There are enough intelligent, independent democrats in New York to smash the machine now coatrolling democratic politics in thin state. And hence it is safe to say that that state will soon pass into the hands of the republicans. Anent this there could be no question were it not for the fact that the republican party of that state is dominated by as disreputable a machine as the democrats are democratic but it cannot be kept so while the party leaders subordinate the interests of the masses of the people to that of the machine. No conscientious democrat will regret to see Sheehan's machine smashed at the elections this fall.
