Feb. 12th,1889. The Portland water bill in the House created a good deal of interest. Many ladies and gentlemen were there from Salem and other places to hear the debate and receive the vote. Judge Deady was within the bar and manifested close attention to the proceedings. He could not, however,influence the members either way if desired. The ball opened by Mr. Geer, of Marion, who voted for the bill but now sustained the veto. He wanted to know If he held a promissory note for $1000 and a water bond for $1000 if they should not be taxed alike. No one answered him Messrs. Gilbert and Northrupt championed the bill, while Miller of Jackson sustained the veto in a creditable speech. Several others had something to say pro and con. The vote finally came, 37 for the bill and 22 against it. Belknap absent. The excitement was great and the Governor received many congratulations. Taxed or not, the bonds would be all right. They would go to a four and a half per cent market and never be assessed in Oregon. Though if not taxed our banks would buy them on a speculation, and sell them at a try, but surely wreck itself. OUR PREDICTIONS.

(Written for the DEMOCRAT.) In our first article written for the DEMockar over our present non-de-flume, we remarked that if Mr. Harrison wanted a peaceful, beneficial reign as President of the United States for the four years after the 4th proximo, that Grandson Ben would et the wily schemer from Maine severely alone. Recent authentic dispatches seem to verify our prediction that James G. Blaine will rise to the surface as Bayard's successor, as State Secretary. For the country's good, we regret it; for in truth that great American tail twister will involve us in useless strife with foreign powers and probably well nigh wreck the Na tion, Blaine's conduct in the past, his attitude toward Roscoe Conkling, the meteor of the republican party, his feeling toward that portion of the United States lying south of the Mason and Dixon line all combined is sufficient to lower that gentleman in even a respectable republican estimation. But yet to democracy, Blaine's very probable return to power should no be heralded as an ill omen. It will serve to verify the truth of our past assertion that the republican party is a war party; that it sprung from the dying embers of a accident; and that it may wreck the coun of schooling in the deep ruts of adversity will not diminish a simon pure democrat's ardor one iota, for had we not a quarter of our memory recalls the fact that many voted against Cleveland because he called ing the war, no braver or more true an of the confederacy. Since he jumped strad. The dome of the Capital building should he built, but there are none to set it. Liberal wagon road and other appropriations can be made, but nothing can be done to d to the appearance of the State Capital.

The dome of the Capital building should die of the political fence, posing as a Readjuster and was elected to office from Virginia. Compare Lamar and Garland with Longstreet and Mahone. Can it be done? d to the appearance of the State Capital. Impossible—for the former remained true known to be very leading in matters bene-ficial to Salem or state. It is said that it every where; whilst the latter are held up
