WASHINGTON LETTER. THE BEAUTIFICATION OF THE CITY—THE LOBBY AND THE SWAMPS—THE LEBBY AND THE PRIVATE CLAIMS COURT.

Washington, D. C., March 10, 1882. Congresses come and Congresses go, but the wrecks of the Potomac swamps grow on forever.

The malaria flats would have been long since improved if it were not for the lobby. There is always this monster ready to strangle any good measure that it cannot convert to its gain.

There is a measure before Congress now which, if it shall become a law, will do more practical good than any measure that has been before this body for years.

EASTERN OREGON. Pendleton is growing very rapidly.

Alexander Boyd, of Weston, lately committed suicide by taking too much beer and laudanum.

On last Saturday the people of Union levied a nine hundred dollar school tax.

The Sentinel says an animal similar to the California lion was caught in the direction of Baker city.

Prof. Batan, formerly of Corvallis, is teaching music at Centerville.

The citizens of Union, organized a Union Christian Association last week.

The LaGrande protracted meeting closed with fifteen accessions to the M. E. Church.

Not long since I mentioned the new town of Lincoln. The name of the town is North Powder.

There will be a Temperance rally at LaGrande on the 22d inst. for the purpose of organizing for the coming campaign.

At Linkville a mob while attempting to lynch the prisoners, killed deputy Sheriff J. T. Lewis.

J. T. Emerson, of Pendleton, was bound over in the sum of $500 for cattle stealing but made his escape with securing the amount.

The Record truthfully says we are having all kinds of weather.

The newspapers of this county exhibit great enterprise in guarding the interests of this country.

The Improved Order of Red men, of Union, have put up a fine sign on their hall on Main street.

More grain will be sown this spring than ever before in Eastern Oregon.

INDEPENDENCE IN GEORGIA. E. R. Representative William H. Felton, of Georgia, has written another letter upon the political situation in that State, arraigning the Democratic policy and administration, and bitterly inveighing against the convict-farming system especially.

sell, and defend their official "crook- edness," you may be considered a very clever fellow, but you must take always a back seat, or you will meet a Senatorial sever, or a spike from the railroad boomerang. When a high office is traded off for money don't ask any questions—accept and defend it for you will find your self- abnegation of no value, no matter how long you have waited on the party. It is a road that never gets out of the well-beaten track, and there is no abuse half hard enough for the man who prefers to serve principle rather than the party trick- sters. Don't allow yourselves, Messrs. Editors, to get discouraged by this fight on the young men of the State. It is the young blood and pure patriotism of our young men that is to redeem Georgia and push the banner of Independence to victory. I, myself, am trayling down the shady side of it, but I shall hold out an open hand to the gallant spirit who refuses to bend the knee that "dirigible" may follow fawning. There is a worthy ambition in enter- ing public life, but the sweetest reward ever given to a public servant is the thought that his patriotism and honesty were as pure when he gave up the trust as when he accepted it. To the man who charge corrup- tion on me, I point then to my record, and it is legitimate for me to retaliate and show up their own official and political conduct.

"WHY WANTED I WHOING." As a result of the publication of an article in the Laramie Boomerang some time ago, under the above head, a perfect deluge of letters has been turned loose upon the office, from women all over the country.

Bill Nye remarks: We wish to say that the original statement was correct, and was written in deadly earnest. Wyoming wants women, and wants them bad; but there is no clamorous demand for sentimental fossils who want a bonanza husband and a pass from the effete East. A young and rapidly growing territory is, of course, largely populated by men, but they are not as a rule millionaires with a bad cough. Most of them are healthy and still retain their mental faculties. One soft-eyed hyena, who has no doubt been ignored for thirty years, writes us a poetic epistle which ought to melt a more obdurate heart than ours.

It is written on six 12-oz of foolscap, in violet ink, and in a way that has created a coolness in our family which it will take years to efface. The idea of cooling large red doughnuts in hot lard, or wringing out heavy under-clothing in soap suds and hanging them out in the back yard on a cool day, does not seem to occur to her. There are very few households here as yet who are able to keep their own private poet. We try to keep up with the onward march of improvement, so far as possible; but we are most of us still a green to give up our meals and gorge on a stanza of cold poem on the half-shell. The crisp, dry air here is such that hunger is the chief yearn in Wyoming, and a good cook can get one hundred and twenty-five dollars per month, where a billiard poet would be bothered like a man to get a job at five dollars per week. That is the reason we are writing these terse and perhaps ungalant words. We want to discourage the immigration of a large majority of those who have written us on this subject. They are too fresh and too youthful in their nature. We want to do the Territory some good, and to encourage a class of women to come to this region who would know enough to construct a batonbone on an overcoat so that it wouldn't look like the opus of a cross-eyed hog. Still, we do not consider woman a drudge or a slave, across the nose of whose neck the overcoat of the tyrant man is planted. We look upon woman, however, as useful in the great struggle of life. Generally she is on the side of the struggle and the tyrant man on the other. One thing, however, is settled. There is not such a mal crash at present for blank-verses in this as there is for women who can make a six that will not taste like a stove-lid veneered with cod liver oil. In using these cruel words, we do so in order to silence this ubiquitous howl on the part of these modest violets, who expect to get off the train here and meet a confidant invalid at the depot with a carriage and a marriage license. The old man with the beetle-flesh and a life insurance policy for one hundred and fifty thousand dollars is not at present ransacking the four corners of the globe for a little rascally thirty-nine years old who don't know enough to boil a teakettle—Boomerang.

Accumulation of Property in the U. S. While the total property valuation of the United States is below that of France or Great Britain, the annual accumulation of wealth in this country is greater than that of any other modern nation. In Germany it is $290,000,000; in Great Britain it is $325,000,000; in France it is $375,000,000; in the United States it is $875,000,000. In other words, this country is growing rich at the rate of $2,300,000 a day.

Soldiers. Europe has one soldier to every 140 of its population; the United States one to every 2000. With nearly double the area of the mother continent, the United States has seventeen inhabitants to the square mile, against 145 in Europe. This may help to explain the fact that in 1881 700,000 men and women of European birth found their way across the Atlantic.
