

The Democrat.

The sale of wool in Linn county this year has put a great many thousand dollars in circulation.

Some fine prairie orchards in the vicinity of Oakville will mean a good deal for that part of Linn county in future years.

An exchange compliments an old newspaper man, now in California, but he says he has a penchant for not paying his debts, a blemish on his fair fame.

A town in Florida has been named Trilby. It will attract the Little Billed, Laidre and Svangalis, but sensible people should stay away. Better get among the big feet of Chicago than the staves of Trilby.

Marshal Meade used the Arizona Star for $35,000 and got a judgment of $1. Were some men to see for $1 he would come about as close to getting the $35,000. Character is a very valuable thing; but the truth is men who are really staid do not see a role into the courts for redress. They get it by their lives.

The debate between William H. Harvey, the author of "Coin's Financial School," and Roswell G. Horr, who stumped Oregon for the republicans last year, will commence in Chicago on July 16th and will continue from day to day until finished. Each side will have a number of assistants.

Last month the J. S. Clark creamery in Forest Grove was kept very busy. During May, 91,567 pounds of milk were received, from which 3750 pounds of butter were made, selling for $446.25. This brought the farmer 18 cents a roll clear of expense. The creamery is prospering, and the good quality of its product is being recognized and bringing in the trade it merits.—Ex.

The 4th of July comes next week. Readers of the DEMOCRAT are advised to come to Albany to have a good time, not to drink and carouse; but to spend the day royally in a manner becoming a good citizen. Because it is the 4th it is no excuse for a man to make a fool of himself. Rather, the day should be an inspiration to better citizenship. A long face is not necessary to that; but it is not required that a man should be a fool in his brain in order to celebrate properly.

Swift and Company, of Chicago, built the largest cake in the world to advertise their Cotelet at the opening of the new department store in A. M. Rothschild & Co. It was cut into 40,000 pieces and served to every one who came. A series of eighteen cash prizes was offered to those who guessed nearest the weight of it. The cake was advertised liberally by reading notices and display and as nearly as anything can be, it became the talk of Chicago. At every door in the store a young lady was stationed to hand a card to every lady who came in, inviting her to get a slice of the cake, and in the large spaces allotted to the display young ladies served the cake to the multitude of visitors and registered the guesses at the weight of it.

The following is an emphatic piece of testimony in favor of the Republican party, on one side. It is from the Haristburg Review: Some months ago, when Mr. Norton was running the blacksmith shop on Second between Smith and Monroe streets alone, and doing no advertising, the business alone amounted to scarcely nothing, and when a Republican representative tackled him for an advertisement, he informed us that it would not help him to the extent of a quarter of a dollar. But when he enlarged his business and had taken in a partner, Mr. Bishop, he resorted on a different policy, and forth with went to advertising, not only in the home paper, but in adjoining towns as well; and, as a result, their business has increased sufficiently for the steady employment of three first class mechanics. This practically illustrates the benefit of the free use of printer's ink. Any one doubting this statement is respectfully referred to the parties mentioned.

Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, June 17, 1895. It seems, as far as can be ascertained, that the financial split in the party in Kentucky would be permanent, are groundless. Representative Kendall, of that state, who is at present in Washington, and who is a free silver demagogue, says on this subject: "The silver question is not one issue that is involved in the party. Beyond that there are democratic principles to which the financial question will be subordinated. Although the last election in Kentucky was a very close one, I feel confident that when the silver question is presented we will have one of our old time majorities. No difference of opinion on a single issue can prevent for party holding together."

Attorney General Harmon left Washington yesterday for his old home, where he will be rapidly as possible arrange his private business, and then return to his residence at the national capital. He expects to return before July and to remain here the greater part of the summer.

Captain Howgate's second trial for embezzling money from the government while acting as disbursing officer of the Weather Bureau will closely try this week, and public expectation is that if the jury reaches an agreement another verdict of "not guilty" will be found. This expectation is not based altogether upon the general difficulty of convicting in Washington courts those who steal from the government, but largely upon the manner in which the prosecution in this case has been conducted. The prosecuting attorney a republican hold over, by the way—has done the best he could, but it has been clear from the first that he was outclassed by the lawyers employed by Howgate.

The extension of the civil service rules to employees of the Government Printing Office, more than two thousand in number, which has been officially announced by President Cleveland, is, of course, highly pleasing to most of the employees of that establishment; but there are lots of people who have doubts about the satisfactory nature of the change.

"Which" said a Democrat, closely and confidentially connected with the administration, "that very prominent demagogue was working as energetically and unselfishly for humanity in the democratic party of this state as Senator Hill is doing in New York."—Ex.

Who Did It. Crime should be hunted down. Personal safety and liberty depends upon it. Recently a residence was burned in Corvallis, there was no question that it was incendiary. Who did it? Corvallis authorities do not seem to be trying themselves out hunting for the culprit according to the Times; which says: "There is just cause for alarm, when there is in the community wretch or wretches depraved enough to seek revenge for real or fancied wrong with a firebrand. To steal out under the friendly cover of the darkness of night, pile up a mass of combustibles and then with malice and forethought and with deliberate intent to destroy, apply the torch and reduce to ashes a structure that man's hands have built, whether the act be for revenge or revenge or an overflow of the vile devilry that saturates and permeates the carcasses of some alleged men, is an act of cowardice, of treachery, of fiend malice that the devil himself would spurn, and that would disgrace hell to have it perpetrated within its brimstone borders. Who is the man in our midst who has done this deed? What individual was away from his usual haunts from nine until ten o'clock last Tuesday night? Who skulked away from his companions in the early evening, set fire to Judge McFadden's house and then skulked back again? What man was missed before the fire, and at the same time seen far and restless under the suspicious gaze of a companion? These things all happened, and if every citizen of the town had been alert in the duty he owes his own property and his family, in the protection he owes his neighbor's property, this villain would have been missed, suspected and jailed. The second ought to be hunted down. The community cannot afford to have such despicable events happen. The community's good name, its law and every man in it has been insulted, outraged by this heinous crime.

A prize was offered recently by London Tid-bits for the best answer to the question, "What is home?" Here are a few of the answers received: "The golden setting, in which the brightest jewel is 'mother.'"

A world of strife shut out, a world of love shut in. Home is the blossom of which heaven is the fruit. The only spot on earth where the faults and failings of fallen humanity are hidden under the mantle of charity. The place where the great are sometimes small and the small often great. The father's kingdom, the children's paradise, the mother's world. The jewel casket containing the most precious of all jewels—domestic happiness. Where you are treated best and you grumble most. Home is the central telegraph office of human love, into which run telegrams of love and affection, and from which, though extending thousands of miles, are never disconnected from the one great terminus. The center of our affections, around which our heart's best wishes twine.

The following from the Budget has a better ring to it than an item published yesterday in our midst columns: "We learn that a large company has just been organized in Missouri, Montana, with a capital stock of several hundred thousand dollars. The new company is to be called the 'Astoria and Montana Real Estate and Improvement Company.' The object of the association is to buy, bond, and improve property in this territory. It is also intended to bring into the market the mother's world, though extending thousands of miles, are never disconnected from the one great terminus. The center of our affections, around which our heart's best wishes twine."

Most people would like to see wealth more evenly distributed. They do not want to see the Rothschilds, Golds, Van der Bilt's, and the rest of the world's business. It is the sentiment of many that we should have laws that will not make such things possible. The truth is men have amassed great fortunes by laws passed in their interests by legislatures who have valued money more than honor. The Democrat looks for the time when this will be changed so that it will be easy to figure it out now, but a big bump of hope helps one out in seeing a brighter prospect on the subject.

After a good many months the Salem Statesman has got it open to the public, and it is stated in the very beginning by the DEMOCRAT; but the Statesman says it is right to the point and here it is: "The steamers are beginning to stick on the bars along Salem. Surveys and surveys don't do the river any good so far as the navigation is concerned. If the money that has been wasted on surveys during the past few years could have been devoted to improvement work there would now be no bars or snags in the upper river on which to hang up."

Ex-Gov. James E. Campbell of Ohio has had all the reports he has made and he would not accept the democratic nomination for governor if it were offered to him on a silver platform, and a United States senatorship is less tempting than gubernatorial distinction. He has views on the money question and expects them to be very freely given. He seems to give color to his declaration that he will not be a candidate for anything.—N. Y. World.

$2,500 a day being spent putting a road to condition for travel to a mine makes it look very decidedly as if business were meant by the state, and the trials will operate the Red and White Bull. There is said to be hundreds of thousands of dollars ready to back the enterprise. This will mean a great deal for Linn county, near the center of which the mines are located, as one can see by examining a map. One would think to need a big loaded team paper that they were only a few miles from that city.

David H. Wade, ex-governor of Colorado, is to lecture in Missouri on the 19th inst. He proposes to stir the people up on the Omaha platform. It may be interesting to him to know that the doughy wretch of the state of Colorado, who is a crank, a dabbler, and a scoundrel, is a misologist.

Corbett and Fitzsimmons are in training for their great fight that will come off near Dallas. As much as the public deprecates prize fighting there will be a very live interest in the result and many will express an opinion as to the result, who they think pugilism a menace to good society. Mr. Fitzsimmons will probably wish he did not mix up in such affairs.

A gentleman who recently died in Vienna at the age of 70 and been a member since he was 17. During that time he had smoked 378,713 cigars, 45,630 of which were cigars. Those he paid for cost him $12,000.

How Butter is Made. Mr. Beatty tells of a visit to the Albany creamery, which is of interest to our readers, showing as it does the process of making butter. I have just taken from a creamery at Albany, and as many of your readers probably never saw one in operation I will tell you about it. The milk is collected from farmers all over a territory 20 miles across, or at least 10 miles in some directions from the creamery, and is brought in the morning by the producers, beginning to arrive usually by 7, and by 9 it is rolling in, seven or eight wagons at a time. It comes in all quantities, from 1 gallon (8 lbs.) to 1000 pounds at a load. Each patron has a number and this is on the book with his name, and also the jar that receives the samples to be tested. From the weighing can it falls into a large vat of tin, and this is jacketed with wood, and cold water circulates around the milk all the time. As soon as enough milk arrives the separator is started and the milk is pumped into a little tank above the separator, to fall through a pipe into this machine, and in the tank the cream and the milk are separated, the milk goes back to a vat for the patrons and the cream runs over a large cooling trough into the cream vat in another room. The separator is a beauty and takes about 10 minutes to get started, as it runs at such a high speed that everything would be torn apart if an attempt were made to start or stop it suddenly. The bowl turns at the rate of 600 revolutions per minute. To many, that gives but little idea as to what it does, but compare that with the speed of a train. A car wheel is about 3 feet in diameter, or 9 feet long. Six thousand revolutions would make it about 1 1/2 miles per minute. 'Fretty lively isn't it?'

Once each day the big churn is set revolving and the butter is churned. A small steam engine does the work of running all the machinery, including the butter "workers," that travel in a circle and do better work and a great deal faster than our mothers used to do. The churn has a capacity of 600 lbs. of butter at a churning, but 200 or 300 is as much as they make at a time. All the arrangements are made to save work as much as possible. The cream seems to run by gravity from the separator into a tank and then into the churn. Everything is kept clean and neat, and at any temperature by water pumped direct from the deep well on the premises and is used freely. Some of the butter-milk is sold for summer drink now and the remainder is used for feeding. This part of the product belongs with the butter, to the creamery, and the butter is sold to the farmer on a milk can. It is enough to make one sick to think of the many many places in the favored state, where all the conditions are so favorable for butter production and yet no creameries. It is useless and worse than useless for the wives of farmers to try to make good butter, as it is nowadays to spin and wear our clothing as in grand mother's days. As to the business of preparation in creameries, Mr. Looney, manager and secretary, tells me that even as low as butter is now, the milk makes 45 to 65 cents per 100 pounds. E. J. Seeley is the expert butter maker.

Twenty-five Years Ago and Now. At one of the memorable meetings of last week in London of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance Union, a backward glance was given to the year 1870. Wendell Phillips and William Lloyd Garrison came at that time as delegates to a great meeting in London, and Lady Lady Fitz-Somer set in for the day. She too had been elected a delegate to the English meetings, but her credentials were refused, and because she was a woman she was relegated to the gallery as a mere observer. The two brilliant men who accompanied her were names are now important, and she is a woman who has shown such intemperance, and went herself to the gallery with her sister, whose name, alas! is now a name of the first magnitude in the galaxy of the great reformers. MARRIED. HYDE-DINDINGER.—At 9 o'clock Tuesday evening, June 25, 1895, at the home of Mrs. D. V. Poling, Mr. H. R. Hyde and Miss Dindinger were united in matrimony. The bride is a member of the Albany Female College, and a popular business man. The bride is one of the city's most popular young women, and is the best of friends of a large circle of friends.
