The Work of Excenyating Comme

The North Public School of this city closed yesterday afternoon. "The exer-Gladly would we avoid referring to the cises consisted of addresses, reading oibles of others, and most especially those standing of pupils, presentation of rolls of honor and vocal and instrumental mu-sic. As a large number of visitors was of an upright member of the Church; but our duty as a public journalist forces us to give publicity to an accident which hapexpected to be present, the students had placed everything in proper shape, so that parents and friends might go away well satisfied with their visit. The decoration enep to a worthy Good Templar, whose penep to a worthy Good Templar, whose name, out of pure respect, we suppress, he not being the "Head of a family," but the Superintendent of a Sabbath School, and, according to Upton, a praying Chris-tian, as well as at one time editor of a Good Templar organ, which position he might have yet held, had not his greed for gold impelled him to sell that sheet to the Rådical party, for a certaid sum "in hand paid," etc. This worthy, who now (by proxy) runs the high moral organ of Benof the building displayed elegant taste and excited universal admiration. Attached to the walls of both rooms were long, beautiful testoons of evergreens, whose graceful curves, together with the rich profusion of flowers with which they were loaded, were most beautiful to be held. Radical party, for a certaid sum "in hand paid," etc. This worthy, who now (by proxy) runs the high moral organ of Ben-ton county, went out to camp-meeting last Sunday, where his "tellow feeling" overcame discretion, and he became intox-icated (on pleasure, of course), while ca-tent. Filled with that spirit which ex-hilarates mankind, he started home in a buggy. Not being in a very sober vein, his horse became frightened at his enghilarates mankind, he started home in a buggy. Not being in a very sober vein, his horse became frightened at his enig-matical actions behind, and took to his heels. In vain the pions worthy pulled the strings. Faster, faster, flew the angry steed, until the vehicle capsized, the thills parted, and the equine, freed from all "en-tinging alliances," sped on, leaving the paor Elder floundering in the mud. A passing teamster, taking pity on the poor wretch thus cruelly abandoned, picked him at and brought him to town, on Monday, when he presented a most pit-iale sight as he rode down Main street, perched upon the summit of a load of humber. To say that the poor fellow feels cut-up by his recent experiences would er adapted himself handsomely to the oc-casion by giving his audience the benefit of a twenty-minute speech, full of sound logic and good advice. After a song by the school was sung, Prof. Emery took the rostrum and made a short and very appropriate address. Prof. E. evidentiy knows how to talk to the young folks. W. B. Carter, ecitor of the Gazette, being called for, responded in a very pleasing manner. Next came the reading of the PUPILS' STANDING.

PUPILS' STANDING. This part of the programe was especially interesting to parents. A large per cent. of the students received very flattering reports, while a few were somewhat disap-pointed by not getting a very creditable standing. They were doubtles dealt with as well as they deserved. According to a cut-up by his recent experiences would not express half so much as Horace Gree-ley's advice to the young farmer in regard to the best time to cut young elders. Though this man has repeatedly ited previous arrangement the names of all pupils who reached 100 in deportment were to be inscribed upon a roll of honor. about us shamefully, we can say, with all our heart, "Father, forgive him." If appeared that 38 of the students were entitled to this honor. Each one of this number was duly presented with a copy of the roll, which was a very handsome one. A copy, elegantly framed, was ex-hibited, which will be retained in the Farmers' warehou e vas begun in this city. The building will be erected immediately north of the Moore & St. Clair wharf, and will be 30 feet by 90, one portion 28 feet high, the remainder 22 feet. A sacking room, 15x90 will be built underneath, with an eight foot ceiling. A large quantity of an eight foot ceiling. mill, and Mr. McLagun, the contractor, has already begun the framing. Eight men were employed on the excavations last Monday, which number has increased during the week. All honor to the farmbored in vain. Precisely at 4 o'clock the exercises of the afternoon closed. Patrons and friends returned to their homes, feeling richly rewarded for having paid the teach-ers of this school a visit. Studies will be resumed again about September 1st. ers. And judging from the critical examination, which the students passed with honor to themselves and credit to the Professors, that they are thorough in the various branches of science on which they were examined. The Entertainment on Friday evening 13th by the Primary Department was very interesting considering that they were young and inexperienced. The Encentaureate sermon was preached on Sunday by Dr. E. J. Dawne, of Salem, which was one of the most forcible as well as instructive sermons that has ever emanated from the Oregon pulpit. Some of his remarks which were so forci- bly presented to the class, whom he was directly addressing, that they will un- doubted in their memory. and	LIFE INSURANCE.—The following note, received by an agent of the Continental Life Insurance Company, shows the ad- vantage of insuring in a responsible com- pany: HALSEY, June 12, 1873. Brown, on last Monday evening, delivered the annual address before the Literary Societies of Corvallis. The address was replete with useful instruction and information, and was enjoyed by all present. The Gen-eral seemed to be, on this occasion, "the right man in the right place," for he has not only the faculty of pleasing, but also of instructing, we might say, charming his heavers, SHT TOLL GATE DOWN .--- From Phil Stanton we learn that the toll gate, on the road between here and Elk City, had been torp down by parties traveling that road who thought the gate an infringement upon the rights of the traveling public. The proprietors threaten to sue for destruction of property. Travel is quite brisk to the MUSICAL .- Since the organization of a Brass Band in our city, a musical mania has, it seems, fastened upon a young artist, who rooms not more than a dozen doors above the postoffice. He has pur-chased three baby horns, of Harry War-rior, of different styles, and now delights his neighbors with "practice" notes every evening.

The Albany Amateurs.

In company with a number of gentlemen, we were driven to Alhany, last Saturday evening, by that accommadating stage man, Sol. King, to withese the en-tertainment given by the Alismy Dramat-ic Society. Arriving at 8 o'clook, we found the band discoursing sweet strains in front of the Pacific Opera House, and a in front of the Pacific Opera House, and a throng of citizens pouring into the spa-cious hall. The orchestra, composed of Miss Westlake, upon the plano; M. M. Hart, upon the flute ; and Mr. Jeff Cline, upon the violin; was entertaining the andience with most pleasing music. At 8:30 the curtain rose, and the performance opened with the anusing farce. opened with the amusing farce,

THE MAID OF MUSSTER.

The characters were represented by Mr. Gus, Sweet, Miss Maggle Gore, Mrs. Tay-lor and Mart Taylor, all sustaining their roles with credit, entering into the spirit of the play in a manner that would have done credit to professional performers. Mrs. Mart Taylor theu sang a beautiful ballad, which was repeatedly encored. A comic song by Mart Taylor, entitled "THE MINOR OF '49," was excellently done, in character, and received merited applause. A tableau was then given, in which Miss — Gore, a little miss of ten summers, sang

"COME, BERDIE, COME, with great effect. A tree was placed upon the stage, in which a canary was perched, and while singing the song, with out-stretched arms, the child seemed to be pleading in earnest for the little songster to share her home. M. M. Hart then sung a comic song, entitled his two little children, aged respectfully, five and seven, carrying the chorus with-out any assistance. This was the star per-formance of the evening, and at its close, many bouquets and a quantity of coin was thrown upon the stage. The per-formance closed with

"A KISS IN THE DARK,"

In which Mrs. Taylor, Miss Gore, Mart Taylor and Harry Watson assumed char-acters, and acquitted themselves in a praiseworthy manner. An original comic song, full of local hits, by Mart Taylor, which was highly enjoyed, closed the ex-ercises of the evening. At the close of the performance, the audience indulged, for a brief meriod in mingling in the for a brief period, in mingling in the "mazy." With a high appreciation of the talent of this troupe, we entered our carriage, and drove home by the "light of the bright silver moon."
