ALASKA MINERAL DISTRICT.

Sitka mining district contains a series of ledges on Baranoff Island, about five to fifteen miles from Sitka. The formation of the district is pyrite and the casing of the ledges is of manganese slate. The ores are auriferous quartz, carrying but little free gold, but auriferous pyrites and arsenical sulphurets of iron, with now and then a few pyrites of copper and galena. The ores are low grade from $8 to $15 per ton, as tried and proven by the workings of a little ten-stamp mill erected by the Alaska Gold and Silver Mining Company of Portland, Or., which Company owns the Stuart mine, the most developed claim in the district, showing up a ledge from four to thirty feet solid ore, the whole length of 3,000 feet (the length of the Company's property). A number of other just as good ledges are in the district, and so far as prospected, show up to be good veins of pay ores, if sufficient capital could be raised to further develop the mines. I have myself expended considerable capital in prospecting these ledges, and am satisfied that with the proper working of these mines good profits could be arrived at. The cost of extraction would not exceed $1.50 per ton, as all the mines can easily be worked by tunnels for a number of years to come. The cost of milling in a mill of twenty to forty stamps would not exceed $1.50 per ton. The expense of milling in the little ten-stamp mill now there costs $2.25 per ton. The mines are easily accessible, some coming clear to deep-water edge, and none are over three miles from shore. There is plenty of wood and water around all of them. The Witch and Last Chance mines are at an altitude of 3,500 feet, while the majority are lower down than 1,000 feet. The north wall of the belt, which runs the same course as the ledges, northwest and southeast, is secondary granite while the south wall is lime-stone, of primary formation. On the north end of Baranoff Island, near Distant Island, in Peril Straits, a party of mining prospectors found some ledges of copper or low-galence ores, 300 pounds of which I had worked, giving $125 return per ton. This is in limestone. In Harris Mining District the geological formation of the quartz ledges are four fissure veins of auriferous quartz, carrying galena and selenite of lead and arsenical sulphurets of iron. The mineral belt is from one and a half to two miles in width, bearing north eighty degrees west by south eighty degrees east, the same course as the ledges, of which there are apparently eight main ledges and a number of smaller hundred feet apart. On most of the main ledges there have been made from ten to twelve locations, each of 1,500 linear feet in length. The formation of the mineral belt is a metamorphic slate, the ledges being mostly incased in manganese slate, which forms the gauches of the ore bodies, and carries a considerable amount of the precious metal. The north wall of this mineral belt is a primitive granite, forming the summit of the vast mountain range, with an altitude of 4,000 to 6,000 feet. This part is unexplored. The south wall of the mineral belt is a syenitic gneiss, intermixed with basaltic slates. At the contact of the south wall and mineral belt runs a large lode of felsite of low-grade ore, which is apparently the mother lode. The quartz locations are at an altitude of from 800 to 3,500 feet above the level of the sea, and from one and a half to four miles from the shore of Stephenson Straits. The quartz ledges are from two to twenty feet wide, and are visible on every claim so far made, showing regularity and continuity. The surface wash from these ledges, which have been worn down considerable, apparently through former glacier action, has formed our placer deposits, which all pay on the hillsides, under the lodes. —Cor. "BILL ARP'S" VIEW OF PREACHERS.

I like the preachers. They hold us back from going to extremes. They are the conservatives. They are good citizens and set us a good example. They are the balance wheels of society, the scotch to the wagon, the air-brakes to the train, the pendulum to the clock. They are like the Sabbath that gives us rest and peace. They are to society what the judge is to the law. I love 'em all, and when they are blotted out, which God forbid, I want to go too. In sickness, in trouble, in affliction, yea, in the last agonies, they are with us and comfort us, while the busy world wags on. God bless the preachers of this land—the preachers of every creed that teaches love to our Creator and love and kindness to one another. Nevertheless, I sometimes feel sorry the preacher's children, for the good man is so afraid he will do wrong he leans the other way. It did me good the other day when I saw one of 'em take his children to see the circus procession. It was so kind and considerate. If they can't do let the little chaps see the circus, do let 'em see the procession. By and by, may be, they will get old enough to be trusted within the canvas and see the pretty horses in the ring and the men ride round, hear the clown crack his jokes and laugh at him because he is such a fool. I don't admire these folks who are always laughing whether a thing is funny or not, and I never did like to see a pretty girl giggling at everything that happened; but still it is better to laugh than to be crying. The world is not draped in mourning. The birds sing and the butterflies float around in the happy sunlight. At night the cricket chirrups on the hearth and the katydid sings his evening song; sweet flowers are blooming everywhere, and Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these. All nature is happy except a few snakes and hyenas, and I don't want to be like them.—Atlanta Constitution.

A MAN BOUND TO SUCCEED.

We know of at least one man that is destined, if he lives a few years, to have a bank account. He is apparently an immigrant, and probably arrived here last evening. This morning he was met on one of our principal streets a sturdy looking, well knit foreigner, wearing a wrinkled but clean blouse, and armed with a brand new saw and sawbuck, the latter being evidently of his own manufacture. He was just striking out to find something to do. His bright manly face told of the faith that was in him—faith in the success of industry and sobriety. This man is not of the kind that come to the Pacific coast with the expectation of finding a gold mine or taking up a fine ranch within a week after their arrival, nor of that other class that lounge about waiting for something to turn up. He realized the fact that he was among strangers, and that if he would thrive he must work. The cold weather is coming on and people must have their wood cut. A small outlay would procure a saw, and a piece of scantling might soon be fashioned into the necessary part of the wood-sawyer's outfit. A few dollars sufficed to fit him out, and inside of fifteen hours after his arrival he was ready for business. That man will succeed where thousands will fail—he will grow rich while some of his fellow-adventurers will be beating their way over the country, looking for work and praying that they may not find it. We admire pluck of this sort and trust that our hero of the blouse and sawbuck is by this time "up to his eyes" in somebody's woodpile.—Sacramento Bee.

GENERAL NEWS.

A directory of the city of Salem is to be published soon. The wigwam in Salem has been opened again for a skating rink. Senator Edmunds will discuss the political aspect of Mormonism in Harper's Magazine for January. A new town called Van Duzan has been laid out, at the terminus of the Narrow Gauge in Lane county, at the forks of the Willamette. Mr. Daniels, of Harmony, Clackamas county, has lost over forty fine sheep which were killed by wolves. Mr. Alfred Luelling, of Milwaukie, lost about a dozen last week. On Sunday morning last Mr. Andrew Frazier, who lived alone near the Fair Grounds, at Salem, was found dead in his house. It is supposed he died from heart disease. Andrew To-we-pe, one of the Indians who was implicated in the murder of the Perkins family, was hanged at Fort Colville on the 15th inst. He died "game." The partners in a Sacramento law firm Young & Young, are husband and wife. Mrs. Young was admitted to the bar some two years ago. The firm is doing a successful business.—Exchange. The net proceeds of the Cantata Queen Ester, played at Independence a few nights since, amounted to $25.54, which was donated to the organ fund of the graded school. C. A. Pickett, from Clackamas county has been sentenced to seven years imprisonment in the penitentiary for an assault with intent to commit rape. Proposals will be received at the contract office, Post Office Department, Washington, D. C., until 3 P. M. January 7th, 1882, for carrying the mails of the United States upon the routes, and according to the schedules of departures and arrivals specified by the Department, in the Territory of Washington, from July 1st, 1882, to June 30th, 1886.—Independent. The Portland Journal of Commerce says the shipments of potatoes to San Francisco are large. Between three and four thousand sacks were taken by the Columbia on her last trip. Another attempt to get a woman's suffrage bill passed by the W. T. legislature was made on the 18th says the New Northwest. The new Bill provided for the submitting of the question to a popular vote of the people but was lost by a vote of four to six. At a meeting of the Episcopal Diocesan Board of Missions in Oregon, recently held in Portland, the following appropriations were made for church buildings: Trinity Mission Chapel, Portland, $15; St. Matthew's Chapel, Portland, $25; towards the erection of the church at Oakland, $100; for repairing the church of the Good Samaritan, Corvallis, $100. Messrs. Watts & Godfrey will publish a business directory of Linn county, about January 1st. One thousand copies will be issued, a large number of which will be furnished to immigration aid societies for distribution on trains, steamboats, etc. while the remainder will be sold at the low price of 50 cents per copy. Robert Gray, keeper of the lighthouse on Entrance Island, reports, says a special to the Victoria Standard, that on the 11th inst. a sloop, partly decked over, was wrecked on the southeast end of that island. There were two white men, two blackmen and three children seen on board. All on board were lost. A large amount of hydraulic pipe has been ordered in Portland for the squaw Lake Ditching Company, of Jackson county. This assures more extensive operations by the company, which is all that is needed to assure success.

OLD SI'S UMBRELLA.

During the rain the other day, says the Atlanta Herald, old Si laid his umbrella down on the counter in a store. When he got ready to go out the article was missing. He turned to some darkies near and said: "Whar's dat umbrella dat I put dar on dat counter?" "We didn't see hit," replied one. "Mebbe so, but I mightily 'spects dat some of yer felt hit." "No, we didn't neder." "Don't yer fool wid me now, 'kase I haint 'gwine to git out no hapus corps for dat umbrella—"

St. Louis, Nov. 24.—The Mississippi river commission, now in session here, is preparing its third annual report to the secretary of war, to be submitted at the opening session of congress with the president's message. The report this year will be more voluminous and of more importance than has marked it in the past.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 23.—This morning Keifer, Steifel & Co's extensive hattery caught fire in the finishing department, and was soon in ruins. Loss estimated at $114,000. It is believed an incendiary was at the bottom of it. The tannery has been burned twice this year.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—Times' New York special: A genuine commotion was created in the custom house to-day by private advice from Washington that John R. Lydrekker, formerly one of the deputy collectors here, is to succeed Mr. French as assistant treasurer. When Arthur became collector, Lydrekker had his political fortunes with him and became a warm adherent of Senator Conkling.

Yankton, Nov. 23.—A fire this morning destroyed six frame buildings on North Third street. Loss, $15,000; half insured.

New York, Nov. 24.—Sun's Washington: Friends of Secretary Folger announce his management of the treasury department will be solid even to aggressiveness. They say the new secretary does not believe in the policy of locking up the enormous surplus which the government is receiving day by day, and that he will put it all out. The amount of money at the command of the secretary of the treasury which can be used for the purpose of redeeming public debts is very large, and if Folger is as his friends say he intends to do, the country may look for a very important reduction of debt within a short time. From twenty to thirty million of dollars could be used at the present time for this purpose without crippling the treasury, so strong has it been made by its enormous receipts. The same person says Secretary Folger will not sell bonds, but will go into the market and buy them.

American artists have been invited to submit designs for the monument of Alexander II to be erected in an enclosure of the Kremlin at Moscow.

Berlin, Nov. 23.—The Official Gazette says the emperor's health will not yet warrant his leaving his room. He is compelled to transact only the necessary government business.

Washington, Nov. 24.—A. M. Gibson, special attorney for the United States in the matter of the star routes investigation, has submitted his report to the acting attorney general, which is made public to-day. The propositions are sustained by overwhelming and unimpeachable evidence.

Montreal, Nov. 23.—Mgr Tremois prelate, of the household of Pope Leo XIII, is here. He expresses the opinion that his holiness would not long change his residence to Malta or Salisbury, from the opposition he receives in the holy city. The Italian government does not afford the protection, which it should and the pope foresaw in his departure and has made a catalogue of all objects of value in the Vatican.

From the 1st of January to October 31st 114,700 emigrants sailed from Bremen for the United States.

New York, Nov. 23.—Mrs. Abraham Lincoln has been in this city nearly two months, submitting to medical treatment at the hands of Dr. Lewis A. Sayre. A Times reporter says: She has not the needed means to secure proper attention and medical treatment, which is granted by congress is utterly inadequate to supply her wants in her present condition. It is stated that active efforts are making to have congress increase her pension.

This morning's train on the Third avenue elevated railway came crashing at all speeds into the bumper at city hall station. Passengers were severely bruised. The electric brakes failed to act.

Milwaukee, Nov. 23.—Cigar manufacturers have formed an organization to resist the demands of the Cigar Makers Union. They will probably dismiss all offenders.

Buffalo, Nov. 23.—The schooner Mary Jane, from Port Dover for Erie, is reported lost with six men missing.

New York, Nov. 23.—A Tribune's Washington dispatch says Arthur recently told an office-seeker: "Come, and see me about it thirty days before incumbent's commission expires. I have made up my mind that all officials shall serve out their terms unless they fail to perform their duties properly."

Chicago, Nov. 13.—The Times' Washington special says; Senator Mahone predicts that all men opposed, to sectionalism in many places in Europe and Asia, and made arrangements with the health authorities of other nations to prevent its spread. What they will do with this other disease, the "Anbomic" plague, which I judge resembles the black death of middle ages, I don't know; but they undoubtedly acted as promptly as they have heretofore, as the name of this plague was known soon as the name of the constitutional succumb of Calcedon.

New York, Nov. 25.—Dr. James, of the board of health, says of the cholera and plague reported as raging in Paris and the old world: I do not think there is a good reason to fear any outbreak of the plague here. The national board of health has for some time known the cholera was raging in many places in Europe and Asia, and made arrangements with the health authorities of other nations to prevent its spread. What they will do with this other disease, the "Anbomic" plague, which I judge resembles the black death of middle ages, I don't know; but they undoubtedly acted as promptly as they have heretofore, as the name of this plague was known soon as the name of the constitutional succumb of Calcedon.

Robert Maxwell, a prominent farmer living near Cairo, Ga., killed Adam Ziegler, a negro, for assaulting his little daughter.
