ACADEMY

Conducted by the BENEDICTINE SISTERS.

ALBANY, - - OREGON.

This Institution is beautifully situated in the pleasant and accessible City of Albany. The location is remarkably healthy, the building new and well furnished with all that contribute to the comfort and instruction of the pupils. The play grounds are extensive and well adapted to healthful exercises.

The constant aim of the teachers is, whilst imparting instruction in all the useful and important branches, to train the youthful heart to virtue and to instil a commendable emulation, thus educating for society, members who will, we trust, prove an honor to our country.

Pupils of all persuasions equally received, provided they comply with the regulations of the school.

Boys admitted up to the age of ten or twelve.

This Academy is incorporated and authorized by the State to confer Academic honors.

Normal instruction of aspirants for Teachers' Certificates, a specialty.

The W. C. T. U. meets on the 1st and 3rd Tuesday of each month at 8 o'clock p. m., at the A. O. U. W. Hall, over French's Jewelry Store.

WEAPONS FOR THE BATTLE.

BY REV. GEORGE H. GRIFFIN.

In the program for the last Fourth of July celebration at Mr. Bowen's home in Woodstock, Conn., occurred a speech from Mr. H. K. Carroll, of the Independent, on the "Republic of the Future." Among the evils which impeded that future, he remarked, "none has a firmer grip upon us than that source of influences which we may designate as the 'saloon.'" In the paragraph which follows, he proceeds to draw up an indictment against the institution, which, in condensed power of statement, has, I think, never been surpassed. "The saloon," says Mr. Carroll, "is bad, and only bad. There is no aspect in which it can be considered as beneficial either to morals or religion, to the State or to individuals, to industry or commerce. As a market for our grain and grapes it is a waste; as an employer it makes labor unproductive; as a public nuisance it penalizes the many for the sake of the unscrupulous few; as a source of taxation it hardly pays the state a tenth of its cost. What is it good for? To instruct in vice, to harden in crime, to reduce to poverty, to paralyze brain and brain, to wreck homes, and to betray every interest dear to an intelligent and prosperous people."

WEAPONS FOR THE BATTLE.

BY REV. GEORGE H. GRIFFIN.

In the program for the last Fourth of July celebration at Mr. Bowen's home in Woodstock, Conn., occurred a speech from Mr. H. K. Carroll, of the Independent, on the "Republic of the Future." Among the evils which impeded that future, he remarked, "none has a firmer grip upon us than that source of influences which we may designate as the 'saloon.'" In the paragraph which follows, he proceeds to draw up an indictment against the institution, which, in condensed power of statement, has, I think, never been surpassed. "The saloon," says Mr. Carroll, "is bad, and only bad. There is no aspect in which it can be considered as beneficial either to morals or religion, to the State or to individuals, to industry or commerce. As a market for our grain and grapes it is a waste; as an employer it makes labor unproductive; as a public nuisance it penalizes the many for the sake of the unscrupulous few; as a source of taxation it hardly pays the state a tenth of its cost. What is it good for? To instruct in vice, to harden in crime, to reduce to poverty, to paralyze brain and brain, to wreck homes, and to betray every interest dear to an intelligent and prosperous people."

there was not moral conviction among the people sufficient to enforce it just then. Mr. Bates by his continued urgency reminded Mr. Lincoln of a story.

A farmer asked his son how many legs a sheep had. "Four," he answered. "Well," said the farmer, "supposing you call the tail a leg, how many would he have?" "Five," was the answer. "No, you fool!" replied the father, "call the tail a leg does not make it so!"

In Mr. Lincoln's opinion, calling the slaves free didn't make them so. Likewise calling sin by smooth names does not make it a good thing.

We speak of the drinking habit as only a venial offence; we call the liquor traffic (as sometimes conducted) respectable; we say that such and such a rumrunner is a gentleman. We should beware of such misuse of language.

Faith in God. In His name, I must promote this vast campaign. Well might we despair of success if we had not the Almighty arm to lean upon.

With all the power of His omnipotence at our command there is no room for despair. Luther's song gives us the keynote of our triumph:

"Did we in our own strength confide,
Our striving would be losing,
Were not the right man on our side,
The man of God's own choosing,
Dost ask who that may be?
Christ Jesus, it is He,
Lord Sabaoth His name,
From age to age the same,
And He must win the battle."

What we can do for the 'b'y, a 'b'e, or a 'b'n, the saloon certainly has a hell in the midst of it, and it is our business as friends of humanity to do what we can to destroy this and all other works of the devil.

Among the weapons to be used in this great conflict I mention—

1. Righteous indignation. That man is worth but little in this struggle against evil who has not learned how to "be angry and sin not." In the correlation of moral force anger is the counterpart of love. Gough used to say that he prayed God to give him superhuman power to hate the drink with utter loathing.

2. Temperance. To stick to the fight and never say die. A soldier lay on the battle field so badly wounded by a shell that the surgeon was about passing him by as a hopeless case.

He went back, however, at the call of the surgeon, who, on being told that he could not live, bade the doctor open his knapsack, find a pocket book, take out a five-dollar bill, and put it in the soldier's hand.

All was done as requested. Then, holding out his hand with the money in it, he said: "Doctor, I bet you that five dollar bill I shall get well."

The surgeon, admiring his pluck, though faithless of his recovery, had the wounded man put in the ambulance and taken to the hospital. There they bandaged him, and sewed him, and splinted him, and plastered him until he was well enough to go home. That man lives yet to show what will power can do.

Temperance men must have the same perseverance in the fight against rum.

4. Courage for the right; readiness to take sides. Too many call before the enemy and hide their colors. They are like the man who was accosted in the street by two drunken tramps. They were engaged in an earnest dispute over the question whether the luminary in the heavens at that moment was the sun or moon. One said: "It is the sun." The other swore it was the moon. Seeing a gentleman approaching they appealed to him for his opinion, and all that they drew from him was the remark: "Really, I don't know. I'm a stranger in these parts." He was afraid of taking sides.

5. Calling things by their true names. It helps to simplify the issues wonderfully.
