Washington.

(From our regular correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 18th, 1887.

Of the many annual reports now being prepared in the several Federal Departments, perhaps none are of such general interest as is that of Commissioner Sparks, of the General Land office, which has just been submitted to the Secretary of the Interior, and which speaks more than mere platform platitudes of the sincere desire of the democrats to redeem their pledges to reclaim and restore to the people the public domain of which republican rapacity and venality have wrongfully deprived them. These vast funds are not confined to any particular locality but impartially and unblushingly penetrate and permeate every state and territory of the Union, which shall for many years to come emblazon on the pages of our country's history the degradation and infamy of the most corrupt party of the century.

The report in question shows that since March 4th, 1885, 31,824,481 acres have been reclaimed and thrown open to honest settlers. The investigation of land entries discloses the startling result that 2,312 cases covering 370,000 acres were condemned to cancellation and 1,153 entries, covering about 180,000 acres, were cancelled for fraud, pure and simple. Added to this crowded catalogue of crime—its crowning climax—more than five thousand cases have been unearthed wherein perjury or subornation of perjury has been committed in land transactions.

The reports of several of bureau officers—especially those of the Land office and Pension office, call for an increase in their clerical force—it appearing that these two grand divisions of the public service are outstripping in rapid and substantial growth all of the others—with the possible exception of the extension of the mail service throughout the country.

Considering the number of important and interesting cases to be adjudicated, the October term of the Supreme Court of the United States promises to be of extraordinary interest. First in magnitude is the trial of the Virginia State officials imprisoned by United States Judge Bond for alledged contempt of court in the celebrated "coupon crusher" cases, as this unheard of proceeding involves a grave constitutional question in regard to the relation of the State and National Governments.

Then there are the famous Bell telephone cases, the case of the Prellar murder at St. Louis—with a strong probability that the fate of the Chicago anarchists will also be decided.

Among the bills to be introduced in Congress next session will be seven on pension legislation, prepared under the auspices of the Grand Army of the Republic, with the purpose of providing aid for all soldiers who saw actual service. But if Congress should be weak enough to sanction such a wholesale raid on the Treasury, President Cleveland will again stand like a stone wall between that body of designing politicians—with a few honorable exceptions—and the coveted coffers of a great and generous people.

Another measure that comes near the people will be the introduction of a bill providing for the licensing of railway engineers and conductors—the object being to obtain for such service careful, temperate and experienced men and thus secure the safety of the passengers.

In this connection I may say that it is highly probable that Congress will abolish kerosene lamps and heating stoves on all railroads—replacing these death-dealing agencies with electricity and steaming apparatus, attached to the locomotive.

The citizens of the National Capital are making an earnest effort to have the next National Democratic Convention meet in this city. The initiative was taken by the Columbia Democratic Club in behalf of Washington, and the whole city is seconding their endeavor as a public meeting will soon be called to consider the undertaking. The chief obstacle to be overcome is the fact that the city has no hall large enough to accomodate the convention; but it is proposed to obviate that hindrance by the erection of a large temporary structure for the purpose. Another essential part of the program will be the dining and wining and lionizing of the National Democratic Committee when that body meets here next winter.

Two interesting physical experiments are amusing French scientific men. In the first a lighted candle is placed behind a bottle and the latter is blown upon with the breath from a distance of about a foot. The meeting of the air currents set in motion around the bottle quickly extinguishes the flame, though extinction would be impossible if a flat board or sheet of cardboard should be substituted for the bottle. For the second experiment two bottles are placed on a table, with a space of half an inch between them. The candles is set behind this space, and from the same distance as before, on the opposite side, the breath is blown smartly against the flame. Not only will the latter continue burning, but it will incline slightly toward the operator as if through the effort of suction. This phenomenon, analogous to the first, is due to the fact that a portion of the air cannot pass between the bottles, and is forced around them and back toward the experimenter.

Alfred Carpenter of the Marine Survey Office, Bombay, has observed Macacus monkeys on the Island of South Burmah opening oysters with a stone. They bring the stone from high water mark down to low water, selecting such stones as they can easily grasp. They effect the opening by striking the base of the upper valve until it dislocates and breaks up. They then extract the oyster with the finger and thumb, occasionally putting the mouth straight to the broken shell. The way they have chosen is the easiest way to open the shell.

There is a watch in a Swiss museum only three-sixteenth of an inch in diameter, inserted in the top of a pencil case. Its little dial indicates not only hours, minutes and seconds, but also days of the month.

THE PRESIDENT'S PROTEGE.

The proudest little girl in the city yesterday was diminutive six-year-old Florence Loux, who lives with her mother in modest apartments on Sixth Street, opposite Washington Square, over one of the many in that long row of lawyers' offices. When little Florence went to school yesterday her face was wreathed in smiles and she breathlessly rushed up to her teacher, Miss Diamond, and proudly handed her a large envelope, on which was written, "Miss Florence Loux. Postmaster Harrity will please find." The envelope contained a portrait and autograph of President Cleveland, and a little note from the President informing Florence that he had not forgotten her and thanking her for the bouquet she had given him.

When the President was here during the Constitutional Centennial among his many callers was little Florence. It was on the afternoon of the last day, just after the President had returned to his room from the Hibernian dinner, that a pretty but plainly dressed little tot walked into the corridor of the Lafayette and asked Clerk Fryer if the President was in. She carried in her hand a little bunch of faded flowers, and asked the clerk if he would send them up to the distinguished guest.

Her manner was so earnest that the clerk sent her up to the President's room herself. Unhesitatingly she entered the room which was fairly filled with rare flowers, and confidently advancing offered the President her little faded bouquet. The President gravely accepted the gift and requested his little visitor to be seated.

He entered into conversation with her, and before she left she had confided all her little troubles to her sympathetic listener. Among other things, she told him that when she was a wee little thing she had fallen ont a window and fractured her arm. Her mother, she said, was poor, and was afraid if her arm was amputated she would never be able to support herself. She refused to permit the amputation and the child recovered. When she went away the President kissed her good-bye and told her he would not forget her.

It has been two weeks since the President sent her his photograph. He had remembered her name, but forgotten her address, so he sent the letter to the Post-Office, with instructions to Postmaster Harrity to find Florence. The Postmaster instructed all his letter-carriers to make inquiry along their routes for the child and relate the circumstances about her broken arm, which the President sent to the Postmaster. Yesterday morning the child was found. She is now busy composing an answer to the letter, which she will mail on the President's return to Washington.—Philadelphia Times.

ENGLISH CROWN.

The crown of England is a costly "bauble" bedazzled with jewelry enough to found three or four public charities, or a half dozen ordinary colleges. There are twenty diamonds around the circle, worth at prices not less than $7,500 each, making $150,000 worth of diamonds alone in the circle. Besides these there are two large center pieces (diamonds) worth $20,000, or $10,000 each. Next comes fifty-four smaller diamonds worth perhaps $5000 each, placed at right angles with the two large ones. On each side is a cross composed of twenty-five diamonds each, the value of the crosses being $15,000 each. Then there is one large diamond on the top of each cross valued at $5,000 each. The fleur de lis contains twelve diamonds with a total value of $50,000; next eighteen smaller diamonds in the same, $10,000 besides pearls and other precious stones on the arches and concaves which are worth $50,000 more; also one hundred and forty-one diamonds scattered promiscuously over the body of the crown, making $25,000 more; twenty-six diamonds in the upper cross, $15,500, two circles of pearls about the rim, $15,000. The worth of the stones alone, in the crown exclusive of the metal, is little short of half a million dollars, its weight is 39 ounces and 5 pennyweight, troy, although there is 3,452 diamonds, 273 pearls, 9 rubies, 17 sapphires, and 11 emeralds. Hundreds of the diamonds are so small that they were not enumerated in the lists showing the worth of each group. The throne, which is so splendid when covered with silks, velvet and gold, is in fact nothing but an oak chair of antique style, which has served in its present capacity for over six hundred years. Its existence has been traced back to the time of Edward the I. The wood is now very hard and solid. The back and sides were formerly painted in various colors, and the seat is made of a rough looking sandstone twenty-six inches in length and seventeen and a half inches in width, and nineteen and a half inches in thickness, and in this stone lies the grand peculiarity of the chair. Numberless legends are told in connection with it, the truth probably being that it was taken from Ireland to Scotland and served at the coronation of the early Scottish Kings.

Indispensable to the Toilet.

Darbys Prophylactic Fluid cures chafing, eruptions and inflammation of all kinds; cures inflammed or sore eyes relieves pains from bliss or stings of insects and sore feet; destroys all taint of perspiration or offensive smell from the feet or any part of the body; cleanses and whitens the skin. Used as a dentifrice it purifies the breath; preserves the teeth and cures toothache; sore gums and canker. A little of the fluid in the water so in bathing is very refreshing and especially beneficial to the sick.

Physicians Have Found Out

That a contaminating and foreign element in the blood, developed by indigestion, is the cause of rheumatism. This settles upon the sensitive sub-cutaneous covering of the muscles and ligaments of the joints, causing constant and shifting pain, and aggregating as a calcareous, chalky deposit which produces stiffness and distortion of the joints. No fact which experience has demonstrated in regard to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has stronger evidence to support than this, namely that this medicine of comprehensive use checks the formidable and atrocious disease, nor is it less positively established that it is preferable to the poisons often used to arrest it, since the medicine contains only salutary ingredients. It is also a signal remedy for malarial fevers, constipation, dyspepsia, kidney and bladder ailments, debility and other disorders. See that you get the genuine.

Drunkenness or the Liquor Habit Positively Cured by administering Dr. Haines' Golden Specific.

It can be given in a cup of coffee or tea without the knowledge of the person taking it; is absolutely harmless and will effect a permanent and speedy cure, whether the patient is a moderate drinker or an alcoholic wreck. Thousands of drunkards have been made temperate men who have taken Golden Specific in their coffee without their knowledge, and to-day believe they quit drinking of their own free will. IT NEVER FAILS. The system once impregnated with the Specific it becomes an utter impossibility for the liquor appetite to exist. FAITH CURE FAIRLY BEATEN.

Chaplain Hall Writes the Following Remarkable Letter.

From the Albany N. Y., Express.

For many years my wife had been the victim of nervous dyspepsia, of the chronic, distressing and apparently incurable type from which so many of her sex suffer, languish and die. It was all the worse because the tendency to it was inherited. She had been under the systematic treatment of many of the best physicians in New York and Brooklyn and elsewhere for twenty years with only temporary relief. In fact, there were few, if any, kinds of food that did not distress her, so diseased, sensitive and torpid were all the organs of digestion. The usual symptoms of dyspepsia, with its concomitant ailments, were all present—bad taste in the mouth, dull eyes, cold feet and hands, the sense of a load upon the stomach, tenderness on pressure, indigestion, giddiness, great weakness and prostration, and fugitive pains in the sides, chest and back. I have often risen in the night and administered stimulants merely for the sake of the slight and transient relief they gave.

Intermittent malarial fever set in, complicating the case and making every symptom more pronounced and intense. By this time the pneumogastric nerves had become very seriously involved, and she had chronic Gastritis, and also what I may be allowed to call chronic intermittent malarial fever all at once. For the latter the physicians prescribed the good, old-fashioned, sheet-anchor remedy, Quinine gradually increasing the doses, until—incredible as it may seem—she actually took THIRTY GRAINS A DAY FOR DAYS IN SUCCESSION. This could not last. The effect of the quinine was, if possible, almost as bad as the two-fold disease which was wearing away her strength and her life. Quinine poisoning was painfully evident, but the fever was there still. Almost every day there came on the characteristic chill and racking headache, followed by the usual weakness and collapse.

About this time I met socially my friend Mr. Norton, a member of the firm of Chauncey Titus & Company, brokers, of Albany, who, on hearing from me these facts, said: "Why, I have been through almost the same thing, and have got over it." "What cured you?" I asked eagerly. "Kaskine," he said, "try it for your wife." I had seen Kaskine advertised, but had no more faith in it than I had in sawdust, for such a case as hers. Mrs. Hall had no higher opinion, yet on the strength of my friend's recommendation I got a bottle and began its use as directed.

Now recall what I have already said as to her then condition, and then read what follows: Under the Kaskine treatment all the dyspeptic symptoms showed instant improvement, and the daily fever grew less and soon ceased altogether. Side by side these diseases vanished, as side by side they had tortured their victim for ten years—the dyspepsia alone having, as I have said, existed for twenty years. Her appetite improved from week to week until she could eat and digest the average food that any well person takes, without any suffering or inconvenience. With renewed assimilation of food came, of course, a steady increase in flesh, until she now looks like her original self.

She still takes Kaskine occasionally, but with no real need of it, for she is well. I consider this result a scientific miracle, and the "New Quinine" is entitled to the credit of it, for from the time she began with Kaskine she used no other medicine whatever.

If you think a recital of these facts calculated to do good you are welcome to make them public.

(Rev.) JAS. L. HALL, Chaplain Albany, N. Y., Penitentiary.

P. S.—Sometimes letters of this kind are published without authority, and in case any one is inclined to question the genuineness of the above statement I will cheerfully reply to any communications addressed to me at the Penitentiary. JAS. L. HALL.

Other letters of a similar character from prominent individuals, which stamp Kaskine as a remedy of undoubted merit, will be sent on application. Price $1.00, or six bottles, $5.00. Sold by Druggists, or sent by mail on receipt of price.

FOR FARM AND FARMER.

Fix up your premises for winter.

Save all the cornstalks for fodder.

Now hasten the fattening of stock.

"Haste makes waste" on the farm.

It doesn't pay to winter poor stock.

Push the fattening pigs and poultry.

Holstein cattle are gaining in favor.

Pure water only for cows and horses.

Good for dull tools—grindstone music.

"Boys, "go for" the squirrels and coons.

Separate sick animals from well ones.

Nuisances—poor fences and unruly cattle.

Avoid giving the lion's share of profits to middlemen.

The very best mine for a farmer to invest in is his farm.

Do not allow your cattle to drink from a stagnant pool.

The flocks and herds need weeding, the same as fields.

In preparing products for market, try to please purchasers.

Put dwelling and outbuildings in order for the coming winter.

Never smoke in barnyard or barn, nor allow others to do so.

After securing your crops see to marketing them profitably.

Produce not marketed should be well stored and protected.

In transplanting trees, be careful to preserve the roots moist.

All breeding is founded upon the axiom that "like begets like."

The best breed is good care, good water good feed and good barn.

Good care is reckoned to be the farmer's best horse and cow doctor.

Breed the horse first for strength and endurance, and then for style.

Sheep and pigs are said to prefer dried pea fodder to the best hay, and both thrive on the food.

Sell the old hens if possible. They won't pay for keeping over winter, and will soon be unsalable.

Clear out the last remnant of manure from barnyard, stable and hog-pens, and put it on the wheat-field.

Young turkeys should only be allowed to run in fields where the grass is cut short, as wet plumage seems to be fatal to them.

The farmer who sells the best and keeps the poorest seeds and animals is on the right road to the wrong place. Better "about face."

CURIOUS FACTS.

A young Mexican girl is soon to appear in the arena as a bull-fighter.

Twenty-five thousand and thirty-seven locomotives in the United States killed 1426 railroad employes the past year, and wounded 6548. Nearly one-half these accidents occurred in coupling cars.

The building of railroads in Mexico has been accompanied by a singular phenomena. Wherever the rails are laid rain follows, and where there are no rails there has been a drought. The fact is said to be well authenticated.

An astonishing firearm has been introduced in France. It is of French origin, and is wonderful in the results obtained. At three thousand feet distance ninety-eight per cent of the balls hit a number of baskets representing a company of soldiers Col. Lebel, the inventor, stood within ten feet of a target while one of his friends fired at it 6000 feet distant.

A case of poisioning by nutmeg is recorded in the British Medical Journal, in which one nutmeg had been eaten by a patient as a cure for diarrhoea. It caused him to become giddy, stupid and very drowsy all next day. The narcotic properties of these seeds, and of others of the same natural order, do not appear to be generally known, and seem worthy of investigation.

It is asserted by Mr. Ashburner, the geologist, that not only is natural gas not a modern or recent discovery, but that even its utilization for the purposes of the mechanic arts was long ago successfully attempted in China, where, by pipes of bamboo, it was conveyed from natural wells to suitable furnaces, and by means of terra-cotta burners of suitable size and construction was consumed. Of its origin, concerning which so many diverse theories have been advanced, Mr. Ashburner is strongly of the opinion that the gas arises from the decomposition of forms of animal or vegetable life imbedded in the rocks in certain situations.

THIS GOOD OLD STAND-BY

accomplishes for everybody exactly what is claimed for it. One of the reasons for the great popularity of the Mustang Liniment is found in its universal applicability. Everybody needs such a medicine.

The Lumberman needs it in case of accident.

The Housewife needs it for general family use.

The Canaler needs it for his teams and his men.

The Mechanic needs it always on his work bench.

The Miner needs it in case of emergency.

The Pioneer needs it—can't get along without it.

The Farmer needs it in his house, his stable, and his stock yard.

The Steamboatman or the Boatman needs it in liberal supply afloat and ashore.

The Horse-fancier needs it—it is his best friend and safest reliance.

The Stock-grower needs it—it will save him thousands of dollars and a world of trouble.

The Railroad man needs it and will need it so long as his life is a round of accidents and dangers.

The Backwoodsman needs it. There is nothing like it as an antidote for the dangers to life, limb and comfort which surround the pioneer.

The Merchant needs it about his store among his employees. Accidents will happen, and when these come the Mustang Liniment is wanted at once.

Keep a Bottle in the House. 'Tis the best of economy.

Keep a Bottle in the Factory. Its immediate use in case of accident saves pain and loss of wages.

Keep a Bottle Always in the Stable for use when wanted.
