ATLANTA, GA. - Cartersville, the home f Sam Jones, is a prohibition town. It was while runffing a blind tiger there that Tobe Jackson employed dynamite to remove Commissioner Collins. Wine coms furnished the cover under which whisky was sold. The town authorities imposed an inspection tax of $5 gallon on wine. George Pennely thereupon removed his wine room outside the corporation and continued the business. News bas just been received that at midnight a party of disguised prohibitionists wrecked the building ness. He proposes, however, to start p again and defy them.

TRESTON, N. J .- The Democrats have decided to contest the seats from the Second Mercer, Second Essex and Third Burlington Assembly districts, This makes about a dozen contests altogether. The Democratic managers claim that there was a fund of $70,000 raised by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and used in Senator Sewell's interest in various districts. A MEMORABLE LETTER.

Charles Francis Adams, who died recently in Boston, was a son of John Quincy Adams, sixth President o the United States. He was originally a Whig, but when the Republican party was organized he became member of that party. In 1872, when the Liberal Republican movement was inaugurated, he helped it along. He did not take an active part in the Presidential election in 1876, though he supported Tilden. His death now recalls the memorable letter he wrote to Tilden on the day that Hayes took his seat as President :
