Chaptain Hall Writes the Following Remarkable Letter. From the Albany N. Y., Express. For many years my wife had been the victim of nervous dyspepsia, of the chronic, distressing and apparently incurable type from which so many of hersex suffer, languish and die. It was all the worse because the tendency to it was inherited. She had been under the systematic treatment of many of the best physicians in New York and Brooklyn and elsewhere for twenty years with only temporary relief. In fact, there were few, if any, kinds of food that did not distress her, so diseased, sensitive and torpid were all the organs of digestion. The usual symptoms of dyspepsia, with its concomitant ailments, were all present-bad taste in the mouth, dull eyes, cold feet and hands, the sense of a load upon the stomach, tenderness on pressure, indigestion, giddiness, great weakness and prostration, and fugitive pains in the sides, chest and back. I have often risen in the night and administered stimulants merely for the sake of the slight and transient relief they gave.

Intermittent malarial fever set in, complicating the case and making every symptom more pronounced and intense. By this time the pneumogastric nerves had become very seriously involved, and she had chronic Gastritis, and also what I may be allowed to call chronic intermittent malarial fever all at once. For the latter the physicians prescribed the good, oldfashioned, sheet-anchor remedy, Quinlast. The effect of the quinine was, if possible, almost as had as the twofold disease which was wearing away her strength and her life. Quinine poisoning was painfully evident, but the fever was there still. Almost every day there came on the characteristic chill and racking headache, followed by the usual weakness and collapse. About this time I met socially my friend Mr. Norton, a member of the firm of Chauncey Titus & Company, brokers, of Albany, who, on hearing from me these facts, said: "Why, I have been through almost the sam thing, and have got over it." " What cured you?" I asked eagerly, "Kasno more faith in it than I had in sawdust, for such a case as hers. Mrs. Hall had no higher opinion, yet on the strength of my friend's recommendation I got a bottle and began its use

Now recall what I have already said as to her then condition, and then read what follows: Under the Kaskine treatment all the dyspeptic symptoms showed instant improvement, and the daily fever grew less and soon ceased altogether. Side by side these diseases vanished, as side by side they had tortured their victim for ten years-the dyspepsia alone having, as I have said, existed for twenty years. Her appetite improved from week to week until she could eat and digest the average food that any well person takes, without any suffering or inconvenience. With renewed assimilation of food came, of course, a steady increase in flesh, until she now looks like her original self. She still takes Kaskine occasionally, but with no real need of it, for she is well. I consider this result a scientific miracle, and the " New Quinine " is entitled to the credit of it, for from the time she began with Kaskine she used no other medicine whatever.

MARLIN REPEATING

AN OCEAN GROVE ROMANCE.

I heard of a very peculiar marriage that ook place in the auditorium in Ocean Grove that sounds almost like a romance. A young New York broker fell in love with a country girl while summering here but the mother, who seems to have been a sort of she dragon, objected to the suit She had possibly had some experience in her own life, for she averred that "all New York men was loafers" and would not let the bad broker near her ewe lamb. The old lady was very religious and took her daughter to the auditorium one Sunday to hear Dr. Deems preach. What was her indignation when, in the midst of a hymn, the young broker entered with a friend and took up their seats on each side of the young lady, never heeding the mother's frown. As the service proceeded she noticed that her daughter and the two men were talking a good deal during the prayers, and her indignation knew no bounds but she did not want to make a fuss during the prayer. When the services were all over she turned to her daughter with a narl and said

"You just wait till I get you home, miss. "But she is not going home," said the oung broker.

"Not going home?" gasped the mother "Not to your home, anyway. This lady is my wife. My friend is a minister and during the services he married us. Good
