Senator Stanford of California, speaking of railroad building says: "It will not be long until a railroad will reach all the way up to Alaska. When it gets there it will trend across Behring sea, and down into Asia. All this, I believe, will be done in 25 years and there will be literally an iron girdle around the earth. It's no harder an iron girdle around the earth. It's no harder to build a road down the Himalayas than to build across the Sierra Nevadas or other places where roads have been built. Snow sheds can and will be built, the same as we have over the Sierra Nevadas for 40 miles. Behring sea is the worst obstacle, but a way would be found to conquer even that. The reason why the road through is feasible, is because it would be a long line and could be deflected according to the obstacles to be overcome. I have no doubt that in 25 years a man can go clear around the earth by reil. build across-the Sierra Nevadas or other places around the earth by rail,
