THOUSANDS COMING.-Editor Hofer of the Salem Journal, who recently returned from the Middle West speaks in the followfrom the Middle West speaks in the following emphatic manner: The press of the state is speaking quite freely of the growing tide of immigration from the east to Oregon. The forerunners of an army of several hundred thousand people are now arriving on every train. The hundreds of thousands undoubtedly are to come in the next two years. No one can doubt that the population of the Willamette valley will double within five years and contain a round half million of people.

The Journal speaks from positive knowledge when it says thousands of families in the Dakotas, Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, Illinois, Missouri and Kansas will come to Western Oregon in the next six months. Those states have all been more or less afficted.
