HAVANA, Dec. 4.—Captain General Jovellar telegraphed to the Madrid Government to-night the following effect: The Madrid Government has given peremptory orders to the Captain General to deliver up the Virginius. General Jovellar respectfully resigns his position, and demands that another person be sent to take his place who can carry out the orders of the Government. Considering the excited state of public opinion, and the impossibility of overcoming the difficulties, General Jovellar submits that there become delay, during which an opportunity would be given for reflection and time gained to allay the fiery patriotic spirit of the great national party in Cuba, but the strong orders from Madrid, immediately to be executed, deprives him of this resource which he hoped to have in upholding the authority and interests of the country, in order that the Madrid Government may comprehend the difficulties of the situation, and do justice to the ardor and perseverance with which he began his labors, which had already begun to produce their fruit. The Captain General describes the situation in the island, and declares that the impression produced by the news of the arrangement which has been completed between Spain and the United States can be compared with that produced in Spain by the Treaty of Bayonne, which led to the war of independence against Napoleon. He begs to assure the Government that the immediate delivery of the Virginius will instantaneously cause a frightful commotion throughout the island, which would be sure to result in successive catastrophes, even if a man of the highest ability should be in command here.

The above dispatch was forwarded early in the evening. Public feeling is intensely excited, but the greatest order prevails, owing to the confidence which General Jovellar inspires.

The Voice de Cuba says that the leading merchants of Havana held a meeting this morning to provide for the purchase and armament of a number of fast steamers as cruisers in case of a war with the United States. The same paper says that Colonel Jimenez, of the First Battalion Volunteers, has offered to arm six sea going steamers out of his own means, and the merchants of Cienfuegos have ordered the purchase of two fine steamers abroad, for war service. Later information increases the number ordered. It is reported that several new battalions of volunteers will be organized immediately, and the Catholic society proposes to organize a sanitary battalion.

The voice declares that Salor, Colonial Minister, has forwarded his resignation to Madrid. Captain General Jovellar telegraphed his resignation twice. The Governor also handed in his resignation, and until to-night no answer to Salor's telegram had been received.

The authorities have sent to Madrid long extracts from the manifesto they had drawn up in the Virginus case.

Many influential Spaniards in conversation to-night express the opinion that further difficulties can be avoided, provided the conditions of the surrender of the Virginus is changed. They are not unwilling to see her delivered into the hands of a neutral power, and question her right to bear the American flag as decided by the arbitration. The majority of the people are determined not to permit the surrender of the Virginus directly to the Americans, and if this is insisted upon there will be serious conflict. Calm people express the hope that the United States will waive the question of a direct delivery. The authorities are well willing to obey the mandate of Castelar, but the Spaniards will not consent to direct surrender to the Americans. If Castelar and the Government of the United States insist, the authorities will be compelled to abdicate. The situation is extremely complicated, and nobody can tell the result. There is no naval vessel of the United States in port. One British man of war is here. A number of Englishmen have arrived in Havana to look after their commercial interests in person. It seems that Castelar inquired by telegraph as to the state of popular feeling in Cuba on the settlement of the Virginus affair. The Captain General replied that the people were unanimously opposed to the steamer's surrender, but before the answer could be received at Madrid, Castelar telegraphed the terms of delivery. In the port of Havana this caused the greatest surprise among the Spaniards.

BERLIN, Dec. 3.—The controversy between the German and Spanish Governments regarding the German vessels that were seized by the Spanish war vessels in the Philippine Islands, continues to increase in seriousness. The German frigate Kron Prinz, and the corvette Augusta, have been ordered to prepare for active service.

REPEAL.—Notice has been given in the House of Representatives of a bill to repeal so much of the U. S. postal law as prohibits the weekly newspapers from passing free to subscribers in the county where published.

A dispatch from Galveston, Texas, of December 5th, says the returns from forty-four counties show a net Democratic majority of 15,000. The Democrats claim the State by 40,000.
