Powder Burned

Silas Bales and Ira McCormack, of Alsea Valley, were severely burned with powder on the 4th day of July at that place while celebrating that day. They were engaged in firing anvils, and had been doing so in rapid succession. They had just discharged one and were attempting to reload it, and while in the act of filling-with powder which they were pouring from a can, the heat from the anvil caught fire to the powder and the whole can was instantly discharged while holding it in the hand. Both parties were severely burned about the face and hands, and presented rather a distressing and are now getting along as well as could be expected.

The pooling of wool is bringing about the quarrels and dissensions usual at that time f year. It is fortunate, however, that while the great anxiety on the part of some persons to buy a lot of wool sometimes brings forth loud talk and a general war of words, yet as a rule there is no blood spilled on such occasions, and the world moves on just the same.

Express Changed.

The city express has recently changed hands, to we have been informed. The citizens of Corvallis who have heretofore purchased things down town for breakfast or early dinner and then had to wait until the next day before receiving them, will certainly hope that the change will bring with it an improvement and cause deliveries to be more prompt, and with less delay.

Railroad Extension.

This week the extension of the East Side narrow guage road, from Brownsville south to Coburg on the McKenzie river, was opened to traffic. It runs through the inest agricultural section of Linu county The grade was nearly finished by the old Scotch company, and the road put in running order by the O. R. & N. Co. A convenient and handsome depot has been built at Coberg and side-tracks have been put in where necessary between Brownsville and Cobarg. The train will leave the latter point at 7 A.
