Hall, upon "International Arbitration."
The vital relation between England and America and the combined power of this Anglo Saxon people in the federation of the world, was the main thought, and when the flag with the star of hope and the cross of service upon the field of blood bore liberty to any land it would indeed be an emancipation day.

Monday afternoon it was the pleasure of two Oregonians who are not alraid of water, to attend the reception given President McKinley at the First Kegiment Armory. By dint of Western push and the kindness of a big policeman a very advantageous position was secured and the entry of the President and established and the entry of the Presi
