On last Monday business calling us to Philomath, we procured a conveyance and started for that quiet little town. Arriving there we drove to Mr. G. W. Kisor's and committed our "Rosinante" to his charge, started to "take in" the town. As a natural consequence the first place we visited was the Crucible office. This is a journal run in the interest of the college at that place; Mr. Al. Clayton is foreman, and has charge of the general business. Rev. Becker is the editor. The Crucible is in a yery flourishing condition, if all reports are true. The Philomath college, of which this journal is the exponent, is under the direct management of Prof. W. S. Walker. and through his earnest efforts is destined to become one of the leading institutions of learning in the State.

The next place we called at was J. E. Henkle & Co.'s store. One would be sur- Mill. prised to see the fine stock of goods, of all descriptions, that they have constantly as cheap as anybody. The postoffice is located in their store. Their store would be a credit to any place.

The next place we come to is Allen & Harris' store. What we have said of Henkle & Co.'s store in regard to quality, variety and cheapness of goods, will apply equally to this establishment. Everything is kept in the best of order, and there is
