Killed by a Live Wire.

At Salem last evering Archie, the youngest son of Rev. Men. lop, recently a resident of Albany, met with death in a manner not to be courted. He imbed one of the electric light poles, and when at the top touched a live wire, the so ck of which killed him instantly. The boy was a member of the Baptist church and of excellent character. His death will be generally regretted by many friends of the family in Albany. The Statesman gives the following

Yesterday afternoon he was playing with Fredd e Lamport. After perform-ing numerous feats at climbing, Archie made the surprising announcement to als playmate that he intended to climb to the top of the electric light pole in the alley. Freddie thoughtfully admonished his friend not to climb, but Archie, knowing no fear in that direction, insieted that he would furfill his announcement, whereupon the former went home.

Securing an eight-foot ladder, which was afterwards found leaning against the pole, it is supposed he mounted the pole to a point where the iron fcot steps gin and it was then not the slightest dif-ficulty for him to attain the top of the pole. The boy had been warned of the danger from electric wires and it is not thought he voluntarily seized the wire in his hands Being of an advencurous frame of mind, however, it is highly probable that he was determined to reach the topmost round of the improvis-ed ladder of iron steps, and, upon attaining that position, lost his balance and in order to intercept the fall, thoughtlessly seized the deadly wires and suffered 'nstant death
