In a recent circular sent to many friends of Princeton Cellege Dr. McCosh recounts the action of the students and friends of the College which resulted in a no-license victory at the late election, to take effect the let inst., and also announces the organization of an anti-liquor league in anticipation of "opposition from the liquor-sellers and those who feel it irksome to live without intoxicants," of which he says : "Our aim is to remove the tempations presented in this place, where between seven and eight hundred young men are being educated for higher spheres of unefulness, and to have Princeton known as a safe place to which fathers and mothers may send their sons," He also says that "many are rejoicing that so healthy a spirit has been shown by the etudents. Parents are proud because their sons have acted so noble a part." Besides providing for a strict enforcement of prohibition, the new league proposes also 'to erec a building which, in furnishing an attractive place of resort without injurious stimulants, may take the place of the sa loons, and remove the only plausible argumentifor their existence." This action on the part of Princeton students and authorities merits liberal support, by money subscriptions and otherwise, and is a praiseworthy and timely object-les. on.
