THE YAQUINA INDIAN TROUBLES.
The Two "Bens," in the Characters of Peacemakers.
Mrs. Kistler's Statement of California Jack's Story.
The following communication comes to us from Elk City, under date January 28, 1873:
EDITOR DEMOCRAT:
Permit me through the columns of your paper to lay before the people a few facts in regard to the recent Indian troubles on Yaquina Bay. It is unnecessary to say that the mysterious dancing, and strange conduct of the Indians, followed by the burning of E. N. Sawtelle's house, caused great alarm among the settlers. I shall, therefore, speak more particularly of the efforts made by our citizens to have the matter investigated by the proper authorities. The people finding it impossible to discover the intent of the Indians, or the cause of their strange conduct, appealed to the State or Federal authorities, with what effect the sequel will show. The United States officers came, and I propose to follow them, in the discharge of their duties, and show the people how obedient they are to the law and their duty. In the first place, I am informed that they armed themselves, at Corvallis, with five bottles of whisky and two boxes of cigars, and started for the seat of war. But, on account of lightning whisky, a slow team and eagerness for the fray, or a low dashboard—the world may possibly never know which—one of these gentlemen fell astride the buggy pole, between the horses, lodging early in the day. The next morning, however, they were ready for duty, and proceeded on their way rejoicing. But, instead of going to where the trouble was, and there making strict inquiry into the matter, that they might hear the facts in the case, they went direct to the Siletz, and got the Indian story, and then to Newport, where they could replenish their whisky bottles, and thence to the seat of war, to tell the people that the affair was all a hoax, and that the Indians said they did not burn Sawtelle's house, and they did not think the Indians "would lie about it!" The Superintendent expressed a wish to see Mrs. Kistler about it, and her husband proposed to bring her up to Elk City; but Mr. Odeneal said he would save her that inconvenience, by calling at her house. This, however, he failed to do. Did Mr. Odeneal come over to ascertain facts in regard to the cause of the late alarm, or to tell the Indians that it was all right for them, whenever any white man did not submit to their dictation, to burn his house, and then say: "We did not do it?" We leave his conduct in the premises to answer the query. If Mr. Odeneal had desired to know the conversation that occurred between the Indian California Jack and Mrs. Kistler, why did he not call on Mrs. K., as he agreed to do? Let that gentleman answer. OBSERVE.

MRS. KISTLER'S STATEMENT.
Following is the conversation between Mrs. Kistler and California Jack, in relation to the threatened outbreak on Yaquina Bay, just as it occurred, as nearly as it can be remembered by that lady. We give it, as the lady gives it to us, in the form of a dialogue, that our readers may see the full scope of the conversation:
Jack—I suppose you would like to know why I did not come on to work this morning?
Mrs. Kistler—Yes; I would like to know. As the weather is good, you ought to have been to work early.
Jack—I am very sick at heart.
Mrs. K.—Why so? What is the matter?
Jack—I have not slept any all night. I have been talking to the Indians all night. They wanted to break into one house and steal lots of things, and get one man and cocksnet (hurt or beat) him.
Mrs. K.—Who is it that wants to do this?
Jack—Mytilicum (people or friends).
Mrs. K.—Who is the man they want to kill?
Jack—I dare not tell, or they will kill me.
Mrs. K.—I would like to know who it is they wanted to kill last night.

Jack—Do you think the white folks would protect me, if I made a revelation?
Mrs. K.—Certainly they would, if you told on the Indians, and helped the whites.
Jack—If I knew that to a certainty, I would tell.
Mrs. K.—Who is it? Is it Sawtelle?
Jack—Yes; but don't let the Indians know I have told, or they will kill me.
Mrs. K.—Why do they want to injure Sawtelle?
Jack—Because they are all mad at him. They wanted to go last night, but I would not give my consent. I told them that I did not want the whites to be mad with me. I wanted to work for my flour, meat, sugar and coffee, and I wanted to work all spring and summer, for Kistler, cutting wood for the steamboat, and in the fall I would have lots of provisions and money. But they said what is the odds? It will not be long until all the whites will be mad at us, anyhow, and we might just as well commence now. I told them to wait until Harney come, and if he said go ahead, I would have no more to say. But they wanted to know why I would not give my consent, and repeated the question a number of times—"kata mika wake tickey nesika clatwa mamook cocksnet yaka?" (why don't you want us to go and injure him?) I told them, as before, I wanted to work and earn my grub, and if they would go to work they could have plenty, too. But they said no; one more night, and all would be mad. Nika sawa mika, close nanich; spose Harney wake choco, clonass sioash wake close midlite. Nika has quash sioash cocksnet. Sawtelle polachy. Nika has tickey Harney choco. Nika wake tickey mi-tite sultta copa Bostons. Mika close nanich—close nanich.
Mrs. Kistler is prepared to qualify to the occurrence of the above statement, whenever called upon by Mr. Odeneal, or anybody else, to do so.

The Lava Beds.
Jesse Applegate, writing to the Bulletin, thus graphically describes the lava beds in the Modoc country: The stronghold of the Modoc Indians is a "pedregal" of the most extensive and elaborate description; it occupies, with but few intervals, nearly 100 square miles. If you can imagine a smooth, solid sheet of granite, ten miles square, and 500 feet thick, covering resistless mines of gunpowder, scattered at irregular intervals under it; that these mines are exploded simultaneously, sending the whole field into rectangular masses, from the size of a match-box to that of a church, heaping these masses high in some places, and leaving deep chasms in others. Following the explosion, the whole thing is placed in one of Vulcan's crucibles and heated up to a point, when the whole begins to fuse and run together, and then suffered to cool. The roughness of the remains as the explosion left it, while all below is honey-combed by the cracks and crevices caused by the cooling of the melted rock. An Indian can, from the top of one of these stone pyramids, shoot a man without exposing even so much as an inch square of himself. He can, without undue haste, load and shoot a common muzzle-loading rifle ten times before a man can scramble over the rocks and chasms between the slain and the slayer. If, at this terrible expense of life, a force dislodges him from cover, he has only to drop into and follow some subterranean passage with which he is familiar, to gain another ambush from whence it will cost ten more lives to dislodge him; and so on ad infinitum.

The Danbury News gives an account of the vicissitudes of life as experienced by a young man in that place. He went to see a young lady, previously just having been to an oyster supper. As he neared the house he saw her father standing on the steps and hailed him. "Hello, old Tatpole. Where ish my lovely gazelle? Where ish my love now dreamin'?" The father looked at him, thinking that he wanted something, placed his hand sadly upon his shoulder, turned him round, and filled the space under his coat-tail with leather. The young man don't go there any more; he says small-pox is hereditary in the family.
