

NATIONAL REPUBLICAN TICKET. For President of the United States, JAMES A. GARFIELD, OF OHIO. For Vice President, CHESTER A. ARTHUR, OF NEW YORK. For Presidential Electors, GEO. B. CURRY, C. B. WATSON, E. L. APPLIGATE.

It was not our purpose to make any exultant remarks over our good fortune, in the recent political contest, or to answer any of the growling remarks made by either Democratic journals or individuals; but we can no longer refrain. We can stantly hear it charged on street corners, and it meets our eye in every Democratic paper we read, that Republicans bought their recent victory; that the result was only the triumph of dollars and cents, etc., etc. Now we listened to this for quite a while without any response, but now feel it our duty to come to the front in the defense of the Democratic voters of the State. The charge that Republicans bought votes necessarily implies that the Democrats sold their votes, which we do not believe. We believe that the average Democrat is honest, and the number of votes the democracy accuse us of buying with the money claimed to be used for that purpose brings the democrat down to about the price of a scabby sheep. This accusation we most emphatically deny and we earnestly insist that Democrats stop vilifying their own party supporters.

OUR STANDARD BEARER.

The Republican party is to be congratulated that, through its representatives, it has selected for the standard bearers, gentlemen well known throughout the country, but whose patriotism and standing, carry with them no bitterness and no partisan feeling. We are proud to acknowledge as our leader a gentleman who is known throughout the land as able, as eloquent and as a thorough-going Republican. We are proud to acknowledge as our leader a man who was recently a candidate for United States Senator in his own State; a man who was so thoroughly imbued with the honesty of his political standing that he refused and refrained from advocating and advancing his own claims, and who is in harmony with the Pacific Coast on their particular issues.

We are proud of the work of the Chicago Convention. General Garfield—Senator Garfield—President Garfield—for he has so many titles of honor we know not by which to call him—has as strong a claim on the affections of the average American as any man who was ever put forward, without his own action, for the suffrages of a nation. No man can read the record of his life. No man can read the history of that barefooted farmer's boy—we say "a farmer's boy"—his father died when he was too young to remember even his father's face, and he was a widow's son, upon a desolate little farm, near the shore of one of the great lakes, in Ohio—a barefooted boy, he earned his daily bread, and as he drove his horses on the track of the great Ohio and Chesapeake Canal, he studied and fitted himself for the occupation that was before him. He educated himself. Our platform talks about the necessities of education as necessary to American liberty. Over thirty years ago that man discovered that principle, and he educated himself. By his own labors he fitted himself to become a member of one of the great colleges of the land. He worked in the summer, and he studied in the winter, and came out ranking amongst the first in the class, without the aid of any mortal dollar except those his own hard hands had earned. Not born in the purple, not born with education forced on him by those who determined to educate him—but he knew its value, and he fought its battle for himself. He was by turns in one occupation and other, and in all successful. Successful in early life, successful as a soldier and successful in the halls of Congress he will prove himself successful as the chief executive of the United States.

We remember him as he fought the rebels in the field; and ably and bravely as he fought there, he fought even more the impudent Democracy in the halls of Congress. There were a great many names before the Chicago Convention whose friends desired their nomination; but it seems that the hand of Providence guided the mind of the Convention to this man as the most fitting representative of Republican principles and the life of the Republican party. Those other great men must join the band of illustrious names—such as Webster, Clay, Chase, Seward and others—of whom it has been and will be written, "Too great to be President of the United States." We honor him none the less, but we go into the fight now united as we would not have been united had, perhaps, any other man than James A. Garfield received that nomination. We have never seen the standard of the Republican party higher advanced than it is now, nor the party better united; and it will go forward to victory in the coming contest.

THE TENTH CENSUS.

Regularly appointed officers of the United States are now engaged in taking the tenth census of Oregon, and every State and Territory in the United States. The first Federal census was taken—very loosely—in the year 1790. It was little more than an approximation of the number of inhabitants then in the United States. From that time to 1850 a similar enumeration was taken every ten years. In 1850 an attempt was made for the first time, with tolerable success, to collect statistics of manufactures, immigration, migration, agriculture, births, deaths, occupations, and classification of age, sex, condition, education, etc., as well as general population. In 1860 and 1870 still further improvements were made in statistical methods; and this year (1880) it has been the intent of the Act authorizing the census and making adequate appropriation of money therefor, to very considerably improve on the accuracy and amplitude of all former enumerations. But there can be no accuracy unless the heads of families and households cordially aid the census officers by giving prompt and truthful replies to all the questions that will be propounded. There is no good reason why they should not do so. The object of these questions is to secure the greatest possible amount of statistical information touching the population, material condition, educational, moral and mental status of the people, their industries, trades, employments, and whatever else will be of use to them all and to the enlightenment of Congress, the Government, State, municipal and national, to know. Taxation has nothing to do with it. No person's taxes can be to the extent of one cent increased or diminished by the answers to be given to the questions the census officers will ask. Every question is ordered and directed by law, and nothing is left at the discretion of the officer.

The GAZETTE, for the foregoing reasons, earnestly entreats householders, hotel keepers, directors of manufacturing establishments, superintendents of public institutions, and all heads of families, male or female, to make prompt and truthful answers to every question that may be propounded, and in all reasonable ways to aid the officers who may call on them in the dispatch of the business in hand. If there is an idiot or an insane person in any family or household, or one whose blood is tainted with an incurable malady, whether mental or physical, the fact should be stated in reply to the question; but in no case is it required that the name of any such unfortunate shall be given. The purpose of the census is not to disturb the tranquility of families or expose the crimes and misfortunes of individuals, but to collect the material for as accurate a photograph of the country as possible—its population first, by age, sex, condition, religious, mental, moral and physical; its wealth and industries, and how they are represented and distributed among the various cities, towns, counties, State and Territories.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY.—In our last issue we were unable to give the result of the election of District Attorney for this District. Since then it returns of Coos and Curry counties have decided the matter in favor of our opponent, by a small majority. Mr. Hamilton is a man of learning and ability, and will, we doubt not, make an efficient officer. We feel grateful for the complimentary vote received in this county and the District, and extend to our successful competitor our hearty congratulations, hoping we may have "better luck next time."

YAQUINA BAY. ED. GAZETTE: Travel has commenced bayward. Stanton and Macky are making a fine job of the Newport and Corvallis road. Jos. R. K. Irvin has rented the Ocean House, will be here pr. 25th. Peter Abbey has enlarged his hotel and is ready to receive and entertain the public in good style. The entire frontage of Newport is being protected by a well made bulk-head, which will add both to the value of property, and the general appearance of the town. Several improvements are noticeable and some building contemplated when the appropriation is made and the certainty of railroad connection. Yaquina Bay will move and keep pace with other favored portions of the State.

The political caudren has ceased to boil, and that which the people considered impure has been skimmed off. Finding myself elected for a trip up Sat River, I went to the office to find the sailing day—it seems the entire Democratic State ticket being dubbed, "Honest," had concluded to not mix with the "common peril" and had chartered a special boat, this boat is noted for being extremely democratic in build and style, no cabin, no stateroom, no nothing's, except it is her immense poop deck. In order to supply the public dispatches will be forwarded from stations along the route, signed by one or more of the "Honest" gentlemen and duly "endorsed" by Kelly. Having expended all my loose change in the "late unpleasantness," I concluded to charter the only remaining vessel—and had just closed the contract when McFadden wrote to say a number of his particular and personal friends wished to go up the same stream, and as there was a good many of them, Mac thought a reduction ought to be made. Now Mac has always been devilish kind to me, and feeling that he may be in condition, some day, to return the favor, I consented, so when the whistle blows be ready; we will make Hammond's bar the first day, and if there is as much water on it as the candidates tried to make the Soap creekers believe there was, we can get over all right.

NEAR PHILMATH. ED. GAZETTE: The political warfare has come to a close for the present, so man can do no better than to return to the most "noble" of all the noble works—to the duties or right of the "plough handle." The people of the United States pay annually over $100,000,000 to foreign countries for sugar and syrup, while there is no reason in the world why they should not produce at least the sugar they consume. If sorghum cannot be successfully grown in Oregon, why not try sugar-beets? Puyallup valley (Washington Territory) is making great efforts to establish the fact at home that beet sugar, to any extent required, may be made in this country. Willamette valley, with her soil and climate, must, by any body who knows anything about sugar beet growing, be considered perfectly adapted for such an enterprise. Sugar manufacturers of America are willing to pay more than those of any other country in the world for roots; they pay in California at the factory over $5 00 per ton, and farmers can afford to grow the beets for less than that. There would be only one difficulty in the way, which is simply this: Our farmers don't know how, and want learn. Good farmers would average at least 20 tons in Willamette valley, and even as much as 35 and 40 in some of the bottoms near the rivers per acre, careless land-skimmers could not. Manufacturers could pay a good price for the roots grown here, as those raised in Puyallup valley, a country pretty near the same as ours, proved to be superior to any others ever grown in America. The Puyallup beets showed to possess 13 1/2 per centage of sugar, and this simply means one per cent. more than any other country of America ever has produced; and almost 2 per centage more than the best result ever known in Europe. The most celebrated sugar beet farmer in Thuringia and Hanover (in Germany) and in the bottoms of the Loire (France) never produced a beet that had contained more than 12 per centage.

By sowing beets, farmers ought to lay out the rows closer than 22 or 24 inches, and the seed with from 8 to 9 inches intermediate space. The rows ought at least not so close as to prevent the use of a one horse cultivator. The soil ought to be ploughed at least ten inches deep, the part of the beet that has to grow above the ground, is no account for sugar. As some of the greatest benefits of the beet-sugar business we have to enumerate the deep tillage, clean culture, and the necessity of rotation which it involves, making the crop substantially a clear gain, the other years of the rotation producing a larger quantity of other products ever before.

LIBERAL. Near Philomath, June 11, 1880. ITEMS FROM SUMMIT AND TUM TUM. ED. GAZETTE: Early Monday morning duty called us to leave the "heart of the valley," and direct our course toward the green hills of the Coast Range. Taking passage on the Yaquina stage, which leaves Corvallis at 6 o'clock, after an hour's ride we come to Philomath, where fresh horses was hitched to the coach and in twenty minutes we were off again, and making good time, considering the condition of the roads. By noon we find ourselves at the Summit House, kept by Mr. Geo. L. Crain, who also is postmaster. Soon a sumptuous dinner was ready, and the edibles disappeared, when subjected to our sharpened appetites, with wonderful rapidity; but the table is well supplied with good things, and eventually a satisfied feeling overcomes us and we are led to believe we have eaten enough, notwithstanding the proffered fourth cup of coffee, etc.

About 1:30 o'clock the stage again moves on, but having reached the point around which lies our field of labor for a short time, must content ourselves to see the coach roll out of sight and disappear around the mountain. We have already extended our official visits to a large number of families, have received kind and courteous treatment at every place, and good lodging and accommodations at the hands of Mr. Crain, at the Summit, Mr. J. Skaggs, near the head of Mary's river, Mr. A. Porter, on the Yaquina and Mr. G. McFadden in Little Elk valley, at which residence this letter was written.

We should not fail to mention the hospitable reception and kind treatment we received at the camp of Wallis Nash, Esq., on Rock creek, a tributary of the Siletz river. Mr. Nash has a tract of 3,000 acres of land on Rock creek and vicinity, and is erecting a residence on the same, about five miles from the Yaquina road; he has a wagon road completed to within a half mile of camp, which road has been completed at a heavy cost, as some of the cuts and grades were very difficult to excavate. Mr. Nash is making arrangements to fence part or all of his land. He expects to move his family hence as soon as the house can be completed.

There are two companies of hands working on the Yaquina road near the Summit. Mr. Porter is working on the hill near Mr. Aldrich's, and Mr. D. Johnson's crowd is working near, and east of the postoffice. The road will soon be fixed in good shape, and pleasure seekers going to the coast, will have a smooth road over which to pass. Mr. Trapp, also has a force working on the lower part of the road. Respectfully, HIGH LAND. Little Elk, June 6, 1880.

A HASTY SHOT AND NARROW ESCAPE.—On Monday morning, about 1 o'clock, the watchman, Davis, and Wm. Igo, formerly the jailor, who had been watching certain parties suspected of mischief, and fully believing that they contemplated burglary, left the Palace saloon and crossed over to the Abegg's and Moxley's, and Davis then left to go and get some coffee, telling Igo to keep a sharp watch. Soon after Davis left, Igo observed a flicker of light reflected on the window of the saloon of Bunker and Squier, which soon was extinguished. He cautiously approached, and looking through the window he observed a man by the light of the street lamp, who was leaning over the safe, and stooping down as if attempting to open the safe. Igo says he hailed him, and receiving no answer he aimed his revolver at him and fired, and soon discovered that he had shot at Charles Allen, the bar-keeper, and hit him in the shoulder, inflicting a very severe wound. Igo immediately went for Dr. Kelly and rendered all the aid and assistance he could for the wounded man. Allen was taken to his room and the wound examined, but it was impossible then to tell where the ball had lodged. On Monday Dr. Kelly succeeded in finding and extracting the ball. The bone is somewhat shattered, but though it may require some time to heal, and possibly may stiffen the shoulder at the joint, yet it is hoped that no further injury will result. Allen is a little deaf, and says he saw Igo and spoke to him before he shot, and that Igo did not speak before he fired, or if he did so, Allen did not hear him. Allen had got up from his bed and gone to the saloon on some errand, and used no other light than that of a match as he first entered to see the direction he wished to go, which soon burned out. There is no doubt that Igo's suspicions were much aroused, else he would have used more deliberation before firing his pistol. Allen's escape was narrow. A man should be certain before he fires, in all cases.—Idaho Paper.

MRS. PRESIDENT GARFIELD.—As our lady readers will be anxious to know what style of lady Mrs. President Garfield is, we will relieve their anxiety by giving the following: Mrs. President Garfield is of delicate form, in rosy health, a domestic, devoted mother, fitting her four young ones, able for college or active life, a lady of sunny spirit and a very quiet, dignified bearing.—Portland Telegram.

OREGON will be sold for Garfield, in November.
