for telling the truth about any matter of public general interest.

The Democrat is not hired "to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth," about any matter of general public interest, notwithstanding it may be the habit of other newspapers to do so.

There has not been since the days of Ahab a more perfect specimen of the demagogue than Blaine of Maine.

The spectacle of the perennial candidate kneeling at the grave of dead Stevens and depicting a red rose on the resting place of the grim old commoner, whose detestation of shams would have led him to swear roundly at such an exhibition of political-dramatic claptrap in his lifetime, was as clear a case of posing for effect as the "obscene Powderly" at Pittsburg were an ostentatious bid for the Labor vote.

This is the same Mr. Blaine who sat down to the Delmonico dinner given him by Jay Gould and other millionaires in 1884—much to his subsequent sorrow.

There are at least 1,450,000,000 human beings living now, and the Philadelphia Record says that these are distributed over the earth's surface so that now there is no considerable part where man is not found.

In Asia, where he was first planted, there are now approximately about 800,000,000, densely crowded on an average 126 to the square mile.

In Europe there are 320,000,000. In Africa there are 210,000,000. In America, North and South, there are 110,000,000, relatively thinly scattered and recent.

The extremes of the white and black are as five to three; the remaining 700,000,000 intermediate brown and tawny. Of the race 500,000,000 are well clothed, that is, wear garments of some kind to cover their nakedness.

700,000,000 are clothed, covering inferior parts of the body; 250,000,000 are practically naked.

Of the race 500,000,000 live in houses partly furnished with the appointments of civilization; 800,000,000 live in huts or caves with no furnishing; 260,000,000 have nothing that can be called home, are barbarous and savage.

The range is from the top-most round—the Anglo-Saxon civilization, which is the highest known—down to naked savagery.

The portion of the race lying below the top of human condition is at the very least three-fifths of the whole, or 900,000,000.

The family of Hon. W. B. Hoke, Judge of the Jefferson county, Ky., Court, used St. Jacobs Oil with signal success.

GENERAL NEWS.

In a paper lately read before a London engineering society it was mentioned as the result of many experiments that 1,000 feet of gas used to produce incandescent electric lighting by means of a gas engine would if employed as an illuminant in the ordinary way.

Copper or brass wire larger than No. 18 is hard to bend. By heating to redness and plunging into cold water both these metals will become much softened.

A Canada bee-keeper uses chloroform instead of tobacco in managing his bees. He finds it a very valuable aid in removing old queens or introducing new ones.

A double purpose may be accomplished by covering the rafters and stones of the cellar with whitewash made yellow with coppers, and filling the crevices and cracks of the floor with dry coppers.

Two German physiologists calculated the relative liability of injury to the eye, finding that, if all parts of the body were equally exposed to injury, wounds of the eye would bear to wounds of other parts the proportion of about one in 600.

Salt is a wonderful remedial agent. Salt and cider vinegar will cure obstinate cases of diarrhoea.

Equal parts of strong salt water and spirits of camphor applied to the teeth is a cure for toothache.

Hon. Samuel Randall called on Mr. Manning at the department yesterday and as they sat talking Mr. Randall would have been called the sicker looking man of the two.

In Algeria there is a small stream which the chemistry of nature has turned into true ink. It is formed by the union of two rivulets, one of which is very strongly impregnated with iron, while the other, meandering through a peat marsh, imbibes gallic acid.

Animal tissues in undergoing putrefactive decomposition give rise to very complex products, which are very soluble in water, and are extremely injurious.

The difficulty that is experienced in some chimneys with a strong down draught is said to have been entirely obviated by an English device.

A physician of Philadelphia says that a great deal of what passes for heart disease is only mild dyspepsia; that nervousness commonly is bad temper, and two-thirds of so called malaria is nothing but laziness.

smart looking young man. When she saw that it was a man who had brushed against her she smiled and said: "I beg pardon," in her most insinuating tone. He replied, as he tipped his hat: "Don't mention it, please." The close student of human nature will observe that this story is true.

A QUESTION OF VERACITY.

It is an open secret that one of the principal reasons why the Mugwump refused to support Blaine for President was that he regarded him as very loose and extravagant in his statement of facts.

In fact it was openly declared that there was much lack of faith in his reputation for truth and veracity.

Many instances were recited as justifying this feeling toward him. Mr. Blaine still lays himself open to such charges. No man in the country has devoted more time to storing his mind with statistical facts bearing upon the tariff question than Blaine, yet only the other day he made a speech at Pittsburg in which he referred to Chattanooga as a point in the South where colored laborers are paid 60 and 70 cents a day.

The Daily Times of that city, commenting on this speech, says that careful investigation there shows that the lowest wages paid to colored laborers in any industry is 90 cents per day, and this rate covers only a few at the South Trade Iron Works. The greater number of colored men at those works receive wages running from $1 to $3 per day, and skilled colored labor receives the same pay as white labor of the same grade.

Colored boys make 75 cents to $1 a day. Some colored men make as high as $4 per day as puddlers and foundrymen at that section, and these figures apply as well to Birmingham, Ala., Knoxville, Tenn., and other Southern towns. Mr. Blaine's friends would regard it as presumptuous and inspired by partisan bias to doubt his knowledge of facts so simple as a matter of wages in Chattanooga.

And it is for this reason that Republican papers, like the New York Times, Post and Harper's Weekly, have been so incredulous with regard to statements made by him.

Sunset Cox is nothing if not sound in his views of Democratic principles. In accepting the nomination of the united Democracy of the ninth New York district for Congress, he said: "I have but a simple creed in my politics. In fact it is a triple creed, one in three—Honesty, Honesty, Honesty—in all public trusts. The trustworthiness of a public man may be tested in various ways. He is best tested by his public conduct. As to my service in Congress, through a quarter of a century you have had an ample record. Next, the public man may be tested by the canons of his faith. As, for instance, a strict construction of the United States Constitution, which limits Federal legislation to defined objects, is a test of a good conscience and a part of the public morality. A man who loosely construes his duty, whether under a power of attorney or under a written organic law, is likely to be loose in his public vote and conduct. Having held to the Democratic tenet of strict construction through a long career of Democratic service, I think I may say to the younger men who are coming to the front that I have been saved much trouble and have been directed in my course by these Democratic signals which Jefferson lifted and which Jackson followed."

Dan Rice, the old circus clown, claims to be the rightful heir to an estate of 300,000 acres in Texas. He says he went to Texas and found the title perfect, and now he has only to prove that he is the son of his father whose name was McLaren.

The showman's full name is Daniel Rice McLaren, but he only used part of it for professional purposes. He says that he will soon be able to clear the matter up and that men of means are furnishing him the money to secure his fortune.

He started out as a clown, and many old citizens remember him as a stable boy under the name of Dan McLaren.
