There are three ways by which this accumulation of surplus money may be stopped : First, a reduction of taxation. Second, more extensive appropriations of the public money for public improvements. Third, by going into the markets and buying United States bonds. No tax-payer who is true to his own interests can object to the first method for tax reduction must always be the slogan of the people when they are paying mere than the government needs. Al careful, frugal taxpayers will object to the second, as it establishes the foolish and dangereds policy of extravagance in public during the past year by the Local Unions. 27 cents on the funded loan of 1907.
