BEDROCK DEMOCRAT.

Second Edition.

BIG SANDY WAGON ROAD.

In our last issue we had a little to say about the Big Sandy Wagon Road, in which we promised to continue the subject. Any measure that will open up the Columbia River to free navigation is of great importance to all the people living east of the Cascade Mountains; it makes no difference whether they reside in Idaho or Washington Territories, or in Wasco, Umatilla, Union, Grant or Baker Counties, they are alike, all interested in this great and vital object. It is a well known fact that the carrying trade of the Columbia river is monopolized by the Oregon Steam Navigation Company by their ownership of the only means of transporting freight and passengers over the portages on the Columbia between Celilo and the Dalles and the Dalles and Portland. With free passage around the Cascades we will see a line of steamers plying on the river between the Dalles and Portland, and also on the Upper Columbia. This, everybody knows, would bring freight down to reasonable and living rates, and our farmers could, from their own freights to Umatilla, and from there ship it to a market where they would receive good prices for their surplus products, and the freight would not eat up the value of the article shipped. If this would be the case with us, how much more important is it to the people of Wasco county that there should be free and open passage way around the Cascades.

The completion of the Dalles and Sandy Wagon Road will give this free passage around the portage of the Cascades, and will be of immense benefit to the farmers of Wasco County, as well as to the whole of Eastern Oregon, and Eastern Washington and Idaho Territories. It will reduce freights at least one half, and will open up the Columbia river to free navigation. In relation to this matter the Walla Walla Statesman of a late date says:

The first step toward opening the Columbia river to free navigation will be taken this Winter at Washington. Colonel Nesmith is pledged to use his influence toward the completion of this great enterprise, and intends to commence active operations as soon as Congress meets. The day is not far distant when the Columbia, from its source to its mouth, will be free—a great highway for the commerce of the Columbia River Valley—knowing no owner, save God, who in His infinite wisdom, intended it as a blessing, and not that it should fall into the hands of men to be used to oppress and enslave His creatures. Let us be of good cheer for the people in their might have declared against all species of monopoly.

This matter of free navigation of the Columbia River is becoming more and more agitated in this section of country, and will continue to be agitated until the evil complained of is remedied.

Our last Legislature gave us the means of remedying the evil complained of, and if the people let the monopoly that has oppressed us so long kill the measure now, it will be a great blow to every measure for our relief in the future. Portland may lose the trade of a portion of Eastern Oregon, as she has lost the trade of a portion of Southern Idaho, if this road is not built. Sometimes it almost appears to the people of Eastern Oregon that Portland is linked in with the Oregon Steam Navigation Co., in measures to oppress the people of this portion of the State and of Eastern Washington—let this fact become a little more patent on its face, and our people will take measures to protect themselves. If the people of Portland will give a helping hand to this Sandy Wagon Road it can be built within the next year. The appropriation made by the Legislature is ample to build it, and the security for the payment of the money appropriated is ample.—The Governor has done his duty and it only now lacks the confidence of capitalists to insure the completion of the work. Let our people agitate this matter, and place it before the public in its true light, and it will be long until there will be found those who can and will advance the funds necessary for its completion, upon the ample security that is offered by the State, when it is known that the State is bound for the payment of the amount appropriated.
