News from the Arctic Ocean.

LONDON, Oct. 16.-The Pandora arrived safe and sound at Portsmouth this afternoon, after an adventurous and eventful voyage in the Arctic seas. The Pandora arrived safely at Disco and left that port on the 7th of August, reaching Upernavik in time to leave on the 13th. After sailing fsom Port Upernavik the Pandora crossed the dreaded Melvin bay without mishap. The usual fields of pack ice were- not visible, and an almost clear sheet of water was found. The passage was made in good time. In due time the expedition reached application to the United States for a patent Carey [Island, where Commander Young anticipated finding dispatches that might have been left by Capt. Nares to be taken to the British Admiralty. In this he was disappointed, as no signs of the government exploring expedition were visible. Nothing further to be done at the Island, Caplain Young decided to steer for Lancaster Sound, and on reaching that point encountered for the first time ice floes. So great was the pressure of floating ice that it was with great difficulty that the Pandora was forced on. Despite the ice and difficulty of the passage, Captain Young succeeded in traversing the entire length of Barrow Strait, making the passage in good time. The Pandora's progress was then impeded by a dense and blinding fog, which was so thick and impenetrable that men a few feet from each other were invisible. As soon as the steamer arrived at anchor off Bechy Island several of the officers and crew went ashore and made an examination of the buildings. . They found the storehouse, built for the benefit of sailors or castaways of icebound vessels, broken into. On entering the building they found clothing and provisions left there to be in a state of confusion. Everything movable was scattered about in the most singular way. At first it seemed to have been the act of human beings, but they were satisfied the destruction of the stores and been accomplished by Polar bears, as tracks were visible in every direction. One discovery made was that the headboards over the graves of Sir John Frankliu's men, who were lying buried there, are still standing upright and in good preservation. On the 26th of August the Pandora steamed from Bechy Island for Peel Strait, and then commenced the most critical period of the voyage, for the steamer encountered vast fields of pack ice, making the passage most difficult and laborious, struggling through pack ice. She readily worked her way, and despite difficulty soon passed the furthest point reached by the Fox, when McClintock was in search of Sir John Franklin. Soon after reaching there the Pandora neared the island known as King William's Land, thus navigating a sea where no ship ever went before, except perhaps that of Sir John Franklin, At this time the most intense excitement prevailed among the officers and men, as it was expected some important results were at hand. Many believed they would be sure to discover traces of Franklin's expedition, and some were sanguine that even Sir. Johu's papers would be found, and eventually making Behring's Straits. In this, however, they were disappointed. Roquette's Island was discovered ahead. It was then discovered probable that the vessel would be able to reach Bellot's Straits. As the steamer moved forward all hands gazed eagerly ahead to the southward, but on reaching Roquette's Island, the officers and men saw the edge of a solid pack of ice, which stretched across from side to side in one unbroken expanse of hummock ice. This pack blocked the entrance to Bellot's straits. It was the same pack of ice that stopped Captain McClintock on the Fox, so there was no hope of a speedy movement of the icy barrier. The Pandora stayed at this point till the 7th of September, when, finding no further progress possible, Capt. Young and officers saw they must either decide to remain through the winter in the ice or return. After mature deliberation it was decided to be useless to'remain in winter quarters; that it would be far better to return next year. The return journey was full of difficulties. Ice was rapidly forming and the passage of the Pandora was a constant series of exciting scenes and narrow escapes from movingice floes. Finally escaping through Peel strait, the ice still rapidly forming and accumulating, the steamer at length reached Carey Island in safety. There Captain Young found the long looked for dispatches from Captain Nares for the admiralty. From Melville bay the Pandora steamed direct for England and arrived safely. Captain Young reports that from the prevalence of north winds there is abundant promise that Captain Nares will prove successful. Should the expectations of the Pandora's commander be verified, Captain Nares will proceed to the highest latitude possible.

PERSONS OF IMPORTANCE .- Talk about persons of importance, will you? There is no one equal to the family baby. Never a king, or emperor, or president with his power. He knows it, too, before his tiny feet can patter over the floor. He is as sure of it as if he knew every language spoken instead of none,

When he awakes in the morning, another sun rises; when he is carried away for the night, he must kiss everyone, and everyone rejoices in his kisses. His eating and drinking, his walking, and his pantomine are subjects for important bulletins every day,

Ah, how strange it is that this important being must one day be let down to the position of an ordinary boy, expected to eat what is set before him, and do as he is told-perhaps to go into somebody's office and be snubbed; that he should come after a while to be a man, and find no one very anxious as to his kisses-nay, to have one refused him occasionally! Yet, it's true. If he live, he will slide slowly down to the ordinary lev-

He'll be "our baby" no more, but only a common human being, with faults in plenty; and even if he should stand at the top of the social ladder, be a great soldier, a renowned statesman, a genius -no matter what, he'll never be what he is now, a faultless creatuse, whose will is law to everybody, who has not an enemy in the world and lots of lovers, and who has only to utter a series of shril shricks to be called a darling, smcthered with caresses, and i omforted with flagons.

Too HEAVY .- A little fellow the other day, being told by a young man to get off his knee, as he was too heavey, made quite a sensation among the persons present by yelling back; 'Too heavy, hey! Sister Lou weigh's a ton more'n I do, and you held her on your knee four hours last night.

larity of this valuable Hair Preparation, which is due to merit alone. We can assure our old pations that it is kept fully up to its high standard; and it is the only reliable and perfected preparation for restoring GRAY OR FADED HAIR to its youthful color, making it soft, lustrous, and silken. The scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean. It removes all eruptions and dandruff, and, by its tonic properties, prevents the hair from falling out, as it stimulates and nourishes the hair-glands. By its use, the hair grows thicker and stronger. In baldness, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, and will create a new growth, except in extreme old age. It is the most economical HAIR-DRESSING ever used, as it requires fewer applications, and gives the hair a splendid, glossy appearance. A. A. Hayes, M.D., State Assayer of Massachusetts, says, "The constituents are pure, and carefully selected for excellent quality; and I consider it the BEST PREPARATION for its intended purposes."

Sold by all Druggists and Dealers in Medicines. Frice One Dollar.
